NEW BRITISH CABINET NAMED BY ASQUITH

Lloyd-George Becomes Chancellor; McKenna Is First Lord of the Admiralty.

CHURCHILL GETS A PLACE

To Hold It, However, He Must Be Re-elected Member of the House—Hard Fight Before Him.

LONDON, April 12.—Official announcement was made to-night of the new Cabinet appointments. The announcement contains no astonishing item. Practically all of the appointments have been confidently expected for the last three or four days. The list is as follows:

Herbert H. Asquith, Prime Minister and First Lord of the Treasury.

David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Lord Tweedmouth, President of the Council.

Earl of Crewe, Secretary of State for the Colonies.

Reginald McKenna, First Lord of the Admiralty.

Winston Spencer Churchill, President of the Board of Trade.

Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Education.

John Morley, Secretary of State for India, and Sir Henry H. Fowler, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, have been made peers, but retain their present offices.

Col. J. E. Seeley has been appointed Under Secretary for the Colonies.

Lord Lucas has been appointed Parliamentary Secretary for the War Office, and F. D. Acland Financial Secretary for the War Office.

Thomas R. Buchanan has been appointed Parliamentary Secretary for the India Office.

Mr. Asquith, the new Premier, was Chancellor of the Exchequer in the Campbell-Bannerman Cabinet; David Lloyd-George was President of the Board of Trade; Lord Tweedmouth was First Lord of the Admiralty; Earle of Crewe was President of the Council; Reginald McKenna was President of the Board of Education; Winston Spencer Churchill was Under Secretary of State for the Colonies, and Walter Runciman was Financial Secretary to the Treasury.

Having been fully anticipated in well-informed political quarters, the changes which Mr. Asquith has made in the old Campbell-Bannerman Cabinet caused no surprise. There has been some speculation whether the new Premier would think it well to dissolve Parliament. He evidently has decided not to go to the country.

His aim in composing the Cabinet seemingly has been to avoid as far as possible any bye-election in constituencies where the faith in Liberalism is wavering. The changes as announced will only necessitate four bye-elections, of which three, heretofore held, respectively, by John Morley, Walter Runciman, and Sir Henry Fowler, may be considered quite safe.

Winston Spencer Churchill's re-election in Manchester, however, is considered decidedly doubtful. Until won by Mr. Churchill, after one of the most notable contests, thirty months ago, this seat had been for a decade a Conservative stronghold. Mr. Churchill will throw himself into the struggle with all his well-known tenacity, but his opponents have anticipated and prepared for the struggle for two years past, and he will have the hardest possible task to hold his seat.

Now that it is officially confirmed, perhaps the most striking feature in the new Cabinet is the leap of David Lloyd-George to the front rank in political life. As second Minister in rank he becomes the deputy leader of the House of Commons and the prospective heir to the Premiership should any unforeseen accident leave that office vacant.

It is interesting to note that before giving the Chancellorship to Mr. Lloyd-George, Mr. Asquith offered it to Mr. Morley.

Mr. McKenna, the new Admiralty chief, is credited with being an advocate of economy in the navy.

Some further minor appointments outside the Cabinet will be announced after the King's return to London.

The condition of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman is reported by his physicians as being unchanged.

LONDON, Monday, April 13.—The newspapers received the new Cabinet with great favor. The changes are less than expected, the net result as far as actual Cabinet offices, &c., are concerned being that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and the Earl of Elgin, Secretary for the Colonies, have been dropped, and Messrs. Churchill and Runciman have entered.

But the new blood and the regrouping of portfolios are considered to have greatly strengthened the Government. While Mr. Asquith seems to have managed to make the necessary changes in the Cabinet without offending his own party, the substitution of the Earl of Crewe for the Earl of Elgin is admitted, even by the Conservative press, as admirable, and David Lloyd-George's promotion is universally approved as having been inevitable.

The only appointment provoking criticism, even among the Liberals, is that of Reginald McKenna to the Admiralty, which is supposed to have been due to his personal friendship with the Premier. He has not been a great success as President of the Board of Education, and, although a fluent speaker, with courage and ability, his "little navy" proclivities are regarded with suspicion.

Col. Seely, the new Under Secretary for the Colonies, has had a parallel career with his predecessor, Winston Spencer Churchill. They both seceded from the Conservative Party on the fiscal issue about the same time, and are close friends. Mr. Runciman, curiously enough, when he entered Parliament in 1899, defeated Mr. Churchill at Oldham. He has risen rapidly and is regarded as a promising statesman.

As to the political aspect of the changes, the acceptance of the title of Viscount by Mr. Morley and Sir Henry Fowler is held to imply that the idea of reforming or abolishing the House of Lords has been dropped for the time being, while Mr. McKenna's removal from his office as President of the Board of Education will enable the Government to abandon the thorny Education bill for the present session.

It is understood that Premier Asquith will himself make the coming budget statement, although he has resigned the Chancellorship, there being a precedent for this course.

The Earl of Elgin is said to be chagrined at the loss of the Colonial Office. Lord Tweedmouth's "downward promotion" is due to the Emperor's letter incident and to general dissatisfaction over his administration.

Mr. Churchill has issued a bold fighting address to the electors of Manchester, pinning to the mast the whole Government legislative programme, and even the unpopular licensing bill in its integrity. It is reported that Mr. Lloyd-George has resolved to throw to the winds the prescriptive law which forbids a Cabinet Minister from participating in an election contest, and that he is going to Manchester to speak in the campaign for Churchill.

HUGHES STIRS UP UTICA.

Big Anti-Gambling Meeting—Senator Ackroyd to be Subjected to Pressure.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., April 12.—Gov. Hughes addressed an anti-gambling mass meeting at the Majestic Theatre in this city to-day, attracting a crowd that jammed the house. A resolution was adopted calling upon Senator Joseph Ackroyd, who represents Oneida County and who voted against the bills last week, to change his attitude in deference to the wishes of his constituents. A committee of representative citizens was appointed, including men of all parties, to present the resolutions to the Senator, and urge him to comply with them.

John D. Kernan, a prominent Democrat, presided at the mass meeting, and made a speech indorsing Gov. Hughes's course in this matter. When the Governor appeared he received a tumultuous greeting, and his declarations were continuously applauded.

Gov. Hughes said he was in the fight to stay and to win. The Percy-Gray law, which permits gambling at race tracks, he denounced as a farce. The law must be impartial in order to insure enforcement, he declared. What was wrong outside a race track must be wrong inside. Above all the Constitution must be obeyed or the foundations of government would be imperiled. He expressed confidence that the ultimate result would show that New York State was not ruled by its gamblers and speculators, but by its honest, industrious, and decent citizens.

In many of the churches of the city today the clergymen referred to the anti-gambling measures, and in several instances the congregations voted requests to Senator Ackroyd to support them when they come up again.

Senator Ackroyd was not in town today. It is understood that he spent Sunday in New York. The committee appointed by the mass meeting will probably visit him at Albany early this week. He will be told that public sentiment here is practically unanimous in favor of the bills.

Gov. Hughes returned to Albany this evening feeling encouraged by what he has heard on his trip, which included Watertown, Buffalo, and Utica.

DENOUNCE SENATOR WILCOX.

Meeting Held in His Own Church Condemns His Vote on Racing Bills.

AUBURN, N. Y., April 12.—Several hundred persons attended a meeting held today in the First Methodist Episcopal Church and applauded enthusiastically while six speakers vigorously denounced State Senator Benjamin Wilcox's action in voting against the Anti-Race-Track Gambling bills. The Senator is a member of the First Church, where the meeting was held, and his pastor, the Rev. E. J. Rosengrant, was one of the speakers.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted declaring that the Senator had not represented the community by his action, and that those at the meeting protested against his action and demanded that he reconsider his vote.

ROOSEVELT'S TRAVEL PLANS.

Thinks It Would Be Better for Taft to Have Him Away.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Should President Roosevelt's present desires be realized he will spent the first year after his retirement from office in travel outside the United States. His itinerary has not been determined, but his plan is to see some of the rugged and little frequented portions of foreign lands as well as to travel the beaten track of the tourist. That the President will indulge his fondness for hunting big game is believed by those to whom he has confided his intention.

It was at the recent dinner of the Boone and Crockett Club in this city that the President last told of his intentions for next year. He is quoted as saying at this time:

"If William Taft is nominated and elected President, which would be very gratifying, it would make impossible any criticism if I were abroad, to the effect that I was dictating to him and being followed, or that I had dictated and had been turned down in my suggestions."

It is the President's present intention to remain at the White House until the returns from the Chicago Convention have been received, but it is likely that Mrs. Roosevelt will have the family settled at Sagamore Hill before that time. As to politics, it is said the President will be simply an "interested observer," and politicians will find no cause to make pilgrimages to Sagamore Hill.

DR. CARTER'S HEALTH BROKEN

Pastor of Madison Avenue Church Ordered Away for a Year.

The Rev. Dr. William Carter, pastor of the Madison Avenue Reformed Church, has been ordered by his physicians to go away from New York and cease all pastoral or other work for a year at least. They have advised him to go either to Switzerland or California.

About three weeks ago Dr. Carter's physicians found his health was much impaired. He was then engaged in the Belasco Theatre meetings, which closed last night, and refused to go until the series had been concluded.

His church has given him a leave of absence of one year, and he will spend it in an effort to regain his health. He said last night that he had not determined whether he would go abroad or to the Pacific Coast.

The Rev. Hugh Black and the Rev. Dr. Patton of Princeton will be among the ministers who will supply the pulpit in the absence of Dr. Carter.

A THAW HOME FOR RENT.

Elmhurst Grange in the Alleghanies in Market for Tenant.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 12.—Strangers will occupy Elmhurst Grange, the Summer home of Mrs. William Thaw, at Cresson, in the Alleghany Mountains. It is one of the first residences of the Thaw family to be offered for rent.

Formerly Mrs. Thaw has never rented any of her houses when not occupied. They have been kept closed.

Mrs. Thaw will go to Europe to spend some time with her daughter, the Countess of Yarmouth. Lyndhurst, the Thaw home in Pittsburg, is for sale, and a son, Josiah Thaw, occupies the new home built on a part of the Lyndhurst estate.

PRIEST DENOUNCES SETTLEMENT WORKS

They Are Pauperizing the Children, Father Curry of Cherry Hill Tells His Parishioners.

ALSO MISLEADING THE PUBLIC

They Exaggerate Conditions, Priest Declares, to Obtain Money, Little of Which Reaches the Poor.

Addressing his parishioners at all the masses yesterday morning, the Rev. James B. Curry, rector of the Church of St. James, in James Street, attacked the east side settlement and charity workers in general and the Jacob A. Riis Settlement House in particular. The latter institution is in his parish. He had previously warned the children of his parish against participating in the exercises at the settlement house, and took occasion yesterday to impress it upon their parents.

Father Curry did not mince his words in attacking the methods and impugning the motives of the charity workers. He declared they were pauperizing the children and making grafters of their elders. He severely arraigned their methods, through which, he declared, only a small part of the funds received for charitable distribution reached those for whom it was intended, while the major part was devoted to the support and salaries of the workers.

"They are exploiting the people of this section, which they call the 'slums' and 'social swamp,'" he said, "by picture and story in newspapers and periodicals for the accumulation of large revenues. They know that the generous New Yorker, ignorant of true conditions, is susceptible to these stories of the slums, which are augmented by artistic conceptions of poverty, squalor, and filth; they proclaim their activity in these fields for moral, social, and physical improvement, and undertake to dispense the charitable contributions of those who have been taken in in the 'confidence game.'

"Mr. Riis has opened a settlement house in this parish for our children. According to a magazine article, he has been engaged in settlement work in this section for the last fourteen years trying to improve moral conditions, but it is conceded that he has not been successful. The Catholic Church has no such failure to admit. If the condition of this neighborhood has improved over that of former years, it is not due to the activities of Mr. Riis. It is just one year ago that I began a crusade against the vice and dissolution on our side of Chatham Square, and I have cleaned it of the evils for which it was becoming noted.

"Yet Mr. Riis comes to this section with a settlement house for our children. What is his purpose? When I warned the children of the parish against this house a week ago I told them that it was a charitable society. It is listed as such in the Brooklyn Daily Eagle Almanac. It is also listend as such in the Charities Directory. I told your children he was making them objects of charity, pauperizing them.

"As to their purposes for the moral betterment of this section, I want to say that their efforts would be better directed in the neighborhoods of the rich uptown. They will find more immorality there. Their visits to the homes of the poor people here are only a bluff at charity. Their purpose is to spy into the homes, to gaze into the private closets and to reveal the family skeletons wherever found. The home of the poor man is as much his castle as is that of the rich man, and it is entitled to privacy and respect. The general impression held by the public of the east side is woefully wrong, and is all due to the incorrect statements made by these proselytizing settlement workers. And right here I want to object strenuously to the use of the term 'slums' in characterizing this section. I also object to other characterizations and methods employed to exploit this section.

"When they come here for photographs for their misleading articles they select the most poverty stricken child and the lowest types of individuals to pose as the normal citizens of our section, and picture the most dilapidated houses as our typical homes. Their stock in trade expressions are the living pictures from the 'slums,' the 'drink curse,' 'tramps, beggars, loafers,' the 'devil's money,' 'outcast men and women,' and the 'general harvest of vices and the wages of sin.'

"They call this section 'the unweeded, unwatered human garden,' and use every other vile name and opprobrious epithet expressive in depicting conditions that inhere only to the most degraded of civilized communities. Having settled this as a positive fact, they swoop down upon us like a flock of magpies and begin to rake muck with a vigor which if used in the higher walks of life in this city might serve to a better purpose, for vigorous cleansing of morals is much more necessary among the upper than among the lower classes.

"Yes, New Yorkers are good-natured and sympathetic. All they need is the story, and out comes the cash. Do they ever sit down in sober, serious thought and try mentally to conceive just how much of their cash reaches the poor man? About 90 cents goes to the crusader for his salary and keep and about 10 coppers reach the poor man.

"They collect clothing for the poor, ostensibly of this section. Where does it arrive? Ask the employes of second-hand dealers. Papers, magazines, and periodicals are solicited for the inmates of the jails and for the patients of hospitals; also for the homes of the poor. Where do they arrive? Ask the society for the sale of old paper.

"The residents of our section have suffered and still suffer by this and as a result of it. Take our boys; let them go to any part of New York and apply for work. They are bright boys, are honest, industrious, possess integrity, and have all the qualifications which the Catholic Church tries to instill into its members. The boy makes a good impression upon his prospective employer. The latter, however, when he attempts to take his address, learns that he comes from Cherry Hill remembers what he has read of the section, ignorant of the basic lies of the article, at once dismisses the applicant, who has qualified in all other respects.

"My people, it is your duty to look after the welfare of your children, to see that they are surrounded by the proper influences, and prepare for them a successful future. Bring them up properly now. Don't let these strangers influence them. Be careful of the places you let them attend. It is also your duty to clear this section from the foul pall of untruth that hangs over it. Do not be pauperized. Do not accept charity that is not prompted by true Christian motives."

TROOPS SENT TO PENSACOLA.

Electric Cars Will Be Started To-day Despite the Strike.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 12.—Gov. Broward to-day ordered every command in the State militia to proceed at once to Pensacola. The electric company has decided to start cars on its lines to-morrow, and the troops will be there as a measure of precaution.

This order was received late this afternoon from Adjt. Gen. J. Clifford Foster, from Tallahassee:

"Assemble Companies A, D, and F immediately and proceed by afternoon train for Pensacola, there reporting to Col. Lefiles on arrival. Take every available man; heavy marching order; twenty round multiple ball cartridges per man. Sound general alarm so as to get men out quickly, and take as many as possible."

Upon receipt of this message the fire whistle sounded the riot call, and military men, policemen, Deputy Sheriffs, and special officers rushed to their quarters. There were many rumors of serious rioting at Pensacola. At 6:30 o'clock 170 men and the Gatling gun detachment left for Pensacola.

A special from Live Oak stated that the Suwanee Guards, and the Tallahassee, Appalachicola, and other companies had proceeded to Pensacola on the morning train.

ICE CRUSHES STEAMERS.

One Sealer Sinks and Others Are Badly Damaged Off Labrador.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 12.—Bringing tidings of the sinking of the steamer Grand Lake of the sealing fleet, and the serious injury of several others caught in the ice floes, the steam sealer Newfoundland came into port to-day leaking badly. Her bows and stern had been crushed by ice, and her crew of 200 men were forced to stand by for many hours, pumping and bailing to keep the vessel afloat.

The Grand Lake met with disaster last Sunday. She was shut up in two great ice floes, until her sides gave way, and even her engines were crushed. She floated only three hours, but in that time her crew, numbering 214 men, made their escape to the steamer Vanguard, which was close by. A catch of 20,000 seals went down with the Grand Lake. This cargo was valued at $130,000, and was insured.

The steamers Iceland, Ranger, and Algerine were also crushed badly by the ice, but were kept afloat until their crews could careen them on ice floes and make temporary repairs. The Ranger's plight was most serious, and grave fear was felt that she might be unable to reach port. The steamer Algerine tried to reach the coast, but was driven back by storms and lack of coal.

LINER BREAKS DOWN IN GALE.

Unknown Ship Anchors Off Amagansett—Resumed Trip Last Night.

Special to The New York Times.

AMAGANSETT, L. I., April 12.—An ocean steamer bound west dropped anchor at 7 o'clock this morning about five miles off shore, opposite the Amagansett Life Saving Station. Owing to the heavy gale, it was feared the vessel would drag her anchor. The sea was very high. The life savers were unable to read her name. Capt. Edwards, the keeper of the station, thought the vessel was painted black and had a red ring around her smokestack.

He reported by telephone to Fire Island, and at 3 o'clock an ocean tug put in appearance and was signaled, "Machinery disabled, but can repair by our own ship's engineer." The tug hove about prepared to assist, but was signaled, "No assistance required." With the marine glass it was discovered the vessel carried passengers, as some twelve or fifteen men, women, and children could be seen on deck. To-night the ship evidently completed repairs, as she weighed anchor and continued on her course.

STEAMER HITS CRUISER.

French Warship Badly Damaged in a Collision at Rio Janeiro.

RIO JANEIRO, April 12.—The British steamer Voltaire, while leaving the Port of Santos to-day, struck the French cruiser Republique, causing considerable damage.

The Voltaire continued on her voyage without stopping. There was no loss of life.

LINERS MAY RACE OVER OCEAN

Deutschland and Mauretania to Sail for New York This Week.

One of the most interesting races across the Atlantic Ocean will begin this week, when the Deutschland and the Mauretania start from England for New York within a few hours of each other.

The Hamburg-American flier has been thoroughly overhauled in dry dock, and is equipped with new boilers. No effort will be left undone on the part of her Captain, officers, and crew to regain the blue ribbon of the Atlantic, which the big Cunarder Lusitania took away from her in December.

The Mauretania of the Cunard Line, which sails from Liverpool on Saturday, will do her best to overhaul the Deutschland, which sails from Southampton on Friday. There will be a keen contest between the two ships for the biggest day's run and the time of passage to New York.

The German officers are fully confident that their liner can do as well if not better than she did seven years ago when she broke the record of the Atlantic.

SAYS DE SAGAN CAN'T WED.

Priest Announces in Sermon That Pope Can't Grant Him Dispensation.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 12.—"If Prince de Sagan is going to Rome under the impression that he will get a dispensation to marry Mme. Gould, let me destroy this impression. The Pope has no more power to grant him a dispensation than I have. He can never marry her with the sanction of the Catholic Church. Once married always married, and the Catholic Church never recognizes divorces."

With this sentence the Rev. Dr. Cornelius F. Thomas, ex-secretary to Cardinal Gibbons and now pastor of St. Ann's Catholic Church, began his sermon on "The Married Life" to-day. In his sermon Father Thomas struck a blow at the "affinity" idea, which he declared to be "rot."

STUDENT MURDERS GOVERNOR OF GALICIA

Count Andreas Potocki Victim of the Bitter Enmity Between Ruthenians and Poles.

SHOT WHILE GIVING AUDIENCE

Poles Crying for Vengeance—Great Excitement at Lemberg, Where Assassination Took Place.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LEMBERG, Austria-Hungary, April 12.—The Governor of the Province of Galicia, Count Andreas Potocki, was assassinated to-day by Mieroslap Sziczynski, a Ruthenian student.

The assassination was an outgrowth of the bitter antagonism which prevails in the Province of Galicia between the Poles and Ruthenians.

Count Potocki was killed by bullets fired from a revolver, and the shooting took place while he was giving an audience to a delegation of students. The Count died within a few minutes of the shooting, and his last words were: "Tell the Emperor I was his most faithful servant."

The assassin was arrested immediately after he had fired the fatal shots. As he was being led away he exclaimed:

"I am no criminal. I have acted in behalf of my oppressed people."

Sziczynski is 32 years old, the son of an ecclesiastic, who is a member of Parliament.

The assassination is causing an enormous sensation. The deed is likely greatly to influence Austrian political conditions. Between the Poles and Ruthenians in the Province of Galicia there is a traditional enmity. The Poles, though their majority is inconsiderable, have assumed the entire administration, and also have appropriated to themselves an overwhelming majority of the Parliament seats.

The Ruthenians consider themselves enslaved. Their irritation often has been manifested by violent outbursts in Parliament, by street riots, and students' demonstrations. Ruthenian students a year ago demolished several lecture halls of the Lemberg University because the use of their mother tongue was forbidden them. The murderer of to-day participated in these riots.

The Lemberg police are convinced of the existence of a Ruthenian conspiracy. Although the assassin declared in the course of his examination that he had no accomplices, it is a fact that his brother committed suicide ten minutes before the murder, and this is held to indicate that he knew of the assassin's plan. The police have arrested numerous students, mostly friends of the assassin.

Count Potocki belonged to one of the oldest and most respected of Polish aristocratic families. His family has furnished numerous statesmen and Generals, playing an important part in Polish history for 300 years. He was an amiable man, enjoying universal sympathy even among the moderate Ruthenians.

The assassination is causing a terrible impression. Lemberg's streets are occupied by a great mulitude. Thousands are assembled in front of the Government palace. Men and women are to be seen there crying and uttering dire threats against the Ruthenians.

The Emperor sends word that he is greatly distressed at the news of Count Potocki's death. He has forwarded a warm message of condolence to the widow and her eight children.

Many of the Ruthenian politicians express dismay at the assassination. "Our policy," said one of them, "is not violence. Our intention is not to kill, but to win our rights by legal means."

TRAIN HITS A RUNABOUT.

Three Persons Injured Near Coney Island and Horse Runs Away.

A Long Island Railroad train crashed into a two-seated runabout yesterday at the Elm Avenue crossing, near Coney Island, demolishing the vehicle and injuring its three occupants, Mr. and Mrs. James Dougherty of 220 East Ninth Street, Flatbush, and Mrs. Nellie Brooks, who lives with the Doughertys.

Mr. Dougherty was driving. The team had just emerged from the Brighton Beach Railroad tunnel in Elm Avenue and started to cross the Long Island Railroad tracks, which run parallel to the Brighton Beach tracks at that point. Mr. Dougherty did not see an approaching train. Samuel Hefferman of 68 Henry Street, engineer of the Long Island Railroad train, set his brakes, but not in time. Mr. Dougherty was severely bruised. His wife sustained a fractured collar bone, and Mrs. Brooks was scratched and bruised. They were sent home in a Kings County Hospital ambulance.

The horse was not injured and ran away after the smash-up. It was captured by Mounted Policeman Ira Baird.

RUNAWAY BROKE MAN'S SKULL

Cab Horse Smashed Into Window, Injuring Rafael Gorthace.

Rafael Gorthace of 304 East 156th Street, while walking in 107th Street, near Second Avenue, last night, saw a runaway cab horse going east in 107th Street. The cab was unoccupied, and no driver was on the seat. Gorthace attempted to stop the horse. He seized the reins and succeeded in swerving the animal into a plate glass window in front of a vacant store at 435 East 107th Street, but was himself thrown to the pavement with such force that he received a fractured skull. He was picked up unconscious and Dr. Healey took him to the Harlem Hospital, where it was said that his condition was serious.

The horse and cab belong to Matthew Smith of 243 East Twentieth Street, and was driven by Cornelius Woods of 407 East Twenty-second Street, who said some boys threw stones at the horse as he was driving into 107th Street from Lexington Avenue. Woods was thrown from his seat, sustaining a few bruises. He was locked up in the East 104th Street Station.

MISS GOULD SENDS ALARM.

Telephones for Police When Burglar Alarm Goes Off.

Upon hearing the ringing of the burglar alarm bells on the lower floors of her home, at 579 Fifth Avenue, Miss Helen Gould last night, without calling her servants, telephoned to Police Headquarters for aid. Three patrolmen who were sent to the house found that a servant had accidentally disconnected the wires of the alarm.

Miss Gould accompanied the policemen about the house, and when they had finished their investigation had a supper prepared for them.

BRITAIN ASSURES VICEROYS.

Minister to China Talked of the Tatsu Maru Incident with Them.

SHANGHAI, April 12.—The British Minister to China, Sir John N. Jordan, has returned here after a protracted visit to Southern China. He is on his way to Peking, after having visited the Viceroys of Nanking and Wu-Chang, following a visit to these officials of the American Minister, William W. Rockhill.

It is understood that the British Minister's conference with the Viceroys had to do with the Tatsu Maru incident, and was intended to indicate in a mild way the friendship between China and Great Britain.

DISCOVERY ON DREADNOUGHT.

It Affects the Turbine Engines and Increases Ship's Speed.

LONDON, April 12.—It is announced that a discovery in connection with the turbine engines of the Dreadnought has resulted in a great increase in speed.

In a twelve hours' trial, just held, the battleship averaged 20½ knots, which is only half a knot below her designed speed.

HAULED BLAZING CARS AWAY.

Fire Threatened City Ferryhouses at St. George for a Time.

Fire in some cars near the municipal ferryhouses at St. George, Richmond, threatened the structure last night. The blaze started in one of two freight cars loaded with chinaware packed in straw. They stood in the Baltimore & Ohio yards, close to the north end of the ferryhouses.

The wind was blowing so that the flames leaped toward the ferryhouses. An alarm brought the firemen, but before they arrived a drill engine drew the two cars, still burning, down the tracks three-quarters of a mile away. They were almost wholly destroyed by the time the firemen reached them.

TROLLEY CARS IN COLLISION.

Eight Persons Are Hurt in an Accident Near Annapolis.

BALTIMORE, Md., April 12.—A head-on collision between two cars of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis Electric Railway occurred this afternoon about a mile east of Crownsville, a small station some eight miles from Annapolis, and eight persons were injured, none of them seriously, however.

The fronts of both cars were considerably damaged. The motorman of one of the cars jumped, while that of the other stuck to his post and is among those who sustained injuries. Neither of the cars left the track. The accident is attributed to the fact that a special was on the switch at Crownsville, the usual passing point, and that the motorman of the eastbound car mistook this special for the regular westbound car and passed on.

That the accident was not much more serious is due to the fact that neither car was traveling at high speed.

J. P. CADDAGAN VERY ILL.

Proprietor of the Hoffman House Not Expected to Live.

John P. Caddagan, proprietor of the Hoffman House, and personal friend of many politicians of National repute, as well as traveling men from all over the country, is lying critically ill in his rooms at the hotel. Dr. E. R. Finch, his physician, was with him all of last night, and gave little hope for his recovery.

Mr. Caddagan suffered a severe hemorrhage Friday night. He is 60 years old, and it was said early this morning that the chances of recovery were against him. He is a bachelor and has two sisters who are connected with the hotel under his management.

Mr. Caddagan was for years manager for Dion Boucicault before he went into the hotel business. His acquaintanceship among theatrical people is very wide.

FOUND DYING ON A STOOP.

Fashionably Dressed Woman Expires in Doctor's Office Next Door.

A fashionably dressed, refined looking woman, about 45 years old, was found unconscious on the stoop of the house adjoining that of Dr. F. H. Colton, at 136 Montague Street, Brooklyn, about 8 o'clock last night. She died in Dr. Colton's office without regaining consciousness soon after being carried into the doctor's office by a stranger who discovered her on the stoop.

The section of the city where the woman was found is one of the best in Brooklyn, and the police are of the opinion that the woman may prove to be some one of prominence. She was about 5 feet 5 inches high, weighed about 150 pounds, and had gray eyes and dark hair. There was nothing found on the body to indicate her identity.

The body was removed to the Adams Street Police Station. It was still unidentified late last night.

BURNED IN DYNAMO ACCIDENT.

Wire Net in B. R. T. Power House Blows Out and Two Men Are Injured.

Two men were badly burned and several others less severely injured in the Brooklyn Rapid Transit power house at the foot of Division Avenue, Williamsburg, yesterday afternoon by the blowing out of a wire net in front of a dynamo. There is a large net in front of each dynamo to protect the men from coming into contact with the dynamo, and when work is necessary around the dynamos the men labor with much caution. Thomas Milne, a boiler cleaner, of 82 Newell Street, and George Tieman of 123 North Second Street were working alongside a dynamo, and near them were half a dozen other men. Without any warning the net was blown out by the electrical power, and almost immediately the clothing of the men was set on fire, and all were shocked. Milne and Tieman were knocked insensible, and the others were temporarily stunned. Dr. Oginz of the Eastern District Hospital had Milne and Tieman removed to the hospital. Milne's face, head, shoulders, and abdomen were terribly burned, and his eyesight destroyed. Tieman was burned about the head, face, and eyes.

BIG OIL TANKS BLOW UP

Fire Starts in Drying Rags, and Sixty-Mile Gale Sweeps It Through the Heart of the City.

BOSTON, April 12.—The greatest fire that has visited any part of the Boston metropolitan district in ten years devastated the manufacturing, tenement, and retail business sections of Chelsea, a suburb of this city, to-day, burning over more than one square mile of territory and leveling many of the city's best structures and making 10,000 persons homeless.

The fire started at 10:40 A. M. and was not under control till 9 this evening, notwithstanding that half of the Boston Fire Department's strength and apparatus from a dozen other cities and towns went to the aid of the helpless Chelsea department. The loss was estimated at $5,000,000, and the City Solicitor thinks it may reach $10,000,000. About 1,500 families are homeless. Four bodies not identified had been taken out of the ruins at midnight. Half a hundred persons were either injured or painfully burned.

At least two children were born during the fire. Mrs. J. Smoke and Mrs. J. M. Arnold were the mothers of these infants. In both cases the births occurred shortly before the fire reached the homes of the parents. The mothers and children were removed to the Naval Hospital in an ambulance.

The fire originated in the rear of the Boston Blacking Company's works near the Everett city line, where employes were drying rags. The exact cause of the fire is not known, but it is supposed that spontaneous combustion among the rags was responsible.

A terrific gale from the northwest, which at times had a velocity of sixty miles an hour, carried burning shingles, embers, and myriads of sparks to a score of buildings, most of them of cheap wooden construction. The fire started almost in the extreme southwest section of the city and cut a path to the extreme southeastern end of the city, which borders on Chelsea Creek.

This point is about one mile and a quarter from the point where the conflagration began. The flames swept through the heart of the retail business section, which was about midway between the two extreme limits reached by the fire.

The Buildings Destroyed.

Among the structures destroyed were thirteen churches, two hospitals, five banks, the Public Library, City Hall, five schoolhouses, twenty business blocks, about twenty factories, and upward of 300 tenements and dwelling houses.

Some of the buildings were the Frost Hospital, Children's Hospital, Fitz Public Library, St. Stanislaus's Polish Catholic Church, First Baptist Church, Central Unitarian Church, St. Luke's Episcopal Church, First Methodist Episcopal Church, Elm Street Synagogue, Walnut Street Synagogue, Chelsea Presbyterian Church, People's Afro-Methodist Episcopal Church, Fourth Street Universalist Church, Fifth Street Congregational Church, St. Rose's Catholic Church and School, Shurtleff Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Second Adventist Church, New England Telephone and Telegraph Company's central offices, State Armory, Sacred Heart Convent, Y. M. C. A. Building, and elevated railroad station and barn.

The flames reached Broadway, the principal street of the city, and destroyed the Masonic Hall, Odd Fellows Hall, and Bennett Block.

The flying embers and the showers of sparks were carried across Chelsea Creek to the East Boston district, and the East Boston engines were obliged to return from Chelsea to protect property in their district.

Militia Called Out.

A militia call by Mayor Beck of Chelsea brought out the First Company, Coast Artillery, Capt. Renfrew commanding, to guard property moved into the streets from buildings in the path of the flames.

Col. Wood, commanding the marines at the Charlestown Navy Yard, volunteered the services of the One Hundred and Fifth Company, stationed at the navy yard, and on request of Mayor Beck the company was sent to the fire, under command of Capt. Hill. Rear Admiral Swift of the navy yard also sent out all the men from the receiving ship Wabash who were not already off on liberty.

These sailors were not sent under command of any officer, but were instructed to give their services wherever needed.

Marines with fixed bayonets held back the crowds, while the militia and sailors helped families remove their goods. Advance squads of the military and police were sent ahead warning out families living in the course of the fire, which leaped block after block with astonishing rapidity.

Six carloads of tents and blankets were shipped from the State militia camp at South Framingham.

Help from Other Cities.

This force was increased to-night by the arrival of Company L of the Fifth Infantry, Company B of the Eighth Infantry, and the Fifth Corps, Coast Artillery. A detail of seventy-five policemen from Boston, under five Sergeants, was stationed at various entrances to the city.

with orders to prevent anybody from coming in, with the exception of firemen, policemen, soldiers, and newspaper men.

Realizing early in the fire that the city was apparently doomed if the flames could not be stopped at Everett Avenue, Fire Chief H. A. Spencer summoned help from Boston and all the surrounding cities and towns. Four alarms were rung in on the Boston circuit, and all the available apparatus was sent across the harbor. A two-alarm fire in the city of Boston, however, prevented as many engines being sent as would otherwise have been possible. Early in the afternoon aid had arrived from Everett, Lynn, Haverhill, Wakefield, Salem, Malden, Cambridge, Winthrop, and Revere. The Boston Fire Department abandoned three engines.

The first evidence of the fire on the east side of Everett Avenue was when the roof of the People's A. M. E. Church, in Fourth Street, was seen to be ablaze. The services were in progress inside at the time and the congregation was unaware that a serious fire was raging outside. Some one notified the pastor, the Rev. Charles P. Watson, that the building was in danger of burning. Immediately the pastor notified the congregation of the danger and advised them to file slowly from the building. Twenty minutes later there was not a vestige of the edifice left.

The firemen made a fight to save the heart of the business section, where, within an area of half a mile square, were several churches and schoolhouses. One by one they fell before the flames. Flaming embers fell on steeple and roof and flames instantly enveloped the structures.

How One Church Burned.

The tip of the steeple of the Polish Catholic Church caught fire, and several pieces of apparatus were rushed to the scene in an attempt to save the building. In fifteen minutes the entire top of the church was in flames. All the movable effects and furniture were removed. Among those who did effective work in saving the more precious of the church's belongings were Sisters Conrad, Lucy, Elizabeth, and Margaret of the St. Francis Convent of Bethel, N. Y.

The First Universalist Church caught fire in exactly the same manner. A spectacular feature of the burning of the Universalist Church was the flames as they burned completely around the base of the great golden cross which tipped the spire.

For a few moments it stood out against the sky, a flaming golden beacon, and then with a crash tumbled headlong into the roof, breaking as it struck the roof, one part going into the interior and the other striking the street.

The Fitz Public Library, a stone structure, was destroyed and the flames crept toward the Frost Hospital and the Children's Hospital.

By requisitioning ambulances from surrounding towns and cities and calling into service all available carriages the police were able to remove the inmates of the Frost Hospital and the Children's Hospital outside the city limits to retreats of safety. It was just in time, for both hospital buildings were shortly consumed.

Fire Spread Erratically.

No one knew where the fire would spring up next. Householders piling up their goods out of doors occasionally found a mattress in flames in the middle of the street. All the firemen were in the centre of the city, and a half-mile square of the residential section was in flames and no protection available or possible. Men, women, and children ran around the streets begging some one to call the firemen and there were no firemen to respond. All the money men possessed was offered teamsters to cart away household goods, but there were few teams to be had.

Over Chelsea Bridge into East Boston streamed a long line of fire refugees, many of whom had been refugees from Kishineff, carrying what few household effects they were able to save. Pushcarts, drays, and even baby carriages were piled high with furniture and bedding. Hundreds of persons carried huge bundles tied up in sheets. Dense throngs flocked into the city from Boston, coming over in ferries and the East Boston tunnel.

Several of the large cars used by the Boston Elevated Railway in the East Boston tunnel, and abandoned when it was found necessary to shut off the power, were left helpless in streets swept by the flames. In the engine house of Engine No. 1, a brick structure, were stored many trunks and other furniture, which all had to be abandoned on the command of a marine, who warned out the people just as the flames broke through the back of the building.

In the three-story granite structure once used by the United States Government as a marine hospital, but now occupied by the Shurtleff Grammar School, hundreds of people deposited their goods. This building, with its thick walls, situated in the middle of a large yard, seemed the safest place of refuge in this part of the city. Many invalids were carried by on stretchers, and furniture vans, whose drivers were waiting for bargains, were pressed into use by the police to remove the sick.

Damage in City Hall Square.

The greatest damage was done when the fire reached City Hall Square. The First Baptist Church, a lofty brick building, first caught fire on the highest part of the spire. Soon the roof was in flames, and then the embers settled down on the unoccupied church building of St. Luke's Episcopal Parish and the quarters of the Veteran Firemen's Association. The tower of the First Unitarian Church, on Hawthorne Street, then became enveloped in flames, and in the space of a few moments every building in the square, with the exception of the City Hall Building, was in flames.

For a time it looked as if the City Hall structure, built of brick and separated from all other buildings by a wide area, might be saved. The hope was but momentary, however, for about 3 o'clock a tiny, flickering flame was seen gaining headway under the coping of the cupola. The flame licked the cupola, exposed the great bell in the tower, and crept down into the main structure. Then the entire structure was swept away, and a dozen new buildings in the vicinity had become ignited from the sparks and heat.

Within a half hour in this one square four churches and the City Hall were leveled to the ground. A four-story brick block at the corner of Congress and Shurtleff Streets was seemingly far removed from danger, and had been sought by many families as temporary storage for their effects. Suddenly came the cry that the block was afire. A tiny flame was seen clinging to the side of one of the dormer windows in the mansard roof. It grew and grew, until soon the entire side of the block was being consumed. Then the danger became real, and again men, women, and children, but a few moments before congratulating themselves on their distance from danger, were hurrying into the streets with all they possessed. Half an hour later the block was flat.

Behind the bank of flames families were cut off for a time from help and escape. East of Shawmut Avenue were scores of families burned out and homeless, who were helpless to convey their possessions to a place of safety. Steadily they were forced back by the flames, which were being hurled down upon them by the gale, until it became necessary, in order to save their lives, to retreat around the wharf frontage toward Revere.

Oil Tanks Blow Up.

Two representatives of the State Board of Charity were on the scene early, being sent by Acting Gov. Draper. The Boston charitable authorities were also prompt to give assistance, while the Salvation Army and the Associated Charities made every effort to care for the homeless. Thousands were sent to Boston, where they were furnished with food and lodging for the night at numerous public buildings, such as schools, armories, &c.

Various halls, churches, and other public buildings in the unburned section of Chelsea were thrown open to shelter the unfortunates.

In addition to offers of financial aid and shelter for the homeless came guarantees from bakeries, dairy farms, and provision dealers of a plentiful supply of food. A Relief Committee was formed, and a meeting will be held at 9 o'clock to-morrow morning, when definite measures of relief will be considered.

Suddenly there was a terrific explosion, and the oil tanks of the Tidewater Oil Company on the water front burst into flames. Thousands of gallons of oil were soon burning. The smoke was seen as far away as Portsmouth, N. H. In a measure the black smoke was a blessing, for enveloping as it did the showers of burning embers, it smothered the fire in them and became a protecting mantle which lay low over Chelsea for a mile or more to the east, keeping off the fire and flames from many homes which would doubtless otherwise have been swept away.

From the western part of the city, where the fire started, to the burning oil tanks on the water front was a distance of something like a mile and a quarter. In breadth the fire covered an area something like three-quarters of a mile wide, cutting the city diagonally.

As the fire made its way toward the water front there was much excitement among Captains and crews of the shipping. Several tugs were dispatched to the scene, but as it was low tide they had considerable difficulty in towing the vessels out into the stream. All the vessels were pulled out to safety, although two schooners were beginning to blaze. The flames were extinguished without much damage.

The East Boston works of the Standard Oil Company are in close proximity to the burned dwellings, and for a time it was feared that they would be reached by the flames, but they were saved.

Five banks were among the buildings burned, the County Savings, Chelsea Savings, Chelsea Trust Company, Winnisimmet National, and the Provident Coöperative. The funds of all these banks, with the exception of the County Savings Bank, are still in the vault. The money and securities of the County Bank were taken to Boston before the fire reached the building.

WAR DEPARTMENT TO HELP.

Will Furnish Tents and Rations to Help Chelsea Sufferers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The War Department will take care of the homeless in Chelsea and East Boston who have been driven from their homes by the fire. When word was received here to-night that at least 10,000 were homeless the news was conveyed to Assistant Secretary of War Oliver. Promptly he announced that the Government would aid in every way in its power if request is made.

Representative E. W. Roberts, whose home is in Chelsea, will call upon the department in the morning, just as soon as he hears from his constituents. If it is necessary, a request will be made on the Federal Government for tents and rations to help the needy and the suffering.

It is not believed, however, that Government aid, aside from the loan of army tents, will be asked. If assistance is required it will be forthcoming.

EAGER TO WELCOME FLEET AT SAN DIEGO

PLAN FOUR DAYS OF GAYETY

Example of Pacific Coast Hospitality for the Men on the Ships—Gifts for the Admiral.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., April 12.—The Atlantic fleet is reported to-night by wireless as well on its way to San Diego, and will be in position to anchor about 1 o'clock on Tuesday. The ships will lie in division formation, or four lines of four vessels each, off Coronado Beach.

Thousands of persons made the trip to Coronado to-day to view the anchorage grounds. Other throngs gathered along the wharves to get another view of the little tender Yankton and the repair ship Panther, which made the trip with the fleet through Magellan Strait, and was anchored in the harbor.

The last details of the welcoming ceremonies in this, the first Pacific home port to be touched by the fleet, have been completed. The ships will remain here four days before resuming the journey up the coast.

Upon casting anchor Tuesday afternoon the flagship Connecticut will be visited by Mayor Forward of San Diego and by Chairman William C. Layton of the local Reception Committee. They will extend to Rear Admiral Thomas a formal greeting, and will submit to him for approval the detailed programme of the four days' stay.

Tuesday evening red signal fires along the beach will burn a welcome to the ships, and the men-of-war will be illuminated by thousands of incandescent bulbs. A searchlight drill will add to the evening spectacle. A banquet to the flag and commanding officers at the Hotel Del Coronado Tuesday night will round out the first day.

On Wednesday the full fleet brigade of nearly 5,000 men will be landed from the ships at noon, and at 2 P. M. will begin a parade through the principal streets to the City Park, where formal exercises of welcome will be held. Here Gov. J. N. Gillett of California and Mayor Forward will voice the greetings of the Commonwealth and municipality. Admiral Thomas will be asked to accept in behalf of himself and the officers and men of the fleet the freedom of the city. He also will receive a silver-mounted cut glass buffet service as a token of appreciation from the residents of this city. Admiral Thomas will accept in trust for Admiral Evans a golden key to the city presented by the citizens and a sword given by the G. A. R.

The city and the fleet will be illuminated Wednesday night and there will be also on this evening a ball at the Hotel Del Coronado in honor of Admiral Thomas and the officers of the fleet. Admirals Sperry and Emery will receive gold medals in commemoration of this visit.

On Thursday there will be a picnic in the country for officers and boat races for the men. Thursday night there will be an elaborate display of fireworks from a barge anchored in the bay. Friday forenoon and afternoon the enlisted men will have the freedom of the city. Friday night a ball to the junior officers at the Hotel Del Coronado will mark the close of the fleet's visit, the ships getting under way at 6 A. M. Saturday for San Pedro and the other ports of California.

ARREST FOR MURDER OF J. T. ROSENHEIMER

Italian Named Monaco in Custody in Indiana, After Story Told by His Wife.

BETRAYED HIM, IT'S SAID

Rich Needle Manufacturer, Slain in His Garden at Pelham, Long Thought an Italian's Victim.

Special to The New York Times.

FORT WAYNE, Ind., April 12.—Police activity in solving the Rosenheimer murder at Pelham Manor, N. Y., last June was transferred to this city to-night when Chief of Police Marks of Pelham Manor arrived to consult with Chief M. H. Ankenneruck here regarding the arrest at Huntington, Ind., of an Italian named Frank Monaco, who had been denounced by his reputed wife as the murderer of the Pelham Manor merchant. Monaco was arrested ten days ago.

Chief Marks, when interviewed last night by THE TIMES's correspondent, declined to discuss the case further than to say that he will know fully what he is doing if he takes Monaco out of the State of Indiana back to New York.

"The New York papers hounded us during the former investigations of this case," said Chief Marks, "and I do not even want them to know that I am out here."

It is believed that the theory on which Chief Marks is now acting is that Monaco was hired to kill Rosenheimer. This was a theory on which the police formerly proceeded, but it was abandoned when no clues to substantiate it were unearthed.

He has already obtained requisition papers, and intends taking Monaco, his wife, and a man friend of the woman, Delucia by name, back to New York. He declined to state the purpose of his visit to this city or his conference with the local police.

A few days ago Monaco came to Huntington, a town twenty-five miles west of this city, from New York, and going before a magistrate swore out a warrant for the arrest of Delucia and the woman now in custody whom he claimed as his wife. He alleged that they had eloped from New York.

Clinging to Delucia and denying that Monaco had any legal claim upon her, the woman denounced Monaco as the murderer of Rosenheimer, and called on the police to arrest him. Monaco was at once detained by the police, and his photograph and description of him were sent to Chief Marks, who wired to hold all three of the prisoners.

Julius T. Rosenheimer, Secretary of the London Needle Company, was slain in the presence of his wife at his home, The Roses, in Pelham, at dusk on June 18 last year. Mr. Rosenheimer and his wife were strolling along the pony path in the garden, when two men jumped from behind a clump of bushes and attacked the merchant, who was well advanced in years.

"Oh, mother, they are killing me," he cried, as he fell under the blows of his assailants. There was a short tussle in the quiet of the evening, Mrs. Rosenheimer screamed and fainted, and her son Edward, who was taking boxing lessons from his instructor, "Kid" Everett, in the house, rushed into the garden.

Mr. Rosenheimer was found in the gravel path with his head beaten in. He was dying and did not regain consciousness. One of his waistcoat pockets was half turned out. In the corner was $7 in bills, and in a hip pocket were his commutation ticket and $60 more. His gold watch, with the initials "J. T. R." engraved on it, was missing. A part of the watch chain had been torn away from its fastening.

There were several camps of laborers, some of them Italians, in the neighborhood at the time, and many arrests were made, but none of these resulted in a charge of murder. Mrs. Rosenheimer, herself well on in years, had been so shocked by the attack on her husband and his cry to her that she could not recall how the two assailants looked.

The day after the murder was committed Edward Rosenheimer, the son, offered a reward of $5,000 for the arrest of his father's murderers. This was supplemented by an offer of $500 reward by the Pelham Village authorities. The Rosenheimer reward was withdrawn later because so many indiscriminate arrests were being made.

On June 24 an Italian named Benedetto Gentile confessed to the murder of Mr. Rosenheimer. It was found afterward that he was crazy.

The Rosenheimer family has had private detectives at work on the case ever since the crime was committed. The police of Pelham and New Rochelle have believed that two desperate laborers in one of the many neighboring camps killed the rich old man. The name of Monaco was not mentioned in any of the investigations, nor was any one of that name involved in the arrests following the crime.

Mrs. Edward Rosenheimer, daughter-in-law of the murdered man, said at The Roses last night that none of the family had been informed of any arrest for Mr. Rosenheimer's murder. Her husband, she said, was in Europe. As far as she knew there had been no recent activity in the search for the murderer or murderers of her husband's father.

"We have not been informed by any police official that an arrest has been made," said Mrs. Rosenheimer.

"Has any report been made to your family that an Italian named Monaco was suspected?" she was asked.

"None that I know of," she replied.

In the Pelham Police Station the Sergeant on duty said that his chief had been out of town for two days, but he didn't know where he had gone to. He knew nothing of an arrest in the Rosenheimer murder case.

GUFFEY BEATS BRYAN MEN.

Penrose Victorious in Pittsburg—Dalzell Defeated for Delegate.

PITTSBURG, April 12.—Many of the contests in yesterday's primary election remain undecided at midnight, and the indications are that the result in some instances will not be known for several days.

While figures on candidates for delegates to the Democratic National Convention are not obtainable to-night, it is practically certain that the Bryan forces have suffered a defeat in Western Pennsylvania. In Allegheny County the returns, so far as tabulated, indicate that they have not won a single delegate, either to the National Convention or to the State Convention. The party organization, led by Col. J. M. Guffey, opposed instructing delegates to the Denver Convention, while the fight for instructed delegates was made by the Bryan Democratic League.

In Allegheny County and in a number of other counties of the western part of the State Senator Penrose won a signal victory. In this county eleven out of thirteen candidates for the lower house of the State Legislature and the two candidates for State Senator were on the ticket of the so-called "Regulars," who support the Senator. These candidates for the Legislature were all supported by the opponents of local option.

One of the surprises of the election is the defeat of Congressman John Dalzell, leader of the protective tariff forces in Congress, for delegate to the National Convention. Mr. Dalzell was renominated for Congress by a decisive majority. George T. Oliver, a leader of the "Regulars," who triumphed in the legislative contests, was defeated for delegate to the National Convention.

BANKERS IN NATION OPPOSE ALDRICH BILL

Poll of Them Outside Great Financial Centres Shows Few Favoring It.

AGAINST RESERVE SECTION

Western Representatives Plan to Provide for Asset Currency in the Measure by an Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 12.—That the bankers of the chief cities of the country outside the great financial centres are opposed to the Aldrich Currency bill now pending in Congress is shown by a poll which will be printed in The Tribune to-morrow. A canvass of the National banks in business centres shows few favorable to the measure in its present form. Even the State banks and the trust companies not directly concerned oppose the bill. The result of the canvass was:

Analyzing the objections to the Aldrich bill as disclosed by the canvass, The Tribune says:

"There are some who are willing to accept it as a temporary guard against possible renewals of the recent panic, but the majority declare it to be not only a useless, but a harmful, measure. Even those who look upon the act as a possible measure of relief declare it must be changed in many details to evade injury to the financial conditions.

"The opposition centres on Sections 8 and 11 of the act. The first-named section is that which provides that the country banks shall carry 12 per cent. of their cash reserve in their vaults, and the last-named prohibits the investment of any bank's funds in a corporation or association in which the officers of the bank are interested.

"The reserve provision, the opposing bankers declare, would mean the withdrawal of large amounts of cash from circulation and would result only in a greater stringency. The only banks that will not be injured by this provision, the bankers of the smaller cities say, are those in the large reserve cities such as New York and Chicago. They declare that the only persons to gain if this section becomes a law will be the large bondholders, who could unload to build up extra reserves.

"The eleventh section, referring to the loans to the corporations in which the bank officials are interested, is opposed on the ground that it will force the reorganization of the Directorate of practically all of the large corporations. They add that this provision would work against the selection of high-class business men as National bank Directors, in that they would not be willing to give up their connection with private institutions in order to qualify as holders of office in the bank Directorate."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Western Republicans in the House have organized a raid on the Aldrich Currency bill which may have the effect of so twisting the measure that asset currency will be legalized in times of financial stress. These members have the support of the Democrats, and the movement has assumed formidable proportions.

An amendment has been drawn by which National banks may organize banking associations in cities where the capitalization of the banks involved exceeds $10,000,000. The association then may permit banks needing additional currency to issue notes on commercial paper or negotiable securities which it approves. Every bank which is a member of the association would be held individually responsible for the issue. The association also would be liable, and behind it would stand the guarantee of the Government.

The plan would localize the distribution of currency when the necessity for more money arises. It would let down the bars, however, to various forms of bonds and securities barred by the Senate bill, and also open up a broad path in the direction of asset currency. This last phase is the one that is giving the financial experts of Congress the most concern.

POLICE HOLD BACK PARLOR SOCIALISTS

They Have Trouble Keeping Order as Throng Rushes for Dr. Grant's Parish House.

SOCIALISM EPIDEMIC THERE

One Speaker Advocates Revolution as the Shortest Route to World-wide Contentment.

Policemen had to be called last night to hold back the crowd that wanted to jam itself into the Church of the Ascension parish house in West Eleventh Street, where, after the regular sermon in the church, all subjects may be freely discussed. Few ever are discussed, however, except Socialism.

The Rev. Alexander F. Irvine, curate, again occupied the pulpit at the church last night. He talked about poverty, saying that the statement of Jesus to Judas, "Ye have the poor always with you," was sarcastic, not prophetic. Last Sunday night his subject was: "Was Christ a Christian?"

The after-church open discussions in the parish house have become more notable than the sermons in the church within the last month. But many who come primarily to enter into these discussions hear the sermon beforehand. There was not an empty seat in the big church last night.

Mr. Irvine told the audience that it would have to go out into the street to get into the parish house at the close of the services in the church, and he told them further that when the parish house was filled the doors would be closed.

In consequence, long before the final hymn had been sung in the church, the crowd inside began to get out into the street and around to the parish house in Eleventh Street. Once in the street, the streaming audience broke into a run, each Socialist wanting to get to the door first, till the race developed into a sort of rout.

But the parish house doors were not open. The forward end of the racing throng rammed up against the vestibule doors and stopped. The rear ranks pushed on. Women in the crowd suffered most.

Fifteen minutes passed by before the doors were opened. Then there was a wild rush to get in. Caught between swirling columns of men, women were lifted clear of the ground.

Police on the Scene.

Several police came up, and with the help of some of the church ushers closed the doors on some 500 clamoring persons. The parish house was packed to the limit. For a time the speakers were interrupted by the hoarse murmuring of the throng outside.

Mr. Irvine, holding in hand the silver bell with which he gives a speaker much or little time, opened the discussion. He said it had been suggested that the speakers confine themselves somewhat to the theme of the sermon previously delivered in the church, and not to fly off on any sort of old subject that popped into their heads. Furthermore, instead of opening the house to anybody who wanted to unburden his soul of sentiments on how to govern the world, he would have two or three well-known men talk about things they had seen. They were to have fifteen minutes each in which to talk, and not the three minutes usually allotted.

The subject before the house was "Poverty." There were dozens and dozens who were itching to get up and say that the way to cut out poverty was to bring on Socialism. Charles Johnson, formerly a British Magistrate in India, was introduced as the first speaker.

He said that in India there is no capitalism, little or no landlordism, a remarkably low tax rate, and a cheap government. The Peninsula is governed by 1,000 men, whose salaries average about $5,000.

Starvation in India.

And yet a large proportion of the population is on the verge of starvation all the time, he said. He deduced from all this that in some cases starvation and all the woes of poverty come from something else than landlordism and capitalism. In India, he said, it came because religion encouraged early marriages and the production of children as fast as possible. The increase of population had simply outrun the reproduction of the earth.

When the discussion was presently thrown open a man declaimed passionately against the theory of Mr. Johnson. He was sure that India's woes were caused by her misgovernment, and that Socialism would straighten out the tangle there if it had a chance.

Charles Edward Russell was introduced as a fifteen-mniute talker. Before proceeding to tell what an ideal Government New Zealand has he took a fall out of Mr. Johnson, who had said that English rule in India, though that of a despotic Government, had been kind and wise. It had spent millions on a Durbar recently, and that while millions of men were starving. It spent $100,000,000 annually on a military armament abroad.

Going on to New Zealand, Mr. Russell said that poverty was so nearly unknown there that it was considered a disease. Why? Because the Government owned the trusts.

A Near-by "Foreign Country."

"I want to speak of a foreign country a little nearer home than India," said a man. "Last week I was in Jersey City—" The audience lost its tenseness for a moment and actually laughed. Then the speaker told a harrowing tale of a man who had started out to buy a pair of shoes for his child, but had been diverted by the Jersey rum demon.

That helped along the discussion, too, because a Socialist speaker jumped up and said that if "the previous speaker" had been subjected to the burdens imposed by capitalism he would no doubt have been willing to forget his troubles in skylarking around with the demon. But if Socialism—

A speaker interrupted with a suggestion in favor of some sort of revolution to bring in Socialism.

"'There ain't going to be any revolution,'" said Mr. Irvine, quoting H. G. Wells. "There are hundreds of thousands of Socialists who do not agree with the speaker who has just had the floor. Socialism is coming about through evolution, not revolution, and it is coming about quick when the proletariat wakes up. And there will be others in this world movement, too, besides the proletariat.

"I don't suppose there is anybody here who knows what time it is. Well, it is twenty minutes past 10—past our time for closing. Nobody here would care about the time if we talked on for four more hours. But really, comrades and brothers, we must close."

And it was done.

ARCHITECTS AT ODDS.

Strife in American Institute Over New Sing Sing Plans.

The effect of a bitter dispute between the older and younger man in the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects over the plans for the new prison buildings of Sing Sing is only now beginning to wear away.

Details of the competition were sent out several weeks ago. They did not meet with the approval of many architects of this city. In the first place, the plans which were to be awarded first prize would become the property of the State, and this would enable the State to use the plans of one architect and employ another to do the real work. Soon after the details of the competition had been read by the Executive Committee of the American Institute of Architects a resolution was passed condemning the programme and calling on members of the association not to enter the competition under such terms.

The attention of Gov. Hughes was called to the matter. He at once instructed the Secretary of the special commission on plans for State building to send circular letters to those architects who had received the programme of competition asking if they intended to submit plans. A dozen or more members of the New York chapter replied that they would submit plans.

When this became known there was indignation in the chapter's Executive Council. A special meeting of the chapter was called for last Wednesday night, and was largely attended. The ostensible object of the meeting was to consider certain changes in an amendment now before the Ways and Means Committee of the Assembly. As it stands at present, the State law requires the State architect to draw plans for all State buildings. It does not provide for the letting of work to any outside architect except by special act of the Legislature.

William W. Bosworth, who attended the meeting Wednesday night, said yesterday that the younger architects had been laboring under the mistaken idea that the older ones had tried to crowd them out or take an unfair advantage.

POLICE STOP SUNDAY BALL.

Umpire and Batteries of Staten Island Teams Arrested and Held.

Twenty-four hundred baseball enthusiasts were rooting valiantly at Alaska Park, West New Brighton, yesterday afternoon, when the police appeared and arrested the umpire and four of the players on the charge of violating the Sunday law.

It was the opening game of the baseball season on Staten Island. The Alaskas of Staten Island were playing the Dovers of Manhattan, and several hundred friends of the Manhattan team had gone over to see the game. The third inning was just beginning, when Detectives Devling, Dangreau, and Bebeneck of the West New Brighton Station left the bleachers and called a halt. They arrested John Daly, umpire; William Langton and Frank Sullivan, the battery for the Alaskas, and Cornelius Donovan and John Anderson, battery for the Dovers.

The five prisoners were taken to the station. A crowd of 300 or more boys followed the little processsion from the baseball field to the doors of the police station, but there was no disorder. The five prisoners were released on $500 bail each for a hearing this morning.

GIFT OF HISTORIC MISSILE.

Cannon Ball Fired from Fort Sumter Given to National Museum.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The United States National Museum has just received as a gift from Dr. W. Hutson Ford, now residing in Washington, a forty-pound cannon ball fired from Fort Sumter at the beginning of the engagement on April 12, 1861, at the opening of the civil war.

"This cannon ball was fired by Major Anderson from Fort Sumter on the 12th of April, 1861," he said.

"I was one of the surgeons of the hospital at Mount Pleasant near by, across the lagoon, behind Sullivan's Island, and as there was nothing to do, there being no wounded, in company with a colleague I visited the island on the 13th of April. Seeing these shots lying in front of the floating battery on the sand bank, I brought one away, foreseeing its historic value. I then took the ball successively to Charleston and Aiken, S. C., thence to St. Louis, where it remained until I brought it to Washington."

PROGRESS ON NEW BRIDGE.

First Arch Put in Place on Blackwell's Island Structure.

With the placing in position of the first steel arch, the Long Island City approach to the new Queens Bridge is taking shape, and residents of that borough are beginning to think that at last they may find a solution to the problem of transportation between that borough and Manhatan besides he Thirty-fourth Street Ferry, which seems to be slowly dropping out of existence. Ever since the new subway between Manhattan and Brooklyn opened for traffic business on the Thirty-fourth Street Ferry dropped off to such an extent that the two new steel ferryboats, the Hempstead and Babylon, built expressly for service on this route, were laid off, and it is understood are now up for sale.

Instead of going to Long Island City, passengers east of Jamaica now get to Manhattan by way of Brooklyn and the Subway. It is anticipated that when the Subway in Brooklyn is finished as far as the Flatbush Avenue Station of the Long Island Railroad there will be another slump in ferry traffic.

But one ticket seller and one ticket chopper were on duty at the Long Island City end of this ferry yesterday morning, and at times the string of passengers waiting to purchase tickets extended out of the waiting-room doors.

THE INTELLIGENT TERRAPIN

On View in the Aquarium—He Can Walk a Chalk Line at Command.

Pinkey, so called because of the color of his shell, is one of the most interesting exhibits at the Aquarium, but one not often viewed by the public. Pinkey is an albino terrapin, one so rare that L. B. Spencer, in charge of fresh water fish, always brings him out for those who go "behind the scenes." Those in charge of the exhibit speak of him as a freak.

At present Pinkey is living a contented life in a tin-lined box under a glass tank containing sea anemones in Mr. Spencer's domain. He is exhibited as another argument in support of his custodian's belief that the lowest forms of animal life have a certain amount of reasoning power. Pinkey can walk a chalk line at the command of Mr. Spencer, and he can also wave his head to signify that feeding time has arrived.

The terrapin came from Texas some five years ago. His color at once attracted attention, and the Director, believing that he would add to the attractions, turned him out in a large tank with others of his species. He did not thrive, and, apparently disgusted with his surroundings, refused to eat.

When he was too weak to walk he was turned over to Mr. Spencer, and christened Pinkey. Mr. Spencer began feeding him by prying his mouth open with a stick, and shoving killie fish down his throat. After several days of this Pinkey's interest in life revived. Then he began to show a fondness for Mr. Spencer, and persisted in following him about the room. He began to know when it was dinner time. Now Mr. Spencer will stand half way across the room and call to him. Out of his den will come Pinkey, and with many a thump of his hard shell on the floor crawl to Mr. Spencer's feet. But his greatest stunt is walking the chalk line.

"Pinkey, you have been drinking," says Mr. Spencer. "Show me," he says, and Pinkey starts off down the line.

"That's not so much," said one visitor after such an exhibition. "The beast just kept on going after you put him down."

From the marks about the edge of his shell Mr. Spencer believes that Pinkey is reaching the old-age limit. He is perhaps 70 years old, and rheumatism is getting into his left front leg, which is already stiff at the joint.

When you go to the Aquarium again ask to see Mr. Spencer's real albino terrapin. His acquaintance is worth making, even if it is only to see him scratch his head and brighten up when Mr. Spencer speaks to him.

11 BOATS MISSING IN PELHAM BAY

Police Fear Many More Than First Reported Were Lost in Saturday's Gale.

THE WORST BLOW IN YEARS

Waves in the Sound 25 Feet High—Body of Drowned Fisherman Found Off Locust Point.

Eleven of the fifty or more fishing boats caught in Pelham Bay by the sixty-mile westerly gale of Saturday afternoon were still unaccounted for yesterday afternoon. The police fear now that several more men were lost than the three who were seen to drown on Saturday. All day yesterday the police dragged the bay in an effort to recover the bodies of the three men who went down about 1,000 yards south of Locust Point. Only one body was recovered. It was identified as that of William H. Finkelnagel of 1,176 Union Avenue, the Bronx.

Late yesterday afternoon Lieut. Smith of the City Island Police Station said that his information showed that five fishing boats from Lohbauer's fishing station at Throgg's Neck, an equal number from Dixon's boathouse, City Island, and one from Klaus's boathouse, also of City Island, were still missing. Mrs. Klaus said that she was afraid that the boat missing from her establishment contained a man and two boys, as a party of that description had hired a boat from her and were still missing.

Yesterday afternoon the Westchester and City Island Police Stations were called up by some person in Manhattan who asked for information of Frank S. Arst and Augustus Brown of 408 East Sixty-fourth Street, who left for City Island on a fishing trip at 4 o'clock Saturday morning and had not been heard from since.

All day yesterday the naphtha launches owned by City Island and Throgg's Neck boatmen explored the shores of Pelham Bay and Hart's Island to find the missing boats. Several boats, believed to have been deserted by their occupants, were found, two on Hart's Island, one on David's Island, and several on the Long Island shore. The two boats that were driven on Hart's Island by the gale contained five men, according to Peter Golden, an Assistant Warden in the insane asylum.

"The men who landed here were the scaredest, wettest-looking bunch I ever saw," said Golden, "and we couldn't get anything out of them as to who they were. One man was so scared that he didn't know whether he was from New York, Jersey City, or Throgg's Neck."

Robert Cochran, owner of the Prospect Hotel, on the City Island shore facing Hart's Island roads, has been on City Island and thirty-nine years, and he said that in all that time he did not remember a gale that equaled in severity that of Saturday. From his front porch Mr. Cochran watched the storm, and said that at times the seas must have been nearly twenty-five feet high. How any rowboat managed to live out that gale was beyond his comprehension, he said. At times, he added, the Stepping Stone Lighthouse, out in the Sound, between City and Long Islands, was completely obscured by the giant waves that broke over it.

While the storm was at its height, Mr. Cochran said, he saw a boat about 200 yards off shore, which a man was struggling to keep afloat. Cochran got the assistance of the tug Charles E. Russell and went after the man. He proved to be a fat man who could not speak English. He was badly scared, but refused to leave his boat.

"The result of his crazy obstinacy," said Mr. Cochran, "was that we took him in tow, despite his protests, and brought him to land. Within a minute after we landed him he was back in his boat, and trying to work his way out into the Sound in the face of the gale.

On one point all the City Island and Throgg's Neck boatmen are agreed, and that is that a lot of green men and boys, who know nothing about boating, come to those places from the city for the fishing. It was said by one of these men that the reason the boat with the three men in it capsized was that the men all crowded together in the bow in an attempt to lift the anchor they upset the craft.

The logs of the transatlantic and coastwise liners that made port yesterday showed that the gale was just as fierce at sea as in New York and vicinity. One of the first of the transatlantic fleet to get in was the German steamship Harburg, from Hamburg and Shields, which reported that at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, while the westerly gale was at its worst, she passed the great German sailing ship the Preussen, the largest of the world's sail-propelled craft. The Preussen, which is bound for New York, is one of the German show ships, and her arrival has been awaited with the greatest interest by the shipping interests. When the Harburg passed the Preussen she was fighting against the wind about forty miles east of Sandy Hook. At a late hour last night the Preussen was still unreported.

The American liner New York and the Minnetonka of the Atlantic Transport Line, also in yesterday, reported that they weathered the big gale without sustaining any damage. On Thursday, however, the New York poked her nose into a gale that was so stiff that several of the bolts holding the bobstay were loosened. The Minnetonka also got a taste of this gale, but she went through it undamaged. Other ships in yesterday that reported rough weather were the Fritjof Nansen, from Havana, the Manuel Calvo from Spain, the Seguranca from Cuba, and the Castilian Prince from Brazil.

Swift Auto Rams a Tree.

ROSLYN, L. I., April 12.—An automobile in which there were five men was wrecked about two miles outside of Roslyn in the direction of Mineola late this afternoon. The car left the road and ran into a tree as it was descending a steep grade. Dr. Claghorn of the Nassau Hospital at Mineola was summoned and attended the men. They were not much hurt. He did not take their names.

Stranger a Suicide Under Street Car.

An unidentified man about 35 years old, and poorly dressed, was killed by a southbound car of the Third Avenue Line last night at Hester Street and the Bowery. Motorman Thomas Clark said he believed the man deliberately threw himself under the car with the intention of commiting suicide. Clark, who was arrested, said he saw the man standing as though waiting for the car, but thought nothing of it until he saw him step onto the track. He put on the brakes, but it was too late. The man seemed to dive directly under the front of the car. He was 5 feet 7 inches in height, weighing 160 pounds, with brown sandy hair, mustache, and beard. He wore a blue overall jacket, dark, well-worn trousers, and a shabby overcoat.

LABOR STILL AFTER METZ.

C. F. U. Suspicious of His Opposition to Municipal Ownership.

A new ground of complaint against Controller Metz was discovered at yesterday's meeting of the Central Federated Union in a report made by Delegate Lynch of Engineers' Union 20, in which he said, after stating that the Controller had put himself on record against municipal ownership, that it had been reported to him that the Controller is a large stockholder in the Edison Electric Light Company.

James Holland of the Eccentric Firemen's Union said that the plant at the Williamsburg Bridge, which cost $250,000, was lying idle, and that the contract for operating it had been given to the Edison Company.

Delegate Scofield of the International Association of Machinists said that the contract for operating the Brooklyn Bridge was also in the hands of the Edison Company.

It was decided to appoint a committee to wait on the Controller and ask him how he actually stands with regard to municipal ownership and the operation of city plants.

WANT THE POLICE PUNISHED.

Carpenters Urge Federated Union to Action on Union Square Incident.

Even the Socialists made no comment at yesterday's meeting of the Central Federated Union when resolutions submitted by Carpenters' Union No. 309 for indorsement denouncing the police for preventing the proposed unemployed demonstration at Union Square on March 28 were read. The delegates were inclined to give the subject a wide berth, and the reading of the resolutions was followed by a cold silence.

The resolutions advised bringing "the unlawful actions and the outrages of the police before the courts."

The resolutions were referred to the Executive Committee, which means the shelving of them.

HARBURGER ON ANARCHY.

Coroner Says All Advocates of Violence Must Be Banished from the Land.

Coroner Julius Harburger presented an American flag to the Edward Everett Lodge No. 97, of the Independent Order Bnai Brith, last night at the Harlem Casino, and during his speech said:

"The starry flag of our country should be the only flag unfurled. The red flag of anarchy must go. We have no room on American soil for the bomb thrower, the dynamiter, the midnight assassin, and the preacher of sedition, who misure the liberty that is accorded them.

"They seek an asylum in our Republic and teach doctrines opposed to the fundamental principles of the Nation. Every one of them should be deported. None should be allowed to land. They cannot be defended. They are criminals and in the criminal class. Their touch is poison and their acts are the most dastardly snakelike and in every way dangerous to the country. No creed will own them. They must be crushed out of existence. President Roosevelt and Secretary Straus are to be commended on their stand to oust them from this land."

Rabbi Silverman of the Temple Emanu-El also spoke.

DR. AKED HITS TRACK BETTING

Praises Gov. Hughes and Sees No Reason to Despair.

"Moral causes always win," said the Rev. Charles F. Aked in speaking of the race track anti-gambling bills yesterday morning at the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church.

The present attitude of Gov. Hughes regarding these bills was characterized by Mr. Aked as "faint yet persevering." "We musct not take these words to mean a discouraged frame of mind," he added, "or the mental attitude of one who has given up the fight. Rather is it the war cry of those whose joy is not in possession, but in conquest, of those to whom accomplishment is immortality.

"The attempt of Gov. Hughes to secure by legislation the prohibition of race track gambling is one of the nob'est efforts of our time. He has flung himself at the head of organized sin.

"We need not despair of the results of last week's vote. We shall see the stamping out of this brood of vipers hatched by the miasma of the turf.

"If it can be shown that race-track gambling is what Benjamin Disraeli called it, 'the gigantic angel of national demoralization,' then laws must be passed to sweep away the evil."

A MILLION WORKMEN TO MEET IN PROTEST

Mass Meetings to Be Held Next Week the Country Over to Demand New Labor Laws.

AGAINST COURT DECISIONS

Want the Boycott Legalized and Labor Organizations Exempted from Hepburn Law Penalty.

The representatives of the American Federation of Labor announced yesterday that besides the mass meeting in Grand Central Palace next Sunday evening to protest against the labor decisions of the United States Supreme Court and to demand that Congress pass the labor amendment to the Sherman anti-trust law, mass meetings of a similar character had been called in every important city in the United States. Some of these meetings will be held on Sunday and some on Monday, and they estimated that an aggregate of over 1,000,000 workmen will attend the meetings. The labor amendment exempts labor organizations from the provision against combinations in restraint of trade.

The Central Federated Union at its meeting yesterday issued credentials to a volunteer committee of twenty to preserve order at the meeting and act as ushers. Chairman William B. Coakley of the Committee of Arrangements for the mass meeting said in a report:

"This meeting will be the most important that has been held by organized labor in a generation. It involves the question as to whether the trades unions can be any longer a benefit to the working people. I believe that all the meetings throughout the country will be well attended on Sunday and Monday night. President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor, who is to speak at the meeting in Grand Central Palace, asked me to urge upon the delegates here to see that there is a large attendance in order to show that labor is alive to the present situation.

"We have decided ot invite all the Congressmen in this district and all the city officials, and will reserve boxes for them when we know the names of those who are attending. Up to 7:30 P. M. people will be admitted by ticket, after which only those for whom there is room will be admitted."

General Organizer Herman Robinson of the American Federation of Labor, who represents Gompers in the East, made the following report later when the meeting was over:

"The meetings will not be so much meetings of protest as to demand remedial legislation. Probably at no time in the history of organized labor in the United States have so many mass meetings been held simultaneously as will be held next Sunday and Monday. The matter is of vital importance not only on account of the wording of the United States Supreme Court decisions, but on account of the different interpretations that can be put on them. They can be so construed as to make it impossible for unions to enforce their demands."

Another delegate said the unions might as well go out of business if they become apathetic at the present time, and it would be the fault of organized labor if remedial legislation was not obtained.

Besides President Gompers, James Duncan, Vice President of the American Federation of Labor; James O'Connell, President of the International Association of Machinists, and John Mitchell will be among the speakers. The officers of the American Federation of Labor take the stand that the placing of firms on the "unfair list" against which the unions have grievances, should be made legal. The boycott, they say, is one of the strongest weapons of the unions.

Strike Called at League Ball Grounds.

Delegate Blumberg of the Brotherhood of Carpenters reported to the Central Federated Union yesterday that he had ordered a strike of carpenters at the American League baseball grounds against the employment of non-union men. He said that before he ordered the strike he had tried in vain to find out who was responsible, and one of the men he had seen had denounced the unions. The meeting directed all labor union baseball fans to desist from going to the grounds until union men are employed.

AUTO RACERS WILL CONFER ON ROUTE

St. Chaffray May Try to Take De Dion Through Alaska by Skaguay Road.

ZUST MAY AWAIT THOMAS

Will Allow Time to the American Car from Vladivostok—Lieut. Koeppen Awaits Instructions by Cable.

61ST DAY OF THE RACE.

Car.	Reported.	Distance.
*Thomas	Valdez	6036
†Zust	San Francisco	4090
†De Dion	San Francisco	4090
‡Protos	Kelton, Utah	2616

*Alaskan trails found impassable. Car takes steamer for return to Seattle and new start for Vladivostok.
†On steamer for Seattle, due to-day.
‡Returned to Ogden for repairs.

When the steamer City of Puebla reaches Seattle to-day the question as to what course will be followed by the French and Italian cars in the New York to Paris race, in view of the impassability of the Alaskan trail, will be taken up. On leaving San Francisco on Friday G. Bourcier St. Chaffray, who is conducting the French car, declared he would take a steamer to Skaguay if he learned that the Valdez-Fairbanks route could not be traversed.

There will be a steamer leaving Seattle this afternoon for Skaguay, which St. Chaffray could take, but the Skaguay-Dawson route is considered less practicable than that followed by the Government mails through Valdez. The De Dion car might proceed on the railroad track as far as White Pass, if it could obtain permission to use the roadway, but the road would be impenetrable.

While the Zust car will go to Vladivostok and take the same route that the American car will follow to Paris, it is not yet settled on what steamer the crew will sail. A steamer will leave Seattle on Wednesday for Yokohama which would enable the car to cross Japan and reach Vladivostok from a Japanese port on the western coast, and probably make better time than could be made by waiting for the regular steamer to Vladivostok from Seattle. The Italians, however, have shown a sporting spirit from the start of the race, and there is little probability that they would attempt to leave the United States until the American car could return and sail with them. This is especially true in view of the agreement between the representatives of the two cars, made in anticipation of the possibility of being unable to proceed over the original route.

By virtue of that agreement the Thomas car will receive in Siberia an allowance of time equal to the advantage it had in arriving at San Francisco. This would mean that it would have nine days longer in which to reach Paris than the Zust. By the agreement, also, the Italians would be obligated to go as far in Alaska as the Thomas before going to Vladivostok. There is reason to believe, however, that the Thomas managers would not insist on the completion of a fruitless trip if the Italians should await them at Seattle.

This will mean that the Zust will remain at Seattle for twelve days before crossing the Pacific, sailing on the steamer Quite, which leaves the Puget Sound port on April 25. The steamer Bertha, bearing the Thomas car, will by that time have returned to Seattle.

In view of the new conditions, Lieut. Koeppen of the German car cabled abroad for instructions what course to pursue and is expected to reach a decision to-day. The car is meantime at Ogden awaiting orders to proceed.

POLAR EXPEDITION SAILS.

Lieut. Bernard Will Study the Habits of Whales in the Arctic.

DUNKIRK, April 12.—The Jacques Cartier, bearing the polar expedition under command of Lieut. Bernard, sailed from here to-day. The primary object of the expedition is to investigate the theory that whales, which are now disappearing off Newfoundland, have sought refuge in the Barents Sea, in the Arctic Ocean, which is always free of ice.

The vessel carries a complete equipment for oceanography and magnetic appliances supplied by the Prince of Monaco.

SALE OF RARE OLD COINS.

German Collector's Treasures to be Auctioned on May 11.

American coin collectors are much interested in the coming auction of the coins and medals of North, Central, and South America, gathered by George F. Ulex of Hamburg, Germany, which will be held by Adolph Hess at Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, on May 11.

Mr. Ulex, one of the greatest of the Continental coin collectors, is well remembered in this country through the sale of his American gold coins in this city some years ago, when numerous American coins of great rarity brought record-breaking premiums.

One of the interesting brass coins to be sold is what is supposed to have been the first coin issued in America, which is ascribed to Sir Walter Raleigh's unsuccessful attempt in 1584 to establish a colony on the coast of North Carolina. On the obverse of this piece is a full-blown rose, upon a stem with two leaves, and around the border the quaint inscription, "As Soone As Wee to Bee Begunn Wee Did Begin to Be Undonn." The reverse shows a boy reclining, his elbow resting on a large skull, at his feet a rose growing, behind him being a house with three gables. This coin is a little larger than a half dollar, and of great rarity.

The collection to be sold embraces 4,074 lots of tokens and medals, many of which have not been offered for sale in recent years, and it is particularly complete in the early Spanish coins which from time to time supplied the need for a circulating medium throughout the greater part of the New World.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

MADRID, April 12.—Announcement is made in the official Gazette of a new extradition treaty between the United States and Spain, negotiations for which have been going on for some time past.

HAMMERSTEIN IN BERLIN.

Asked What He's After, He Says He'd Like to Engage the Kaiser.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 12.—Oscar Hammerstein arrived here to-day.

"I am prepared to camp in Berlin until I get what I want," he said to me this afternoon.

"What are you after?" I inquired.

"I'd like to engage the Kaiser, but he's out of town," Mr. Hammerstein replied.

Mr. Hammerstein this evening heard d'Albert's "Tiefland," an opera comique, with a view to acquiring the American rights. The pianist-composer's "problem opera" has made hits both in Germany and Austria. Mr. Hammerstein was very sorry to find Herr Von Huelsen, Director of the Kaiser's opera, in the hospital.

EXHIBITS ARE REJECTED.

Pictures and Medal Taken from French Salon to Avoid Giving Offense.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 12.—Just before the opening to-day of the annual salon of the National Society of French Artists, the committee ordered the removal of three exhibits by celebrated artists.

These were a picture by Jean Weber lampooning the Kaiser, a painting by Renouard giving a fanciful view of the Dreyfus trial, and a medal by Baffier of Gen. Mercier.

The removals were ordered so as to avoid offense here and in Germany.

VON BUELOW AT ROME.

German Chancellor Meets Foreign Minister Tittoni—Will Visit the Pope.

ROME, April 12.—Prince von Buelow, the Imperial German Chancellor, accompanied by Princess von Buelow, arrived here to-day. The chief object Prince von Buelow has in coming to Rome is to return the visit of Premier Giolitti and Foreign Minister Tittoni. He will take possession of the magnificent villa to which he intends to retire on giving up the Chancellorship.

Very naturally, during Chancellor von Buelow's stay here, politics will be discussed, but it is stated that he has no especial question in mind at present to take up with the Italian Government officials. The Chancellor visited the Foreign Minister this evening. He will have an audience with the King on Monday morning, and later an audience with the Pope.

GRISCOM NOT FOR BERLIN.

Ambassador at Rome Also Denies Reported Talk on Abruzzi's Romance.

ROME April 12.—The newspapers to-day publish a statement from the American Ambassador, Lloyd C. Griscom, denying the truth of the reports that he is to be transferred to Berlin after Dr. David Jayne Hill has assumed the Ambassadorship in that city merely formally.

Ambassador Griscom also states that he has not authorized anybody to assert that a marriage between the Duke of the Abruzzi and Miss Katherine Elkins has been decided upon. Indeed, Mr. Griscom declares that he has no news whatever regarding such a marriage.

QUOTE ROOSEVELT IN SPAIN.

His Anti-Anarchistic Message Used by the Premier's Partisans.

MADRID, April 12.—The partisans of Premier Maura are using President Roosevelt's anti-Anarchist message as an argument in favor of the new Government bill imposing severe penalties against Anarchists.

The Liberals and Republicans, although asserting that they are in favor of the suppression of anarchy, are opposing more stringent measures, fearing, they state, that the conservative Governments might use such laws against their political adversaries.

EX-ARMY OFFICER HELD AS HOTEL BEAT

Former Lieut. Clarence Eustaphieve Locked Up on Charge of Petty Larceny.

CHECKS CALLED FORGERIES

Many Hotels Swindled by Him on Worthless Paper, According to the Police.

Clarence Eustaphieve, formerly a Second Lieutenant in the Twenty-third Infantry, United States Army, who, the police say, has been impersonating Lieut. Arthur W. Copp of the same regiment, was arrested last night in the Mills Hotel in Bleecker Street on a charge of petty larceny. Other and more serious charges are being formulated against the young man, and to-day he will be confronted by several hotel men who say he has obtained money under false pretenses. He will also be charged with forgery, the police say.

Eustaphieve comes from a respected family in Buffalo, but last night, when asked by the Desk Sergeant at Police Headquarters where he lived, replied sadly:

"I have no home any more."

Eustaphieve was shabbily dressed when arrested. A few months ago he was one of the best-dressed men who frequented the corridors of the better-class hotels, and was often seen dining in expensive restaurants. Of late he has stayed at the Mills Hotel.

Eustaphieve was a student at Cornell, and was graduated from the New York Military Academy. He joined the army at the outbreak of the Spanish war, and was soon afterward made Second Lieutenant. In 1906 he returned with his regiment from the Philippines, and resigned.

On Nov. 12 last, the police say, Eustaphieve went to the Hotel Broztell, Twenty-seventh Street, near Fifth Avenue, and represented himself as Lieut. A. W. Copp of the Twenty-third Regiment. He presented a check drawn by Clinton & Clinton, a Buffalo law firm, and indorsed it with the signature "A. W. Copp." The check was cashed by James E. Johnston, proprietor of the hotel. Then Eustaphieve left. In a few days the check came back to Mr. Johnston marked "Forgery."

Two weeks later, on Nov. 25, Eustaphieve went to the Hotel Astor, the police say, and represented himself to W. C. Muschenheim, the proprietor, as being Lieut. Arthur W. Copp.

"I want you to extend me the courtesy of the house for a few days, as I am temporarily embarrassed, but will make good in a little while," said Eustaphieve, according to the police.

Mr. Muschenheim got out his Army and Navy Register and looked up Copp. He was satisfied with what he found there. So Eustophieve stayed at the Astor until Nov. 28. He then gave the management a check for $21.40 on the Watertown National Bank of Watertown, Conn. The check was signed "A. W. Copp." A little later it came back marked "Forgery."

Mr. Muschenheim notified the police, and Detectives Gegan and Wilbur were detailed to find the man who had forged the check. They soon learned that other hotels had been victimized. They found that the Bingham House, in Philadelphia, had given money for a worthless check signed "A. W. Copp." Moses Ely of the law firm of Ely & Fuller, 2 Rector Street, had cashed a check for Eustaphieve on the Jefferson County Bank. The check was for $5. It came back marked "We know of no such person."

Late in November Eustaphieve went to the tailor's shop of John G. Hass, at Fifth Avenue and Twenty-eighth Street, and asked for credit for a khaki suit. He told Mr. Hass that he was Lieut. Copp of the Twenty-third.

"Why, Lieut. Copp resigned last week," said Mr. Hass in surprise.

"Oh, I guess not," replied Eustaphieve. "There has been some mistake."

Just then Col. W. S. Schuyler, U. S. A., on militia inspection duty in New York, entered the tailor shop. Eustaphieve saluted. Col. Schuyler returned the salute, although he did not recognize the young man. He began to question Eustaphieve and the latter's replies were apparently satisfactory. But Mr. Hass was not. He called up Governors Island on the telephone to find out more about "Lieut. Copp."

While he was at the telephone Eustaphieve disappeared. The police hunted for him in boarding houses and cheap hotels all over town.

NOT POISONED.

Victim After Being Pumped Out Uses an Old Story with Effect.

Herman Markowitz, an Armenian electrician, was found in the hallway of his home, 170 East 118th Street, yesterday. The man was apparently in great pain. "Poison," said some one, and one of Markowitz's neighbors ran for Dr. Bierfeld of 143 East 117th Street. Another neighbor notified Lieut. Thompson of the Harlem Police Station. Still another called up Harlem Hospital, and an ambulance was sent to the house.

Lieut. Thompson also called up Harlem Hospital and a second ambulance was dispatched. The two ambulance surgeons pushed their way through a crowd in front of the house and entered. One of them got out a stomach pump and began to use it, despite the protests of Markowitz.

When they had pumped Markowitz droy they assisted him to his feet. About the same time a policeman arrived.

"What made you take poison?" asked the policeman.

"I didn't take any poison," replied Markowitz. "I only went out to collect a bill. When I could not get the money it made me ill."

The story is not original with him by many, many repetitions, and the fact that he used it is supposed to indicate that he is a person of resource who is concealing something.

ARRESTED AS HOTEL BEAT.

Claude Laselle Asserts That He Has Wealthy Connections.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., April 12.—Claude Laselle of New York City, aged 61, was arrested at the South Station, Boston, to-day as he left the Worcester train by order from Captain of Detectives O'Day, who brought him back on a charge of defrauding the Warren Hotel here.

He asserts that he is connected with the wealthy Laselle family of Whitinsville. A telephone message to the Laselle mansion brought a quick denial. On Friday Laselle was a visitor at Police Headquarters. He wasn't pleased with many things he saw there. He is now a prisoner there.

COTTON SCHEME GIVEN UP.

Lancashire Spinners Abandon the Plan to Have American Estates.

MANCHESTER, April 12.—The Lancashire cotton spinners have abandoned the scheme to purchase cotton-growing estates in the Mississippi Delta, owing to legal impediments against aliens holding real estate.

The Cotton Spinners' Association had already appointed a committee to take preliminary steps to form a company to take control of a cotton plantation in the United States, this being one of the results of the visit of the British delegation to that country last year.

EX-HOTEL CLERKS HELD.

Accused of Stealing Cash from Employer and Jewels from a Guest.

William Singreen of 204 West Eighty-second Street and Max Wille, recently living in Los Angeles, Cal., both ex-clerks in the Hotel Martinique, West Thirty-third Street, were held in $2,000 bail each in Jefferson Market Court by Magistrate Herrman yesterday, on a charge of robbing one of the guests and the hotel management of $7,000 worth of jewelry and cash.

The jewelry belonged to Mrs. Ellery Anderson, a guest of the hotel. It was left with the clerk and disappeared. The jewelry was valued at $3,500. Singreen and Wille left the hotel soon afterward, and they were traced to California and arrested.

NO WORK, KILLS HIMSELF.

Despondent Shirtmaker a Suicide in Central Park.

Samuel B. Rosenberg, a shirtmaker out of work, committed suicide last night at the corner of the East Drive and 100th Street in Central Park. He placed the muzzle of a heavy revolver against his right temple and pulled the trigger. He died instantly.

In Rosenberg's pockets were found a sealed letter and an empty envelope, both addressed to Mrs. Rosenberg of 438 East 120th Street. His body was taken to the Arsenal Station and a policeman was sent to the 120th Street address. Mrs. Rosenberg and two of her four children accompanied the policeman back to the Arsenal and there identified her husband. She said that Rosenberg had been out of work for several weeks and had grown despondent. He left home yesterday afternoon without telling his wife where he was going.

A Highly Merited Recognition

When professional musicians heartily endorse and the music-loving public eagerly accept a new piano-player—radically different from all previously accepted styles—unusual merit must exist. No other musical invention has ever attracted so wide and such favorable attention as has the TEL-ELECTRIC PIANO-PLAYER.

Since its introduction our factory has been busy keeping up with the demand—and of the hundreds of players sold we have not received a single complaint as to efficiency or substantiality.

Every purchaser is particularly well pleased with the simplicity of the governing attachments by which the expression, tempo and volume of tone are always under the absolute control of the performer.

Another striking feature is—by permitting the expression devices to operate themselves, one can enjoy any selection, no matter how intricate—rendered in exact accordance with the interpretation of the composer. A child can operate it. The is perfect in every way and will not get out of order any more quickly than will a telephone or the piano to which it may be attached.

This UP-TO-DATE PLAYER may be attached to your present piano—no matter what style or make—without injury or disfigurement.

No Interference With Keyboard
For Hand Playing
No Tiresome Pumping
No Tax on Feet, Eyes or Mind

While the motive power is electricity, an electric current on premises is not necessary.

FORAKER MAY LEAD BOLT FROM PARTY

Threatens a New Movement if the Republicans Ignore Grievances of the Negroes.

AN APPEAL TO LABOR ALSO

Taft Forces Have Refused All Offers of Peace and the Senator Is in Bitter Mood.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Senator Foraker has dropped the idea of a compromise with the Taft forces, and is reported to be working on the organization of a new party. It will, in a measure, support Republican principles, but will represent the negroes and the union labor element, which is indignant at the so-called inimical attitude of Taft.

This movement was first outlined yesterday in the address of Senator Foraker before the Baltimore Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal Church. The negro churchmen hailed him with acclaim. Without any trace of excitement and in the most practical fashion he introduced his idea. He referred to the riots in Atlanta, the affray at Brownsville, and the refusal of the Republican Convention of Virginia to recognize certain negro delegates. He was especially bitter on the last-named action.

"I think it was a shame, and I don't care who knows it," he said. "I do not care to criticise my party, but I do condemn those who misrepresent it. The question raised in that Virginia convention will be carried to the National Convention at Chicago. We will find out there whether the party of Lincoln, of Grant, and of McKinley is a Lily White party. If it is, I assure you that there will soon be new parties in the field which will stand for the rights of humanity."

The Senator's statement made a decided impression to-day. No one would venture to guess just what was meant by this veiled threat. Neither would any person within the pale offer any prophecy as to the possibility of a fight. Senator Foraker was equally non-committal.

"Explain my remarks?" he repeated to-night. "I must be excused from that. It's a mighty poor speech that needs an explanation."

The Senator is to make a set speech on the Brownsville affair Tuesday. He has prepared a carefully drawn argument, which already has been printed, and intends to confine himself to that. It is expected, however, that the developments of the last few days will force him to speak extemporaneously. If that is the case, a declaration in regard to the new movement may be made.

Men close to the Taft organization say Foraker has been deeply disappointed by its attitude. While he has maintained an attitude of seemingly unyielding hostility, they assert, his lieutenants have approached the Taft camp with flags of truce. These have been ignored. One of the plans was to end the feud in Ohio through an arrangement whereby Taft would not be opposed by Foraker, provided the latter could come back to the United States Senate. This, too, went by the board. Threats of the solidarity of the negro and labor vote behind Foraker have been hurled at the Taft walls, but no breach has been made up to date.

It is believed now that the Senator has exhausted all plans for "peace with honor," and he will press the fight in an effort to embarrass the political ambition of the Secretary of War.

NEGRO ATTACK ON TAFT.

Bishop Walters Includes President Roosevelt in the Criticism.

At the meeting held under the auspices of the Morris Brown College, at Bishop's Chapel, African Methodist Episcopal Church, 135th Street and Lenox Avenue, yesterday a letter was read to the assemblage which had been written by Bishop Alexander Walters of the African Church Diocese of New York denouncing President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft for their part in the Brownsville incident.

The Rev. Dr. Parks, who presided at the meeting, took the floor immediately after the Bishop's letter had been read, and he condemned the dragging of politics into a meeting which had been called in the interests of education.

President Roosevelt himself sent a letter to the presiding officer of the meeting which expressed sympathy with the movement for negro education, and letters were read also from Mayor Joyner of Atlanta, Clark Howell, editor of The Atlanta Constitution; W. W. Landrum, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Atlanta, and from John Temple Graves, the last letter containing also a check for $50 for the negro educational movement.

NEGRO PASTOR RAPS TAFT.

Says Race Will Not Vote for Any One Bearing the Roosevelt Brand.

The Rev. Dr. Reverdy C. Ransom, pastor of the Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church in West Twenty-fifth Street near Eighth Avenue, who was a delegate to the National Political Conference of American Negroes which was held during the past week in Philadelphia for the purpose of protesting to the Republican Convention against the nomination of Secretary of War Taft, addressed a large audience of negroes at his church last evening as to the significance of the anti-Taft gathering, and declared that it meant a political revolution among the negroes in the Fall.

Dr. Ransom said that the majority of the negroes would not support William J. Bryan if he were the Democratic nominee, but that they would support Gov. Johnson of Minnesota.

"The masses of the negroes are not bolting the Chicago Convention in advance of it being held," said Dr. Ransom, "but they will not stultify themselves by supporting the President, Mr. Taft, or any one else placed in the foreground of leadership by them.

"I do not say that the masses of the negroes will vote the Democratic ticket, but I speak with confidence when I say that they will not vote for Taft or any one who wears the brand of Roosevelt."

LABOR OPPOSES TAFT.

New Hampshire Branch of Federation Issues a Circular.

Special to The New York Times.

CONCORD, N. H., April 12.—Charles J. French, President of the New Hampshire Branch of the American Federation of Labor, has issued a circular entitled "Taft and Labor Unions," in which he strongly opposes the candidacy of Secretary Taft for the Presidential nomination. Mr. French attacks the Secretary for several labor decisions which the latter handed down while sitting on the Federal bench.

It is asserted that "while the Secretary did not know at the time that President Roosevelt would require his services as a popular candidate for 'Heir Apparent' to the White House," still the decisions of the then Judge Taft did a great deal to harm the welfare of the organization.

It is declared that the persistent enforcement of his candidacy by Federal officeholders has become so odious to the interests of the working class that his nomination would menace the integrity of every worker.

In speaking of the Secretary's attitude toward Wall Street the circular says: "His prominent picket attitude as a typical representative and embodiment of dangerous hostility to the essential interests of the workers becomes all the more pronounced because of the exceedingly objectionable methods adopted in his political furtherance, with uncomfortable recent rumors of unholy alliance and compact with Wall Street."

The circular will go to all branches of the American Federation of Labor.

Alaska's Delegate Gets Quart of Liquor Wagered on Election.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—After traveling thousands of miles a bottle of 75-year-old whisky reached Washington to-day. It came from Ketchikan, Alaska, and now is in the possession of Thomas Cale, Delegate in Congress from that Territory. The liquor is in settlement of an election bet made fifteen months ago, against which a dog team was wagered.

The whisky was discovered near the mouth of the McKenzie River, in the ruins of what at one time was the northernmost trading post of the Hudson Bay Company. The cask containing it was dug out of a cache. Marks upon it showed that it had been taken into the frozen North in 1833, and how long before that time it had been distilled cannot be determined.

VICTIMS OF LABOR SWINDLE.

17 Italians, Who Paid $3 Each for Imaginary Jobs, Capture Two Men.

Ten Italians tramped down to New York from Rye yesterday feeling very glum and angry to think they had been swindled out of $3 each, which they paid for imaginary jobs. Upon their arrival the Italians were joined by seven other visitors who had come down from Rye by train, and finally found the men they sought. They forthwith drew knives, stilletos, and other weapons and were on the point of attacking them when the police arrived.

The seventeen pointed out Philip Paternio and Vincentio Montegio as the two men who had exacted $3 from each of them upon promise of getting jobs at Rye. The prisoners were taken to the 104th Street Station and held for a hearing to-day.

BROOKLYN NEWS NOTES.

Argument will be made in the Special Term of the Supreme Court on Friday on an order directing the Health Department to show cause why it should not accept and file a death certificate submitted by an osteopath. The order was obtained by Dr. Charles F. Bandel of Brooklyn. A death certificate offered by him was rejected by the department. The case is a test one. Martin W. Littleton will represent the osteopaths.

Thousands of persons flocked to the conservatories in Prospect Park yesterday to view the annual Palm Sunday display of flowers. Next Sunday there will be a big display of Easter lilies in the park greenhouses.

Under the Naval Appropriation bill the sum of $286,000 is to be set aside for the use of the Department of Yards and Docks in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. Provision is also made for the building of a storehouse at the Marine Barracks, at a cost of $30,000, and $40,000 is to be appropriated for new tools for the machine shops.

The Brooklyn Lodge of Elks, which has the largest membership in the order, will celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization on Wednesday at the Elks' clubhouse, 123 Schermerhorn Street. A committee composed of Past Exalted Rulers of the lodge has charge of the arrangements.

Miss Ella Bragnal, 20 years old, of 624 Degraw Street, suffered a sudden attack of hysteria while riding on a train of the West End Division of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit system yesterday, and caused excitement among the passengers. She was taken from the train at Ulmer Park, where she was attended by an ambulance surgeon, who removed her to her home.

DEMOCRATS HERE FOR STATE CONVENTION

Strong Fight Expected by Bryan Men to Have Delegates Instructed for Him.

MANY CONTESTED SEATS

Proceedings of the Convention May Be Delayed in Consequence—No Platform Likely.

With the arrival in town yesterday of most of the members of the Democratic State Committee and many of the delegates to the State Convention, which will convene in Carnegie Hall to-morrow, little was discussed last night about the lobbies of the Hoffman House, Victoria, and Waldorf-Astoria Hotels but the probabilities of an uninstructed delegation to the National Convention at Denver and the action which the Bryan men will take to bring his name before the conventio.

It was said that the organization is strongly in favor of an uninstructed delegation, and that few of those in authority believe that any other programme will be followed out. The Bryan men, however, are prepared to put up a strong fight, and, failing to get a hearing in the Committee on Resolutions, will carry the struggle to the floor of the convention, led by Augustus Thomas, who, while not a delegate, will be armed with a proxy.

There are an unusually large number of contests and the real action of the convention will occur in the Committee on Contested Seats. Its sessions may prove so lengthy that it will be necessary to carry the convention over into Wednesday. Of the 450 delegates, 405 are uninstructed, and 45 for Bryan. There are contests in Albany, Watertown, the Fortieth Senatorial District including Auburn, the Thirty-eighth comprising Broome and Delaware Counties, the Thirty-sixth comprising Oswego and Jefferson Counties, the First Assembly District of St. Lawrence County, Herkimer County, and Buffalo. In Brooklyn all but seven of the delegates are contested.

Despite this and the fact that the Bryan men assert they will have at least 166 delegates when the contests are taken up in committee. State Chariman William J. Conners said last night at the Waldorf that he expected the convention to be "harmonious." He also said that he was confident the delegates to Denver would go uninstructed.

"Every man will have a fair show," he declared. "But I do not expect any trouble in obtaining an uninstructed delegation. I also do not believe there will be any platform drawn up. I can not see the need of one. That is the business of the National Convention."

Asked about the slate for the delegates at large, he said that a place had been offered to Mayor McClellan, and that he would be acceptable to the organization if he cared to take the election. He intimated that Charles F. Murphy and he would be two of the other three men. A member of the State Committee said later that this would in all probability be the ticket, with the addition of Lieut. Gov. Chanler. Alton B. Parker's name was also mentioned as a delegate.

National Committeeman Norman E. Mack of Buffalo, a staunch Bryan man, discussed the Denver convention at the Hoffman House and declared that it would be absurd for the party to attempt to defeat the Nebraskan.

"He should be nominated on the first ballot," Mr. Mack said. "And I believe he will be. It is absurd to attempt to defeat a man who without money, patronage, or assistance will be able to control two-thirds of the delegates. He is the best-known Democrat in the country, and has done campaigning which it would have cost the National Committee $5,000,000 to put through. It would be impossible for the party to win without Bryan, and with him we have a good chance."

Senator McCarren was also in the lobby of the Hoffman House in the evening, but he was not talkative. He said that he had not been asked to accept a place as one of the delegates at large.

Patrick McCabe of Albany, who may be unseated from the State Committee, told a story at the Hoffman House in response to a question on the Bryan sentiment. An Irishman was asked by a friend whom he considered the best man for the Democrats to nominate. "Bryan, of course," he replied. "I voted for him twelve years ago, and again eight years ago, and we have had good times ever since."

The State Committee will open headquarters at the Victoria Hotel this morning, and will meet at 4 o'clock in the afternoon to formulate the final plans for the convention. Thomas F. Carmody of Penn Yan will be Temporary Chairman, and will address the convention at the opening session. The temporary organization will in all probability be made permanent.

There is much interest in the Jefferson dinner to-night at the Hotel Knickerbocker, at which Senators Taylor of Tennessee, Simmons of North Carolina, and Owen of Oklahoma, and Edward M. Shepard will speak.

Dinner to New Tax Commissioner.

Tax Commissioner Charles J. McCormack, the new Democratic leader in Richmond Borough, was the guest of honor at a dinner at South Beach on Saturday evening. One hundred local politicians were present. The dinner was arranged by the employes of the Department of Water, Gas, and Electricity, of which McCormack had been the head.

TIGER TO GREET DEMOCRATS.

Denver Chooses Tammany Emblem Instead of Donkey for Convention.

DENVER, Col., April 12.—A royal tiger, of papier maché, erected at the principal four corners of Denver, will welcome the delegates to the Democratic National Convention on July 7, instead of the Democratic donkey. A special committee of citizens which is devising plans for the decoration of the city has decided to place the tiger at Sixteenth Street and Broadway.

Thousands of electric lights will be strung on wires across the streets and flags and bunting will be freely used in the decorative scheme.

The great Auditorium, which will seat 12,500 persons, and furnish standing room for fully 1,000 more, will be completed about June 7. Members of the National Democratic Committee, who have the preparations for the convention in charge, say the preparations for the entertainment of visitors are further advanced at this time than at any similar period prior to previous conventions in any city.

APPEAL FOR JUDGE GRAY.

League Sends Out a Letter to Democrats of the Nation.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—The George Gray League sent out yesterday to Senators, Congressmen, delegates to the Democratic National Convention, newspapers, and to the Democratic voters of the country an address urging the nomination and election of Judge Gray to the Presidency. John Cadwallader, ex-Collector of the Port of Philadelphia, is President of the league, and ex-Mayor Vance E. McCormick of Harrisburg is Chairman of the Executive Committee.

The appeal declares that the special privileges which have been distributed by the Republican Party are at the root of the existing financial troubles. It characterizes the tendency toward centralization of power by the present National Administration as little short of Czarism.

CONGRESS SOON TO ADJOURN.

Republican Whip Thinks the Session Will End About May 9.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—That the present session of Congress will adjourn on or about Saturday, May 9, was the prediction to-night of Representative James E. Watson of Indiana, Republican whip of the House. In the last few days Mr. Watson has confered with the leaders at both ends of the capitol in regard to adjournment, and all of them are anxious for an early date.

Mr. Watson thinks there is ample time between now and May 9 for the completion of the legislative program. Having talked with Senator Aldrich and Speaker Cannon he expects to call on President Roosevelt to-morrow to discuss the matter.

The principal measures in the House which remain to be disposed of are the Naval appropriation bill, the Sundry Civil appropriation bill, the Diplomatic and Consular appropriation bill, the Military Academy appropriation bill, and the Aldrich currency measure. Mr. Watson believes that all these will be acted upon without difficulty, except the provision of the Naval bill increasing the number of battleships to four which he thinks will provoke discussion. The only other time-consuming measure of importance to come up, Mr. Watson thinks, is the Child Labor bill.

C. R. Flint's Auto Halted by Police.

An automobile containing Charles R. Flint of 4 East Thirty-sixth Street and a party of friends was overhauled in Jackson Avenue, Long Island City, late yesterday afternoon by Bicycle Policeman Richard Ahearn, and the outfit taken to the Fourth Street Police Station on a charge of violating the speed law. The chauffeur, Edward Symonds of 206 East Thirty-second Street, was arraigned, and bail was furnished for his appearance in court this morning.

HARD TO COLLECT FROM HEARST LEAGUE

Experiences of Trow Directory Co. in Seeking Payment for Services Last Year.

GETS JUDGMENT; NO CASH

Company Now Proposes to Ask Mr. Jackson to Dissolve the League if It Won't Pay.

After many futile efforts to collect the amount of its bill for services to the Independence League, the Trow Directory Company is preparing to apply to Attorney General Jackson for the dissolution of the Hearst political organization. The judgment suit comes up for the last time on Wednesday before Judge Deneen in the Second District Municipal Court. The company says that if the bill is not paid by that time it will ask the Attorney General to take immediate action.

The services of the company consisted in sending thousands of circulars to "policemen, firemen, Germans, Irish, clergymen, and public-spirited citizens" in New York just before the election last November. These circulars told why everybody ought to vote for the League candidates, and how much the government of the State and city would be improved if these candidates were elected. Nearly ever since then collectors have been following the misty trail of the league. They got no results, and finally the matter was put into a lawyer's hands.

The trouble was that nobody seemed to be willing to represent the Independence League when it came to paying debts. Despairing of getting the money, about $800, in the ordinary way, the Trow Company finally applied for a judgment through its attorney, Henry Staton. Then the defendant had to be summoned. Process servers who were supposed to be experts in their line were put on the trail. They tried to get at W. R. Hearst, they tried to get at "Jack" Follansbee, they tried to get at Maximilian F. Ihmsen. Finally the summons was put into the hands of a process-serving company, and this concern stole upon Mr. Ihmsen when he had come down from Albany one Friday and served him.

Meanwhile, however, the Trow attorney had sent a letter to Mr. Hearst and waited in vain for an answer to it. The letter said:

> The Trow Directory and Bookbinding Company, upon request of Mr. O'Reilly, furnished lists, addressed envelopes and political literature to voters, public-spirited men, clergymen, &c., and sent bills for $290.35 and $488.93. Mr. O'Reilly used your name and that of the Independence League, but now refuses payment, though all bills have been O. K.'d. After their collector had spent two months in trying to collect, the Trow Company asked me to sue. For several weeks process servers have attempted, unsuccessfully, to effect service. I went through this experience with the league in the election of the year before, and finally, after getting judgment by default, the bills were paid. Thinking that you personally would like to avoid this method of doing business, and also for the purpose of basing an application to the court for substituted service, I write to ask whether you will admit service or have the Independence League appear.

When the case came into court on April 8 no one appeared to oppose the application for a judgment, and judgment was entered by default. A few days later, though, an order to show cause why the default should not be opened was served on the Trow attorney, and the parties appeared before Justice Deneen last Wednesday.

Affidavits were submitted by Laurence J. O'Reilly, who described himself as Assistant Treasurer of the Independence League, and Walter L. Rathbone of Clarence J. Shearn's office. In his affidavit Rathbone swears that he is informed by O'Reilly that the defendant has a good substantial defense, and O'Reilly swears that he is informed by Rathbone that the defendant has a good defense. Neither swears that he himself believes there is a good defense or what the defense is.

Justice Deneen was severe with the defendant's attorneys when they appeared before him on Thursday.

"What's your defense, anyway?" he asked. "It seems to me you are trying to 'welch' on the debt? Why don't you pay up?"

The attorneys asked for a postponement, saying they hoped to effect a settlement. Up to last night no settlement had been made.

Found His Strange Lodger Dead.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 12.—Edward Doranz, who occupies bachelor apartments at 1,513 Atlantic Avenue, found a respectable looking man about 35 slightly intoxicated on the street last night and took him in. He put the man in bed, and when he went to see him this morning found the stranger dead. From papers found in the dead man's pocket it is believed he is Charles C. Frech of Springhouse.

On complaint of Thomas J. Curtis of the Rock Drillers' Union that the eight-hour and prevailing rate of wages laws were being violated in the employment of men working on the new reservoir tunnel in Putnam County, known as the Putnam tunnel, a committee was appointed yesterday by the Central Federated Union to ask the Commissioner of Water Supply to revoke the contract for the work.

SHOOTS HIS FIANCEE, THEN KILLS HIMSELF

Young Man Pawns Engagement Ring to Get Money for a Revolver.

SOON TO HAVE BEEN WED

Hopeless Struggle to Save Enough Money for a Start in Life—Girl Mortally Wounded.

Beilla Zas, a young Hungarian carpenter, pawned his fiancée's engagement ring on Saturday, and with the money bought a revolver. Last night he shot the girl he was to have married, then killed himself. Both were weary of life, their friends think.

Zas lived with his mother in a little apartment on the third floor of a tenement in the rear of 235 Third Street. On the ground floor of the same house lives Urzi Gyor, a widow, who rents rooms. One of her roomers was Julia Szilazyi, a comely Hungarian. The girl was employed in a café at Ninth Street and Second Avenue. She paid only 70 cents a week for her room, a cupboardlike nook.

Julia went to room with Mrs. Gyor a week ago. She was to have married Zas in a few weeks, or as soon as they had saved money enough to furnish a room or two. But somehow they could never get a savings account started. Zas was a nightly visitor to the apartment of Mrs. Gyor.

Yesterday afternoon the young couple were together, and when supper time came Zas went upstairs to his rooms. A little later he returned to the apartment of Mrs. Gyor and asked to see Julia. Mrs. Gyor let him in, and soon afterward she heard Zas ask Julia to go out with him for the evening, but the girl refused. He wanted to know why.

"I am going to my brother's and get a revolver and kill myself," she told him. "I don't want to live."

"If that's the way you feel about it, I don't want to live either," Zas replied.

An instant later Mrs. Gyor heard three revolver shots in quick succession, then a pause, and then another shot. She ran into the little room and found Julia lying senseless on the couch. Zas lay dead on the floor with a bullet hole in his right temple. Near him lay the revolver he had purchased on Saturday. The girl may die.

Fine Remitted to Let Him Preach.

George Jackson, the negro who was arrested for intoxication by Policeman Rooney of the East Twenty-second Street Station on Saturday night, had his fine remitted by Magistrate Harris in the Yorkville Court yesterday morning on the plea that he wanted to go to church and preach.

"Please, Judge, let me go," pleaded Jackson when he was first arraigned. "I took a little gin and wine, and it went to my head and I fell down in the street. Please let me go. My church needs me."

"What church do you preach in?" asked the Magistrate.

"Zion Church," was the reply.

The Magistrate then let him go.

Jackson said his home is in Alabama.

THE CHANGES IN JAPAN.

The very informing letter from Tokio by Mr. MILLARD, which we published yesterday morning, presents in a striking manner a succinct view of the changes through which the Empire of Japan is passing. The prospect offered in this picture is by no means wholly cheerful. It discloses features of serious difficulty and of some peril, which are in marked contrast to the impression made upon the Western mind by the actual achievements of Japan in the two wars it waged successfully with foreign Powers and, previously, in the transformation it had undertaken and carried through in its internal constitution. It would be foolish to deny that the new impression is disquieting, or that the future of the new-old nation is surrounded with much uncertainty which its friends cannot ignore and its enemies will do all they can to aggravate.

The fact is that Japan, in the course of the curious and marvelous development it has accomplished within two-score years, has arrived at a point where the elements with which it has to contend are some of them greatly increased in difficulty, and some are substantially novel, and the forces it brings to the task are subjected to severer strain than ever before. This development may broadly be described as from the feudal state to that of a powerful oligarchy. Of this oligarchy the members and leaders were men of great energy, of rare intelligence in many directions, of intense pride, warlike in temperament and aim and training, and united by an unquenchable sentiment for which the Occident has no exact counterpart and hardly an accurate name, a sentiment mingled of patriotism, religious devotion, sense of caste, and individual ambition. Thus, up to the close of the war with Russia, the oligarchy may be described as a tremendously efficient machine, in practically absolute control of the material, the intellectual, and moral resources of the country and the race. In its contest with Russia it attained a triumph which astonished the rest of the world, and its immediate foe most of all. With this it gained the admiration of most, the hostility of some, the jealousy, distrust, and fear of others. And while the oligarchy has been the object of these conflicting feelings in other countries, it has had to face tendencies and problems at home calculated to try the character and ability of the most gifted and experienced statesmen. No wonder that the outcome is in doubt.

Had the triumph which amazed the Western world been a little more nearly complete, had it extended to the exaction of an indemnity such as followed the war with China, the troubles of the ruling class in Japan might have been for some time deferred. They could not have been wholly prevented and a postponement might have made them only the greater and more perplexing. Their source is the prosaic but implacable and inevitable fact on which the destinies of nations so often turn—taxation. The vast expenditure of the victorious war with Russia was, from the point of economics, sheer waste. At its close it was no easier for a single Japanese subject to win his livelihood from the soil or from industry or from trade than before, and of what he could win taxation took a far greater share. The advance of per capita contributions from six yen a year to fifteen, with further advance surely to come, is the measure of an enormous burden on the energies of the people which the war imposed. The real problem of Japan to-day is how that burden can be kept within tolerable limits, and how the resources of the land and the race can be developed to meet it.

The rulers of Japan have not been blind to the importance of this problem. They have hardly realized that it is transcendently important. Apparently they have imagined that a still more important matter is the maintenance of the military and naval strength of the Empire. For this purpose they are this year spending 40 per cent. of their revenues and planning to spend 60 per cent. next year. This expenditure is the more conspicuous because the alliance with Great Britain was for another decade at least a guarantee of peace which made the reduction of the army and the navy to something like a skeleton entirely safe. Certainly it would be much safer than the policy of crushing a relatively poor and practically unrepresented people with taxes. It is this policy that now involves Japan in the most serious risks she has to face, and one of the worst of its consequences is that it tends strongly to arouse the mistrust of other Governments and peoples. It must be the earnest wish of all true friends of Japan—and the Japanese have awakened a very friendly feeling in multitudes of minds all over the world, and nowhere more than in the United States—that this policy may be revised and substantially modified before it is too late. If it be not, bankruptcy or civil disturbance at home and sad loss of prestige abroad are the disasters that loom on the horizon.

THE KING'S "FIRST MISTAKE."

The severe criticism of the King of England because he did not return immediately to London from Biarritz on the announcement of Sir HENRY CAMPBELL-BANNERMAN'S resignation of the Premiership, discussed in the wireless dispatches of THE SUNDAY TIMES, would be justified only by the most formal and conventional regard for royal etiquette and precedent. As a matter of fact, the extreme radicals, who have no regard for precedent, are his critics. The journey from Biarritz to London is as long as that from London to Biarritz, while the King is an older man than Mr. ASQUITH, and it takes him as long, surely, to pack his duds. Mr. ASQUITH'S polite acceptance of the situation, and trip to Biarritz, illustrate his common sense. The duties of the King in the matter are very slight. Nobody affects to believe that he has personally made Mr. ASQUITH Prime Minister, or has exerted any influence in the reorganization of the Cabinet.

It is the first time, to be sure, that an important change in the Ministry has occurred with the British sovereign beyond the boundaries of his realm. But such a situation, or even a more difficult one, is likely to occur at any time while the King is in the habit of going abroad for recreation. Thus far, nobody has suggested that the King should never go to the Continent, and it would be bad for Biarritz and Marienbad if his travels were stopped.

They say that this Asquith incident is "the first mistake" of EDWARD'S reign. It is a very trivial mistake, certainly, and shows what a successful King he has made. But then he had a very long, if not exactly arduous, training for the position.

ABOLISHING THE UMPIRE.

Representative DE ARMOND has been instructing the Yale students upon constitutional law. He told them that the Constitution is a relic of the spinning wheel era, and sadly needed bringing up to date. He has an equally low opinion of the Supreme Court, and protested against holding it in the former excessive reverence. His bill of particulars was that recently several State statutes had been annulled summarily, and that it would be better if we had a system under which laws should be respected and obeyed until they had been invalidated by the Supreme Court.

It is impossible not to remark that the Constitution and the Supreme Court are the institutions of our Government that are showing most efficiency with least fuss. The Executive and the legislative departments are making most of the noise, but the Constitution and the Supreme Court are doing most of the work. For example, Mr. ROOSEVELT recommends a rate law, and leaves the preparation of it to Congress. Congress passes the law, and turns over the details to the Inter-State Commerce Commission. The same process of leaving the job to the other fellow was followed in amending the Sherman anti-trust law. The President recommended it, Congress drew up its proposals, and lo and behold, the job instead of being finished, is referred back to be done by the Commissioner, who is to be instructed by the President as to what trusts shall be exempt and which shall be prosecuted. In neither case is any principle or standard established by which railway rates or trusts may be tested for goodness or badness.

Our own Executive and Legislature are open to the same criticism in the recommendation and the enactment of a Public Utility Commission without giving it any rules for guidance. In default of such rules or standards the courts take charge necessarily. The judiciary is the department of which it is least needful to be afraid. It has no power like the Executive, and it cannot assume to make laws, like the Legislature and Executive together. Neither can the judiciary have any will of its own. It must give reason for every decision, and each judgment must be referred to the Constitution for its validity. The other departments may have policies, and be interested in their enactment or administration. The courts are removed from this temptation. The Constitution speaks strictly for itself. It means what it says, and says what it means. Together the Constitution and the judiciary are saving us from some of the worst jobs of law-making and administration which have ever been offered for the rejection of an indignant judiciary and outraged people.

It is not too much to say that our institutions would have perished before now but for the preservative force of the Constitution and its construction by the Supreme Court. In the face of recent demonstrations of the necessity of both institutions Mr. DE ARMOND could hardly have chosen a worse time for proposing the abolishment of the rules and the umpire. Even a baseball game could not be played on such a plan.

SURPRISING—BUT REASONABLE.

The proposition that the railway accommodations for negroes shall be improved until they equal those of the whites reads better than the converse proposition that the accommodations of the whites shall be reduced to an equality with the negroes'. Yet it is in the latter manner that equality is being reached, as witness this dispatch from Nashville:

> The Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway is complying with the recent order from Washington to furnish the same accommodations to white and negro passengers, resulting from a suit brought by a negro to whom soap and towels were not furnished. The railway has taken all soap and towels from the toilet rooms, so that both white and black passengers have only drinking water.

It must not be imagined that this is a mere matter of soap and towels. There is pending at the present time the suit of several negro Bishops to whom equality of Pullman car service was denied, and the question runs all through the passenger accommodations of Southern railways, with promise of extending to the North if it is not checked. There is even a possibility that enough votes may be involved to affect the Presidential election.

The subject ought to be discussed as a financial problem, apart from race prejudice. If there is scarcely enough business to support one Pullman car system, and the law demands a double service, the result will be the same as in the soap and towel case—there will be no Pullmans. It may be hard to convince the haughty Southrons that black and white should ride together below Mason and Dixon's line, as well as above it, and everywhere else in the world; but there is just one thing harder, and that is to argue a deficit in a balance sheet into a credit. The question is too serious to be made a politician's football, and the whites would do well to appreciate its boomerang effects.

THE INCOMES OF BERLIN.

The capital of Prussia and the German Empire is a fine, large, active, and prosperous city, which ranks in importance and prosperity with New York or Chicago in our own land. It is a better ordered city than either of these, and if it does not afford the evidences of great private wealth which are abundant with us, it does not reveal the same signs of contrasting poverty, so that the general impression is rather of greater than of less average well-being. There appear in a recent Consular report some figures of the income tax returns in Berlin that are extremely interesting.

The population is slightly over 2,000,000. Of these rather more than one-half, 1,125,000, are assessable for income tax, but a little less than one-half of these are exempt from taxation as not possessing the minimum income of $214 annually. The total number of persons on the tax list is 600,899. The great mass of these, 542,288, have incomes from $214 to $714. Only 58,288 have incomes over $714, or about one in nineteen of those assessable, or one in thirty-five of the entire population. The number in the classes having higher incomes dwindles rapidly. There are only 1,616 who have an income of more than $11,900; only forty-seven with an income of more than $119,000; only four with incomes over $476,000, and only two with incomes over $714,000. How thoroughly the inquiry into incomes is conducted is indicated by the following remark of the Consul, Mr. IFFT of Annaberg:

> I do not believe that any portion of the income of the man who works for his money often escapes assessment for income tax. The main servant, who earns $5 to $7 per month, has what her board and lodging would amount to charged against her in computing her income, and even the probable "tips" of the waiter are estimated for the same purpose.

THE SAME OLD STORY.

Only the other day Sir OLIVER LODGE gravely announced, not to a few credulous friends but to the whole world, that he had received a message from the spirit of his dead friend, F. W. M. MYERS. Sir OLIVER is a man of large intellectual gifts, of some standing as a scientist. Inevitably such a statement from such a man must influence weaker minds. It is the same old story. The hope of immortality is in us all, the survival of individuality after death a cherished belief, and unless we keep away from the adroit impostors who base their operations largely on this belief, and get their profits generally from the ignorant and superstitious, the wisest among us is likely to be entrapped sooner or later.

The exposure of the spiritualistic humbugs at Lily Dale, in the western part of this State, the facts about which have been made known this week, is the same old story, too. For nearly a quarter of a century the old tricks have been profitably played in this settlement, tricks that have been exposed and explained again and again in the newspapers, the mechanism for which is sold in shops.

Slate writing, cabinet materialization, spirit photography, and trumpet talking are cheaper and easier tricks than any in the stage conjuror's stock. Yet they are still effective in securing dupes, and whenever the public interest in them slackens some otherwise sane person like Sir OLIVER LODGE is deluded by a generally unintelligible communication from the spirit world to give a fresh impetus to the trade.

The letter of Mr. P. P. ALBERT, which appears in another column, is an appeal to the gentlemen of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Committee to bend their energies toward preserving from the quarrymen, as the Palisades were preserved, the historic and picturesque natural monuments of the Highlands. A practical step in that direction would be the enactment of Assemblyman BENNETT'S bill creating a permanent Highlands Protective Commission.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Argument That Hits Hard. A really neat contribution is made—not for the first time—to the vivisection controversy by Collier's Weekly when it admits the wisdom and denies the logic of the "antis" when they inserted in the pending bills a provision exempting from legislative restrictions inoculation experiments made for the purpose of obtaining antitoxic serums. As Collier's accurately says, the argument underlying this exemption is about as follows: "Wherever science has completely demonstrated its position, it may continue its experimentations. Where knowledge is still imperfect, it is advisable to restrict the experimentation of which the purpose is to widen that knowledge."

Of course the anti-vivisectionists would now be fighting the investigators of the serum field as fiercely as those in any other where living animals are used were it not that their researches have already resulted in the winning of a victory as brilliant as any recorded in all medical history—that over diphtheria. Ready and eager to deny facts as these queer people are, this one is too big for even them to ignore, and, however reluctantly, they have been obliged to confess that work along that particular line must go on. It gives animals many an uncomfortable hour and not a few deaths of which a detailed description would make unpleasant reading for the Lady with the Pug Dog, but nevertheless she sighs acquiescence when innumerable mothers tell of children thus saved from untimely graves.

The changing of diphtheria from one of the most dreadful diseases to one of those most easily cured when taken in time and properly treated is a triumph that everybody can understand, and one of which, nowadays, almost everybody has had experience in or near his own family, but it is only one among many already achieved directly through vivisection, and many another equally great can confidently be expected from it. Had the anti-vivisectionists had their way, diphtheria would still be the thing of horror it was in the past. Why, then, do they now claim the right to limit the activities of men whose only object is to confer new benefits of the same kind upon humanity?

Equality Again Attacked. Eighteenth century folk considered themselves extremely "advanced" when they asserted that all men were equal and should be recognized as such. The nineteenth century learned by painful experience that there wasn't much in that pretty phrase, and before the twentieth century began it was rather generally admitted that "equality of opportunity" was what would make everybody happy and good. But now President ELIOT of Harvard comes along and says that the one ideal is as absurd as the other and that an equalization of opportunity is neither possible nor desirable.

"Fit opportunity in infinite variety," according to him, is the phrase for present use. He would give men in all their varieties a chance to reach the positions their capacities qualify them to occupy, and he would have us see to it that society remains fluid—that passage from one stratum of society is free and easy. Commenting on this new doctrine in Charities, Dr. EDWARD T. DEVINE emphasizes its bearing on several of the most discussed questions of the day and its tendency to reveal them in an unfamiliar light.

If accepted, the courts will say less than in the past about treating everybody, the rich and the poor, the strong and the weak, alike. That is equality of opportunity, but it is also the restriction of opportunity, not its creation in infinite variety. The other principle warrants a diminution of the dearly loved freedom of contract—justifies denial of the right of labor, for instance, to make contracts destructive of health, and that of monopolists to raise unduly the price of commodities which are necessities of life. A new test is also provided for proposed legislation, and laws which multiply fit opportunity are to be favored, those which decrease it opposed.

Thus, thinks Dr. DEVINE, might many of the pitfalls of the nominal justice which is essential injustice be avoided, as well as the political helplessness into which we are continually led by the false assumption of equality. He adds, however: "Of course it would be dangerous. Corruption and class prejudice would delight in the new chances which such a doctrine would give them. All progress is dangerous and we can trust neither court nor Legislature with power for good unless they command our confidence that they are not disposed to use that power for evil."

A Diagnosis Perhaps "Suggested." To believe that Long Island has had a case of "sleeping sickness" is so difficult as to be for the present next to impossible. The life cycle of the trypanosome, which causes that malady, requires distinctively African conditions for its completion, and even if by some strange chance an infected fly of the one species that can carry that particular little beast has reached this country still able to transfer his fatal burden to a human being, nothing like an epidemic is remotely possible.

It is at least significant that this diagnosis, even as a guess, should have been made just after the arrival here of the one man whose name is connected with the disease in the minds of all doctors. It looks a good deal more like a case of "suggestion" than like one of "sleeping sickness," and further consideration of the boy's symptoms will almost certainly reveal that he died of something much more familiar in this country than is, or ever will be, the scourge of Equatorial Africa.

THE HIGH STEPS.

Explains Why They Are Placed on the New "Model" Cars.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the information, at least, if not the relief of those who complain of the high steps on the new Madison Avenue cars, it would be well to note that these cars are larger and heavier than the old ones. For their propulsion electric motors of higher power are required. With increase of power is also that of the diameters of field coils and armatures, which must be set in position favorable for connection with car axles, and high enough to avoid contact with snow, water, or any obstacle. Hence the car floor is elevated and the steps accordingly.

Without contrasting the area of the platforms two steps are impracticable, because it is apparent to observation that a step projection beyond the side of the vehicle would be a source of danger.

A DRAMATIC RENASCENCE.

The "New Movement" Does Not Mean Bernard Shaw or Ibsen.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In regard to the size of the New Theatre, it seems altogether more profitable in the long run to have as large a stage as possible, not only, as Mr. Bell has shown, that comedy can be produced satisfactorily on a tragedy stage, but, to say the least, a tragedy on spectacular lines loses positively the strength of its purpose, along with its grandeur of perspective, when produced on a stage inadequately small. Moreover, no mention is made in such a case of the little space behind the scenes. No matter how large the proscenium arch, by lowering the drop and pushing the tormentors out slightly at right and left the picture frame becomes quite small enough for any "intimate" drama that may be put on. Again, the architects have especially emphasized that the shape of the auditorium was elliptical, the back boxes almost parallel with the stage, with no seats under the balcony, so that every one in the house would necessarily be in close touch with the actors during a comedy; and still, in the classic and spectacular, the stage itself deep enough, sixty-eight feet, to allow any light effects or scenic perspective that would contribute to the general atmosphere of the piece.

Mr. Granville Barker is evidently very one-sided. There is nothing essentially "great" in his idea of a New Theatre, nor is Mr. George Bernard Shaw sufficiently "great" to be the master of any one at the head of such an institution. Mr. Shaw's work in the field of satirical farce is only an iota in importance compared with other masters of the same kind in France—men like Rabelais and Voltaire, who were more comprehensive and more versatile, and who won the credit, at least sometimes, of being decently serious. The "modern movement" does not mean necessarily Bernard Shaw and Ibsen; it should mean the awakening in a country of mingled nationalities of the best in the world's drama, the unfolding of the world's great personalities, with no restriction and no limitation.

We must recognize, of course, the light of modern construction in the drama, what in this respect such men as Scribe, Sardou, and Ibsen have taught us; that however beautiful the theme, poetry for itself as style is secondary to the larger purpose of the stage, which means an interesting story acted by interesting people. That does not argue the fact that poetry should be missing. A writer for the stage should be primarily a poet by nature, a dramatist in accomplishment. We are ready for drama along these great lines, and the New Theatre, with its large stage, should be the first to foster it.

HUDSON'S HIGHLANDS.

Natural Monuments of the Navigator's Discovery Disappearing—An Appeal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Great disappointment is felt in the plans so far formulated by the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission, that no worthy memorial will be left as a heritage of those who come after us. It is to be hoped, before a final determination of their plans is made, the Commissioners will seriously consider the suggestions which have already reached them from various sources, and, with the precedent of success before them, in the saving of the Palisades of the Hudson, continue the work of protection over the highlands above from Stony Point to Newburg Bay.

The responsibility already assumed by the State of New York in protecting the Palisades from harm, relieves the further protection of our river scenery from the trials and uncertainties of initial effort, and we will justly deserve the charge of unpardonable neglect if in celebrating the tri-centennial anniversary of the river's discovery, the destruction of its wild and romantic scenery is permitted to go on unrestrained and officially unnoticed.

The picturesque shores of the Hudson are inseparable from the river itself in its world-wide renown, and no act of commemoration can be more creditable to our State, and no tribute more worthy of the occasion than the preservation of the natural scenery of the river which so appropriately bears the name of Hudson.

"DUMPING" DONE HERE.

German Boards of Trade Declare Their Own Export Values.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The contention that the duty on a given article should be reduced when it is found to be offered at a lower price abroad than at home is outside of all logic. Every one engaged in any large way in business knows that the so-called practice of "dumping" or selling to foreign countries the surplus to keep factories running at full time at home is regarded as meritorious in every progressive business community.

The Dingley tariff forbids any article being valued for its rate of duty below the general wholesale price at place of shipment. This is done, of course, to try to stop the foreigner from "dumping" here; but unfortunately, in his anxiety to promote reciprocity, President Roosevelt has consented to take the valuations of the German Boards of Trade, without further investigation by the Treasury agents abroad. It is believed that this has led to considerable undervaluations, and it is certain that, with much machinery idle here, cotton goods have been imported largely, in spite of two freights and the duty.

PREPARATION.

Nature's very busy now—
  Not much time for play.
Getting ready for the plow,
  And the planting day.
Has to clear away the frost
  From the earth so numb;
Not a moment to be lost
  Ere the Maytime come.

Calls the sun up earlier,
  Puts him hard at work;
Every sunbeam is astir,
  Not a chance to shirk.
Keeps him working later, too,
  In the twilight hours,
For there's such a lot to do
  For the coming flowers.

Has to fold up all the wraps
Cage the vagrant, chilly snaps
  That would freeze the ground;
Has to wake up all the trees,
  Start the leaves along;
Get up breakfast for the bees—
  Pretty hungry throng!

Make things ready for the birds,
  Who have started north,
And the grass for grazing herds
  Must be sprouting forth.
Nature's quite the busiest
  Worker far and near—
Must have ready all her best
  When the May is here!

WORK BY MILLET SHOWN.

Etchings, Woodcuts, and Drawings on View at Keppel Galleries.

An exhibition of etchings, woodcuts, and original sketches by Millet at the Keppel Galleries gives the public, whose attention is just now attracted from all sides toward the Barbizon men, an opportunity to study Millet's talent in its most powerful manifestations. However expressive and simple his paintings may be, his drawings are more so. The use of brushes and pigment in spite of his dexterity of hand seems slightly to have clogged his inspiration. At all events, when he works with line his speech is more eloquent. In "The Wool-Carder," one of the most beautiful subjects rendered by his needle, we see the feeling that he expressed in one of his letters with reference to his painting of the same subject—"I hope to give her a grace and charm which are not seen in the workwomen of the suburbs," he writes; the memory of the peasant women at home, spinning and carding wool, is still fresh in my mind, and that is better than anything." The broad light on the full, strong figure, the pile of foamy wool, the serious, calm profile, the quiet motion of the capable hands, all aid in rendering the sentiment without a superfluous touch, yet this was one of the etchings that was saved by merest chance, as Millet had accidentally left the plate all night in the acid bath, and—not unnaturally—considering it overbitten, wished not to publish it. "With regard to Millet's original etchings," Mr. Keppel writes in the entertaining preface to his catalogue, "I am tempted to conclude that the master often did not seem to know a good proof from a bad one, or that if he did know he did not care."

When the question is not so much psychological as anatomical expression, Millet's treatment is equally adequate. Observe, for example, how in his "Peasant with a Wheelbarrow" the strain upon the man's arms, caused by the weight of his load, is shown; how he pushes his head forward in rhythm with the pushing of the cart, and how flatly the advancing foot is planted on the ground, while the other is braced to help the impetus of the figure—not a gesture is without its logical meaning. In "The Gleaners," also, the wonderful effect of the repetition of lines, noted by Mr. Cox, and the perspective of the ribbed field, with the little figures barely indicated in the distance, testify to Millet's complete understanding of his art. This little print fulfills as truly as any of his paintings his theory that in every landscape, however narrow the horizon, there should be suggestions of indefinite extension on every side, of a distance beyond the visible.

The "Shepherdess Knitting" has this same quality, together with an indescribable sweetness and a touch of the idyllic that reminds one of the etcher's reading of Theocritus and habit of translating the word pictures into mental images of the land he knew and so greatly loved. Something in the careless droop of the young figure under its heavy cloak and the blur of sunlight and shadow on the small head, in the slenderness of the sapling trees, and the awkward poses of the animals gives an air of naïveté not common to modern art, and holding a classic flavor.

The single lithograph is of "The Sower," and renders the action as vigorously as it is rendered in the painting; the gesture is that of a laborer trained to his task. In the background and whirling above his head is a flock of greedy birds.

The woodcuts, four or five in number, are of extreme simplicity of technique, but accomplish their object—that of expressing a strong and definite idea enveloped in a poignant sentiment, even more directly than the etchings. Finally, we have some thirty drawings, of all kinds and degrees of elaboration. A series of seven illustrations to the tale of Little Red Riding Hood supplies the light note otherwise missing in the work of this close observer, who constantly saw and pondered what he himself called "the sad fate of the world—weariness."

CHASE RAPS LEGISLATORS.

Clergyman Says They Betrayed the People by Defeating Race Track Bills.

Canon Chase of Christ Episcopal Church, Williamsburg, among the ministers who appeared before Gov. Hughes in favor of the abolition of race track gambling and prominently identified in all the reform movements in the city, preached a sermon yesterday against those members of the Legislature who helped by their votes to kill the anti-racing bills.

"It was Judas and the chief officials of the church and State who crucified Jesus," said Canon Chase. "Greed and avarice brought about the death of the Saviour. Christ has been crucified anew this past week in the Capitol of the Empire State. With a blush of shame on her face this commonwealth must go through this Holy Week realizing that the representatives of the people, sworn and paid to act for the people, have betrayed their trust, and given their boughten influence in behalf of an unscrupulous monopoly of gambling, which under the iniquitous pretense and hypocrisy of regulating gambling has reaped fabulous profits by educating, stimulating, and extending the gambling spirit widespread even among women and children.

"With quivering heart the church must go through this Holy Week, conscious that her indifference has encouraged a confidence on the part of gamblers that they could deceive the moral citizenship of our State, break the fundamental law of the commonwealth, bribe and intimidate Senators, and at the same time claim the protection of the laws of the State in their illegal and demoralizing business."

CONTENTEDLY WEDDED.

Happy on $22, Though Advancement Was Welcome.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mary Hart's a "brick," and such letters as hers encourage many doubters to believe that marriage is a success.

We were married seventeen years ago on a weekly salary of $22, and I am now earning twice that amount; yet we were as contented (and that is much of our happiness) on $22 as on $45. But that contentment did not smother a desire for advancement, with the result as stated. We simply lived within our means. Sometimes ends hardly met, but my wife looked just as well in her home-made gowns as in her dressmaker's costume, and to her I give all the credit, as most men must do.

How can this question be fairly discussed, for what is a feast for one is a famine for another? Thirty-five dollars a week may be poverty for the elevator apartment tenant; it is often ample for the suburbanite who owns his home on a 50 by 100 plot.

"Mr. Merry Heart."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been seriously interested as well as delightfully amused by the letters instigated by the inquiry of "Fides in Matrimonium." The interest now is centred in "Mary Hart," and this deservedly. But why is it more attention has not been given "Mr. Merry Heart"? How great must be the joy of "Mary" to have found in her husband a lover of books and simple living instead of one of the many lovers of display, who urge their wives to dress stylishly and make a gay show, and who pride themselves on their elaborately (though not comfortably) furnished homes and the social dash they cut; while splendid "Mr. Merry Heart" is satisfied, in the "two chairs and book" arrangement to act as a cushion in one, for "Mary."

Unmarried "Mary Harts."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The chances of such men as "J. F." are good, for there are many young women like "Mary Hart," and, strange to say, most of them are unmarried. The majority of young men are not smart enough to recognize them; they are not really looking for that kind of girl. All the better for "J. F.," and all he needs is the same shrewdness that he has displayed in his business to enable him to select a good wife.

PLAN TO CONTINUE THEATRE SERVICES

Dr. Carter Asks Church Federation to Carry On Sunday Meetings at the Belasco.

126 CONVERTS WON OVER

Graduates of Yale and Oxford Among Them—Pastor Thinks Theatre Revivals Draw Better Than Churches.

Theatre services for non-churchgoers, which were begun several weeks ago by the Rev. Dr. William Carter, pastor of the Madison Avenue Reformed Church, may be continued by the Federation of Churches of New York. At the request of the federation, Dr. Carter met a number of representative pastors of the city on the stage of the Belasco Theatre at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and explained in detail his plan of these services.

Dr. Carter stated that he had co-operation in the meetings from his Board of Officers, from his congregation, from the press, and from the public.

"When I brought the movement to the attention of my church officers," said Dr. Carter, "there was not a dissenting voice. I told my congregation of it, and asked for $1,000 to cover expenses. I received $1,600. When I approached the theatre management, they rented me the theatre for $75, less than half of what is usually charged, with the printed programmes thrown in. Throughout the theatre people have treated us with the greatest consideration. With a single exception, the theatre has been packed at every service, and members of my congregation have told me that the congregation is more attentive here than even in my own conservative church.

"The results have been unusual. I am not a trained evangelist, and yet there have been in these meetings 126 professions of conversion and 158 requests for prayer. In the congregations there have been persons from all the European capitals, from Australia and from China, as well as from nearly every State in the Union.

"Among the converts are a graduate of Yale and one of Oxford. The Yale man is wealthy and moves in the best society.

"The Oxford man was 'down and out.' He was once a churchman, but had fallen into bad habits, and had been ruined by following the races."

Dr. Carter warned the federation, if similar services were undertaken, to avoid all "freak methods." He said that when he began the meetings he received the offer of almost every kind of claptrap, but declined all of them.

Regarding the cost of the meetings, he said he thought $150 a week would be ample for the work, and that the support of 250 churches would enable him to continue the movement. Dr. Laidlaw, Secretary of the federation, asked Dr. Carter if he thought such meetings would succeed in a church as well as in a theatre. The minister replied that he was confident they would not.

Among those present were the Rev. Andrew Hegeman of St. Nicholas Collegiate Church, the Rev. George W. Downs of the Eighteenth Street Methodist Church, the Rev. E. Umbach, Second German Baptist Church; the Rev. H. G. Mendenhall, and the Rev. Julius Jaeger.

Last night's service at the Belasco was the last to be conducted by the Madison Avenue Reformed Church alone. The theatre was crowded. The subject discussed by Dr. Carter was "An Appeal to Manhood Through Womanhood."

At the close of the sermon Dr. Carter thanked the theatre management and the newspapers for the support they had given to the meetings. He then announced that next Sunday night the services would be transferred to his church, at Madison Avenue and Fifty-seventh Street, in which Commander Evangeline Booth of the Salvation Army, President Francis E. Patton of Princeton Theological Seminary, and Dr. Dawson of England would take part.

If it is decided to go ahead with the theatre services the meetings will be under the management of the Federation of Churches.

WARNS AGAINST AGITATORS.

Dr. Wesley Hill Tells Labor They Are Its Worst Enemies.

At the Metropolitan Temple, Fourteenth Street and Seventh Avenue, last night a large congregation, made up mostly of representatives of labor organizations, listened to the sermon of the pastor, the Rev. John Wesley Hill, on "The Rights of the Employer." A week before Dr. Hill had spoken on "The Rights of the Employe." Among other things, he said last evening:

"The employer has a right to what he has honestly earned. Deny that and you have shattered the cornerstone of our civilization. The proposition to abolish private property and make the State the general proprietor is false to every principle of equity and justice. The employer also has a right to decline the services of all intractable men.

"Men of the Parsons, Spies, Fielding, and Herr Most type have no reciprocal rights to be entitled to the consideration of the employer. Such men are the most dangerous foes of labor. Indolent, fanatical, restless, and revolutionary, they would array class against class, stimulate envy and discontent, inspire hatred of law and order, substitute dynamite for reason, and destroy, if possible, the Government itself.

"I believe in the rights of free speech, but I deprecate the inflammatory ebullitions of professional agitators whose only claim to being workingmen is based upon their ability to work the workingmen, men who make a revenue out of trouble and who fatten on calamity. I warn you against these disturbers of the public peace, these enemies of honest labor."

CHURCH SERVICE FOR A BANK.

Special Mass at St. Finbar's to Mark Reopening of Jenkins Company.

The Jenkins Trust Company, which closed its doors during the financial disturbances in October, will reopen for business on Wednesday. The temporary receiver was dismissed last week, and the affairs of the company have been turned over to the new Board of Directors, from which the Jenkins family have retired.

St. Finbar's Roman Catholic Church was a large depositor in the Bath Beach branch of the company, having raised about $15,000 of a new church building fund. At yesterday's services the pastor, the Rev. W. A. Gardner, announced a special mass for Wednesday morning to give thanks for the recovery from the financial disturbance.

"La Mascot" Opera for Church Benefit.

Prior to the celebration of the centenary of the New York Diocese of the Catholic Church, the opera "The Mascot" will be presented by St. Patrick's (old) Cathedral in the Lexington Opera House on Friday, April 24. The cast of the opera includes a chorus of 30 girls, 22 men, and 14 boys, with an orchestra of 15 pieces. The production will be given under the direction of Alfred J. Haywood, organist and choirmaster of the parish.

From Arabia to a Memorial Service.

Dr. and Mrs. H. R. L. Worrall, medical missionaries of the Dutch Reformed Church, who are stationed at Busrah, Arabia, on the Persian Gulf, arrived yesterday on the Atlantic Transport liner Minnetonka. They come here to attend a meeting to-day in the Marble Collegiate Church in commemoration of the late Dr. Jacob Chamberlain, who was for forty-nine years a missionary of the Reformed Church in India.

SINGERS, NOT OPERAS, ATTRACT MOST HERE

Conductor Hertz Deplores New York's Interest in Mere Personalities.

CARUSO FILLS THE HOUSE

Mr. Hertz Thinks We Will Get Over This and Appreciate Art in Music for Itself in Time.

The German branch of the Metropolitan Opera Company returns to the Opera House this week to sing Wagner's "Ring," while the Italian contingent sings Puccini in Baltimore. The preparation of the two Ring dramas, "Das Rheingold" and "Die Götterdämmerung," which have not been given this season, falls on the shoulders of Alfred Hertz, who has been rehearsing his forces this week, while Gustav Mahler conducted "Fidelio" and "Don Giovanni" in Boston.

An attempt will be made this year to improve the lighting effects in these music dramas. The scenery is new in recent years, and of sufficient excellence, but the stage management and lighting have been of inferior order. It has been Mr. Hertz's purpose during the rehearsals of the last few days to do what he could to make them better. A regular performance of "Rheingold" lasts only two hours. A rehearsal of the music drama the other day consumed six hours and a quarter.

After one of these rehearsals Mr. Hertz found a few minutes to talk with a TIMES reporter about what he thought of the much-discussed declining interest in Wagner.

"I can't see that interest in Wagner is decreasing," said Mr. Hertz. "Rather do I find that the interest in Mr. Caruso is increasing. It is not a great interest in the Italian opera, but a great interest in Mr. Caruso, that fills the Opera House. Go to the opera on Italian nights when that tenor is not singing, and you will find smaller audiences than on the German nights.

"I do not believe that it is the right spirit for the American public to take such an extraordinary interest in personalities. It is the intention of the Opera House to present the best casts possible, and it sometimes happens that these are not as good as some which have been heard in the past. But the art work itself is still there. When I go to the theatre to hear Shakespeare I do not go to hear Sothern or Miss Marlowe, but 'Hamlet' or 'As You Like It.' The American public is afflicted with a passion for personalities, from which I am sure it will recover.

"At Beyreuth, where it is often difficult to obtain singers to appear once in two years for a few performances, sometimes works like 'Tristan' have to be dropped from the répertoire for several seasons. I do not think that this would be the right thing to do in an opera house like the Metropolitan. We give works with the best casts obtainable, but I think the music dramas should always be given, if some years with less success than others."

Mr. Hertz has been at the Metropolitan for six years. During his stay there he has conducted all the Wagner works but "Rienzi," and has brought out here for the first time "Parsifal," "Hänsel und Gretel," "The Queen of Sheba," and "Salome."

"I think it is a great mistake not to include 'Rienzi' in the répertoire here," he said yesterday. "It is an opera which would make a large appeal. It isn't the later Wagner, but it shows the growing force of the man."

Mr. Hertz will conduct d'Albert's "Tiefland" when it is given here next year. It is a work of which he thinks most highly. Mr. d'Albert sent him the score before it was produced in Germany last Winter. Mr. Hertz also predicts success for "The Cricket on the Hearth," with an English libretto.

"All the characters of the story are English," he said, "and it is founded on an English story which everybody knows. I can conceive of no more suitable work with which to begin the custom of giving works in English at the Metropolitan.

"Humperdinck's 'Königskinder' is more or less uncertain. The music, as it stands, is incidental music for a play, and very charming music. Humperdinck is at present turning it into an opera, and if he gets it done in time we shall produce it here."

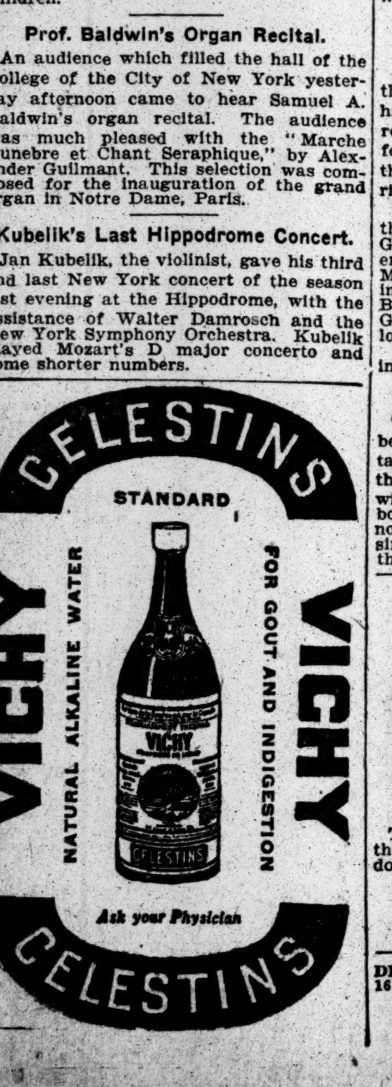
Prof. Baldwin's Organ Recital.

An audience which filled the hall of the College of the City of New York yesterday afternoon came to hear Samuel A. Baldwin's organ recital. The audience was much pleased with the "Marche Funebre et Chant Seraphique," by Alexander Guilmant. This selection was composed for the inauguration of the grand organ in Notre Dame, Paris.

Kubelik's Last Hippodrome Concert.

Jan Kubelik, the violinist, gave his third and last New York concert of the season last evening at the Hippodrome, with the assistance of Walter Damrosch and the New York Symphony Orchestra. Kubelik played Mozart's D major concerto and some shorter numbers.



MANNES CONCERTS CLOSE.

Large Audience at Last of a Series of Chamber Music Programmes.

The third and last of the series of concerts of violin and piano sonatas, chronologically arranged, was given at the Stuyvesant Theatre last evening by Mr. and Mrs. David Mannes. The audience was larger than it had been at either of the other concerts, and the series for next season, which is already announced, should be successful, as there are few opportunities to hear chamber music of this class publicly performed.

Two Belgian composers, César Franck and Guillaume Lekeu, were prominent on the programme last evening, while the name of Brahms offered a good contrast. Lekeu's sonata in G major was announced as receiving its first public performance in New York. This young Belgian was born in 1870, and died in 1894, leaving fifty-six works. He was discovered by Ysaye, and studied with Franck and d'Indy. He shows in the sonata the influence of both these men, but he seems to have less of a fondness for discordant effects than many of the members of the modern French school. The sonata, in fact, is very beautiful, the finale, especially, is original and striking.

Brahms's G major sonata and César Franck's A major sonata are both well-known works, and while in intention and spirit they are the antithesis, one of the other, still the hearing of each gives much pleasure.

ARRESTED AT WIFE'S GRAVE.

Police Suspicions Aroused by Mrs. Ryan's Death.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., April 12.—When his wife's body had been laid in the grave this afternoon Frederick E. Ryan of 1,014 Main Street was arrested and to-night he is in the village lockup. During the funeral a policeman in plain clothes was never far from Ryan, and he rode to the cemetery with the family. Ryan will be in the Police Court to-morrow, charged with homicide.

Dr. E. B. Lyon first called the attention of Coroner Silleck to the case. Last Wednesday evening Ryan went to the doctor's office and asked him to see Mrs. Ryan. The doctor says he found the woman well and not suffering from anything worse than a slight attack of nervousness. Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock Ryan again called on the doctor, who was not inclined to go to the house until Ryan told him he feared his wife was dying. Dr. Lyon then went to the house and found the woman had been dead three, and perhaps four hours. He could find no apparent cause for her death.

Friday morning William Teets, who lives on the third floor of the same house as the Ryans, told the police he reached home about 1 o'clock Thursday morning. As he went upstairs he said he heard sounds of a quarrel in the Ryan apartment. Later there was quiet, and then Mrs. Ryan the younger came to their apartment.

She was much excited, and asked for shelter. She said she feared her husband would kill her., Teets declared She said if she lived until morning and could get out of town, then she would leave the village and never return. There was still talking in the apartment below, but it died out, and after a couple of hours Mrs. Ryan calmed down, and decided to go to her own apartment. She went down. A few minutes later there appeared to be a scuffle, but it lasted only a moment, and Teets and his wife thought the trouble was ended.

Coroner Silleck on hearing this story ordered the removal of the body to the hospital, and there an autopsy was performed yesterday. Dr. Lyon, Dr. Mason, and Dr. O'Brien participated. They found nothing that would account for the woman's death.

KITTEN STOPS A CAR LINE.

Motormen Disable Two Cars Trying to Avoid Hitting Pussy.

A small gray kitten caused a block of half an hour last evening of the crosstown Fifty-ninth Street cars and the north and south bound Lexington Avenue cars.

The kitten darted out of a cigar store on the corner and ran directly in front of a Lexington Avenue car. The motorman shut off the power too quickly, and a fuse blew out. This caused a delay for a few minutes, and then the kitten started across the Fifty-ninth Street tracks directly in front of an eastbound car.

This time the motorman also shut off his power too quickly, and the car stopped directly across the Lexington Avenue tracks. The shoe of the car became loosened, and the wrecking wagon had to be sent for.

When men were at work on the car the kitten ran underneath one of the stalled cars, where it was pulled out by a small boy. A woman who had seen the kitten running about took it from the boy and hurried away with it.

NEW TELEPHONE FASHION.

Call the Exchange Before the Number and You Save Time at "Central."

You may have noticed that when you have called a number on the telephone in the last few days "central" has repeated it, giving the name of the exchange before the number. Thus, if 1,000 Bryant is called "central's" voice comes back over the wire, "Bryant, 1,000."

This is the result of a general order issued by the telephone company, with the idea principally of saving time at the switchboards. The company incidentally believes that there will be fewer mistakes in supplying the number by repeating with the number last. The saving of time comes in "plugging into" the exchange wanted.

As "Central" repeats the call, at the instant she says "Bryant" she connects with that exchange, and the operator there is supposed to be in time to hear the number, which comes next.

At least, that is the telephone company's idea.

TO REVIVE SORRENTO.

Maine's Summer Resort Has Been Bought by George H. Grant.

Special to The New York Times.

BAR HARBOR, Me., April 12.—One of the largest real estate deals in Maine has just been completed, by which Sorrento, the handsome Summer resort founded and owned by Frank Jones, the capitalist, has been transferred outright to George H. Grant of Ellsworth.

All the remaining property owned by the Jones estate has been sold to Mr. Grant, including 500 acres of shore property. It is valued at more than $250,000. Mr. Grant has sold one-quarter of his interest to Mrs. Horatio N. Slater of Boston. The land just purchased by Mr. Grant will be cut up into large cottage lots.

The new owners contemplate developing the place as a Summer resort.

City Ferryboats to be Overhauled.

The municipal ferryboat Manhattan has been withdrawn from the service and taken to Owl's Head, Brooklyn, for a thorough overhauling and repairing, and will be followed in turn by the other boats of the fleet. These city boats have not been repaired on the upper works since they were placed in service nearly three years ago.

PLAYS ON THE STAGE BY MACHINERY ALONE

Charles H. Perry Perfects Deal for Use of the "Theatorium" in Leading Houses.

THE SHUBERTS TAKE A HAND

Shakespeare's Plays, "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde," and Other Dramas to be Presented Without Actors.

"Moving and talking pictures" on a far more elaborate scale than they have ever yet been seen in public are to invade the theatrical field next season, not in opposition to the theatre managers, as has been supposed, but with their assistance and sanction. In fact, it is hoped that these entertainments will afford a simple means for supplying attractions for some of the houses which have not been profitable of late. A new mechanical device called the "Theatorium" has finally been perfected, and the various demonstrations that have already been given at some of the New York theatres prove that this mechanism is able to reproduce entire plays and operas, giving the sounds of words and music as well as the entire action without actors.

The main projector of this undertaking at present is Charles Howard Perry, who explained last night just what he proposes to do.

"We can offer our reproductions, with music, words, and action all harmonized, as fast as we can get them into form," he said. "We know that our machine will work, because it has been thoroughly tested in the presence of theatrical men at the Broadway Theatre, the Majestic Theatre, one of the Keith & Proctor theatres, and several other large houses. We do not consider that it belongs to the same class as the cameraphone and other living and talking picture contrivances. We give an entire evening's entertainment of two hours and a half, instead of merely showing brief scenes or dances from operas and plays.

"You needn't stay awake nights wondering how we are going to get theatres for the performances. That's been our worry, and we've got it arranged now so we can get all of them we want. We have been making preparations for the last fourteen months, and we know just how the managers stand in the matter. As to the possibility of our being opposed by Klaw & Erlanger and the Shuberts, I can only say that we already have a dozen of our performances booked for regular tours, like any ordinary theatrical company, beginning in the Autumn."

The "Theatorium" is a device which combines the effects to be obtained by gramophones and by moving picture apparatus. The immense gramaphone is placed behind the curtain on which the moving pictures appear, and is so contrived that the machine shifts automatically to three discs. Discs not in use may always be replaced by fresh ones, and thus the flow of sound may continue without interruption for an indefinite period. The gramaphone is necessarily synchronized with the moving picture apparatus in front of the curtain. At the end of each act the regular curtain of the theatre is dropped for an intermission exactly as during a regular performance.

Among the productions, or reproductions, already prepared are "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Othello," "Hamlett," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," and similar standard plays. Mr. Perry also says that he has made an arrangement with the Shuberts by which he is to make a reproduction of "The Girl Behind the Counter," now playing with Lew Fields at the Herald Square Theatre. He says, moreover, that he has three grand opera reproductions ready to offer. It is understood that the Theatorium entertainments will be seen in regular theatres, and that, in the cases of the most ambitious offerings the best seats will be sold at prices ranging as high as $1.

BENEFIT FOR INFANT HOME.

Young Folks' League to Give a Performance To-night at the Hudson.

The Young Folks' League of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum will have charge of the filling of the Hudson Theatre to-night. The league bought out the house for the evening and resold the tickets. It also got the programme to fill with advertisements, and out of that it has cleared about $700. Altogether the league expects to clear $2,500 out of the performance.

Otis Skinner, who is playing at the Hudson in "The Honor of the Family," will make a speech if the league's plans count for anything. Many city officials have bought tickets, and the gathering is expected to be quite a notable one.

The money made out of the theatre venture by the league will be added to the building fund of the infant asylum. This institution cares for children from one day old to five years. It is one of the few institutions of its kind in the country, and the only one in this city.

It began some fifteen years ago in a cottage which was large enough to allow for the care of eight babies. Aided by such organizations as the league it has grown until now it takes care of 150 children.

HIPPODROME 3 YEARS OLD.

Four Original Members of the Company to Celebrate.

Yesterday was the third birthday anniversary of the Hippodrome. Following the performance of Saturday night, the company held a reunion on the stage, being divided off in groups according to the length of their engagements on the stage at the big playhouse. Out of the company of 420 persons who appear on the stage there were 38 members of the original company.

There were just four people who had never missed either a performance or a rehearsal. These faithful four will be entertained as guests of the management in a box to-night and will have their first opportunity to see a Hippodrome performance from the front.

Safety Measure for the New Hats.

Women who wear the new big Spring hats need not be afraid to go to Daly's Theatre. There the hats will be the especial care of the management. The Shuberts will provide a rack in the lobby, and will have a regular milliner's assistant in attendance.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Fritzi Scheff and the "Mlle. Modiste" company arrived in New York yesterday after a tour of six months on the road. Miss Scheff will play her final engagement in this musical piece at the Academy of Music Easter Week.

Ted Marks's annual jubilee was given last night in the New York Theatre. There were a large audience and an elaborate vaudeville bill.

Among the players who will appear at the benefit for the Mary Fisher Home, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria on April 24, will be Otis Skinner, William H. Crane, Margaret Dale, Hattie Williams, and some of the principals from "The Merry Widow" company.

Bingham to Speak at City Club.

Police Commissioner Bingham is to speak on last year's developments in his department at a dinner to be given at the City Club this evening, on the sixteenth anniversary of the founding of the club. The guests and other speakers will include Edmond Kelly, late of Paris but now returned to New York, who was the club's first active executive; John E. Parsons and Austen G. Fox, former Presidents; R. Fulton Cutting, and Robert C. Ogden. George McAneny will preside.

A FEW COLONELS HERE.

Speaking of Bryan Col. Bagley of North Carolina Tells an Anecdote.

Col. Henry Bagley of Raleigh, N. C., is in the city. Col. Bagley is the business manager of Col. Josephus Daniel's famous Bryan-molder, The Raleigh News and Observer.

"Are Col. Bryan and Col. Daniels still anxious to save the party?" he was asked.

"Sho'ly, Suh," replied Col. Bagley.

Col. Bagley is sharing a suite of rooms with Col. Hunter, a North Carolina capitalist, at a downtown hotel.

"Are the North Carolinians still eager to see Bryan nominated?" Col. Hunter was asked after Col. Bagley had evinced his disinclination to discuss politics.

"Ah'll tell yo', Suh," replied Col. Hunter. "There's only one new thing that's happened in North Ca'lina recently, an' hit has the complexion of persiflage, Suh.

"Two ole nigguhs that couldn't count went out to gather hick'ry nuts. They started fo' a cemetery to divide 'em, and as they entered the restin' place of the dead, Suh, one of 'em dropped two nuts. Inside the cemetery wall they began dividin' the nuts. Not knowin' how to count, one of the nigguhs separated the nuts by puttin' one on one side the wall and another on t'other side.

"'One fo' you an' one fo' me,' he said aloud as he did this.

"It kep' up fo' an hour this 'one fo' you an' one fo' me' tally. In the meanwhile another nigguh outside the cemetery wall heahs their voices and gets scared. He runs into town and tells a friend that God and Satan are in the cemetery dividin' up the dead. His friend returns with him to the cemetery and they listen. The same voice is callin' out, 'One fo' you an' one fo' me.'

"When the las' hick'ry nut had been counted the voice on the inside of the cemetery wall said: 'Now, we'll go outside an' get the other two an' divide 'em.'"

"That reminds me," broke in Col. Bagley. "Two Virginia darkies met after many yeahs th' other day.

"'Wasn't you at de battle ob de Crater?' asked one.

"'Ah sho' was,' the other nigguh answered.

"'Yo' 'membuh how we nigguhs did run when de Confedrits begun shootin' at us?'

"'Suttinly do.'

"'But ouah white folks wasn't shootin' at us; dey was shootin' in de air.'

"'Cos' dey was shootin' in de air. We nigguhs wasn't runnin', man. We was flyin.'"

FOOD.

A doctor, very fond of coffee, found in a few days after returning to the old habit, that his heart action was so disturbed as to make it difficult for him to go up stairs.

A week after leaving off coffee and resuming Postum, he had no symptoms of "heart trouble."

He proved that coffee does cause functional heart disturbance and that "There's a Reason," for Postum.

FROM NAVY'S RANKS TO AN ARMY OFFICER

Lieut. Steunenberg, Once a Coal Passer—Brig. Gen. Wotherspoon, a Master's Mate.

AND OTHERS WON THEIR WAY

Many Annapolis Graduates in the Army, Too, but New Order Bars Transfer in the Future.

"Did you ever hear of Steunenberg of the Thirteenth Cavalry?" an army officer asked a brother officer at the Army and Navy Club the other night. The officer to whom the inquiry was addressed answered that he had, and then asked why the question was asked.

"I was just thinking of that order from Washington which says that graduates of Annapolis will be expected to serve exclusively in the navy, and will not be permitted to have themselves transferred to the army, as was formerly the case," answered the first officer, "and thinking of the navy brought to my mind the wonderful record of this fellow Steunenberg, who never went to Annapolis, but who began his active career as a coal passer in the navy."

The officer then told the story of Steunenberg.

"George Steunenberg, now a First Lieutenant in the Thirteenth Cavalry," said the officer, "was born in Iowa some thirty-odd years ago. He was and is a big, fine-looking fellow, and, like a lot of other young fellows from out West, he had a hankering to see service in the navy. He was just 22 years of age when he applied for a position in the navy, and I can imagine the surprise of the recruiting officer when Steunenberg said what he wanted to do. He wanted to stoke. Of course he got the job, and from what I have heard few better stokers ever shoveled coal into the furnace of a warship.

"He did his work so well that when he was mustered out he was an engineer yeoman and a finely educated youngster for one of his opportunities. For three years after he was mustered out he made good as a civilian, and then along came the Spanish war, and Steunenberg promptly caught the war fever. He was then living in Idaho, and it happened that the Governor of that State knew a real man when he saw one, and he promptly gave Steunenberg a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the First Idaho Infantry. When the regiment was mustered out Steunenberg was a Captain.

Won Attention of McKinley.

"Steunenberg liked the army so well that he refused to go back to civilian life, and six weeks after he was mustered out Capt. Steunenberg was a private in the Eleventh United States Cavalry. He was soon made a Corporal, then a Sergeant, and finally First Sergeant of Troop A, and there he stopped for a while, for, as it transpired soon afterward, President McKinley had heard of him, the result being that when the Forty-eighth United States Volunteer Infantry was mustered into service our friend Steunenberg received a commission as a First Lieutenant. Ten months later he became a Lieutenant of regulars, and since that time he has been an ornament to the service."

Steunenberg is not the only officer of the army who first saw service as an enlisted man of the navy. Brig. Gen. William W. Wotherspoon was for three years a master's mate in the navy, while among those of lesser rank who first drew Government pay as enlisted men of the navy are Lieut. David L. Roscoe of the First Cavalry, who began as a naval apothecary; Lieut. Marr O'Connor, a Michigan University graduate, who started as an ordinary seaman, and who is now a Lieutenant in the Tenth Cavalry; Lieut. William H. Raymond, once a private of marines, now a Lieutenant of Artillery.

Lieut. Adolph Langhorst, now of the artillery, quit the navy to become a cook in the army, and by close study and application won his way to a commission. Capt. Frederick Krug of the Twentieth Infantry used to be a Paymaster's yeoman, Capt. Cromwell Stacey of the Twenty-first Infantry was once a drummer in the Marine Corps, and Lieut. Edmund S. Sayer, Jr., a New York boy, started as an apprentice seaman of the third class.

The number of Annapolis graduates in the army is much greater, and but few of them left the navy until they knew that their army commissions awaited them.

BEATEN IN TRANSFER FIGHT.

Conductor and Motorman Arrested for Attacking a Passenger.

Andrew Keogh of 500 West 166th Street and Thomas Brennan of 1,624 Amsterdam Avenue, conductor and motorman, respectively, of a Columbus Avenue and Broadway surface car, were arraigned in the West Side Court before Magistrate Wahle yesterday morning on complaint of George A. Lewis of 261 West 112th Street, who accused them of beating him when he demanded the return of an Eighth Avenue transfer which the conductor refused to honor.

Lewis said he got on the car Saturday night at Fifty-ninth Street, and handed the conductor a transfer from the Eighth Avenue line. The conductor told him it was "no good," and demanded the fare. Lewis said he offered to give him a nickel if he would return the transfer. Instead of returning it, he said, the conductor tore it in two. He then refused to pay the fare until the transfer was returned. They argued about it until they reached Eighty-first Street and Columbus Avenue, when the conductor, Keogh, he said, struck him on the head with some blunt instrument, knocking him off the car and making an ugly scalp wound. Then, he said, Motorman Brennan came up, and, while he was down, kicked him in the face.

Patrolman Leonard of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station arrested the conductor and the motorman, and Dr. Cardinal of Roosevelt Hospital put five stitches in the wound on Lewis's head. Magistrate Wahle adjourned the case to April 20, at the request of Lewis, who wished to obtain witnesses. Keogh and Brennan were paroled in the custody of Chief Inspector Parker of the railway company.

KENNEDY FINISHES FIRST IN ROAD RACE

Over 100 long-distance runners out of 113 starters finished in the cross-country race to-day held under the auspices of the Ridge Athletic Club at Yonkers. The entry list totaled 122, and only nine of this number failed to face the starter. The race was won by James Kennedy, Crescent Athletic Club, in 32:05, with C. Appleyard, Century Athletic Club, second in 32:08, and J. Dowd of the same organization third 5 seconds away.

The contestants represented many of the leading clubs in the Metropolitan District of the Amateur Athletic League, and despite the strong wind finished the distance, about six miles, in good time. The team prize was not awarded, owing to some dispute as to the positions of several of the runners. The decision will be rendered at a meeting of the club and race officials to-night.

W. McCarthy, St. Peter's, cut out the pace, followed by H. Strydio, Century Athletic Club, and James Kennedy, Crescent Athletic Club. These men kept in front during the first part of the race, but on the homeward journey the latter went out in front, attended by J. Dowd, Crescent Athletic Club. Kennedy was not headed, and won by five yards. The summary:

Name and Club.	Finish. M. S.
James Kennedy, Crescent A. C.	32:05
C. Appleyard, Century A. C.	32:08
J. Dowd, Century A. C.	32:13

The order in which the next fifteen finished follows: R. Clark, St. Peter's A. C.; Jeff McDonald, Elite A. C.; Alec Young, Germania A. C.; J. Ball, Crescent A. C.; J. Nyden, Crescent A. C.; N. Ormond, Elite A. C.; J. McGrath, St. Peter's A. C.; A. Gustaveson, St. Peter's A. C.; A. Schoenback, St. Peter's A. C.; J. O'Donnell, Monastery Y. M. C. A.; F. Mulrooney, Century A. C.; T. Clarey, Elite A. C.; P. Duecy, Elite A. C.; John Foley, Elite A. C.; J. Newman, St. Casimir, A. C.

W. Boyle, with a handicap of 2:30, finished first in the last monthly cross country run of the Mohawk Athletic Club. Twenty-five men started over the regular club course from the clubhouse, 158th Street and Walton Avenue, by way of Walton Avenue to 184th Street and return, a distance of five miles. The contestants kept well together during the early stages of the race, but on the return journey Fred Lorz made the pace and brought the contestants home at a lively clip. Boyle's handicap proved too much for the back markmen, and he won by a comfortable margin. Fred Lorz, who was handicapped with forty-five seconds, won the time prize in 29:18, within fifteen seconds of the record of the course held by Joseph Malone. J. L. Massie won the novice prize from the 2:45 mark.

The Mohawk Athletic Club will send two men to the Boston Marathon race, Fred Lorz and G. Smith. The latter is a new man, but gives promise of developing into a good runner. C. Miller, the winner of the Metropolitan A. A. U. cross country championship, has bruised his foot and will not compete for a month. The summary:

Name.	Hdcp.	Finish. M.S.
W. Boyle	2:30	30:40

The final handicap cross-country run of the Harlem Evening High School, held yesterday from Macomb's Dam Park over a course of about three miles, brought out a field of thirty-two starters, of whom thirty finished. After a mile and a half of running, Charles A. Roth, with a handicap of fifteen seconds, took the lead, holding it to within a quarter of a mile of the finish, where he was overtaken by Harry J. Smith, (scratch,) who finished first. C. Grannan was third. Medals were awarded to the first six to finish. The first ten men to finish were:

COLUMBIA'S NEW QUARTERS.

Coach Rice Expects Crew to Occupy Boathouse on May 1.

On account of the high wind working on a strong tide to produce very rough water, the Columbia crews were not sent out on the Harlem River Saturday. Coach Rice does not regard it as a day wasted, however, for it saw the first step in his favorite scheme accomplished, that of towing the barge which is to be remodeled into training quarters and boathouse for the blue and white oarsmen around from Staten Island to the place it is to occupy just above Fort Lee. A force of carpenters is to be put at work on it to-morrow, and Coach Rice has announced to his men that they are to begin work there on May 1. It has been announced that the present quarters on the Harlem are sold, but the buyer is not known.

Rice does not say very much about his crews, but it is thought that he is pretty well satisfied with them. His first boat, in which there are only three new men, is now traveling at pretty nearly the same speed it made at Poughkeepsie. The loss of the Mackenzie brothers is something of a setback, although there are good men to take their places. Notable among these are Jordan, who rowed 2 at Annapolis last year and is now at that place; Ryan, the basketball giant, who went up the river last year as a substitute, and Helmrich, who pulls a very powerful oar, but who is not at present eligible. The second boat is better than it was last year, and it makes the first boat stretch itself much harder in the brushes. Rice has been giving both crews long rows. One day last week they traveled out into the Hudson and up to Yonkers before the word to turn was given. The coach's method is to start the second boat with a good lead and then make the first boat row till they overtake them.

Notes of the Oarsmen.

Jack Mulcahy had many youthful aspirants from the Stuyvesant High School out last week. An eight-oared shell, composed of rough material, was under Mulcahy's tutelage, while Eddie Tyler took out a four-oared barge and put the boys through the paces.

G. M. Young, the veteran oarsman and one of the oldest Atalanta oarsmen living, celebrated the beginning of his fifty-second actual season by taking a spin up the Harlem last week.

After the rough weather of yesterday morning had calmed down, many of the well-known oarsmen ventured out, either to take a spin on the water or cover several miles on the road.

Mehrhoff and Walsh of the Nassau B. C. went out in singles yesterday afternoon. The former has instituted a hard course of training, including both indoor and outdoor work, in preparation for the coming regattas.

Capt. John A. Nagle of the Harlem B. C. is still bringing out schoolboy talent. He has the crew of the De Witt Clinton High School in training at present, and had them out on the water last week. Several good individuals were among them.

GOOD SPEEDWAY BRUSHES.

Road Drivers Out in Force—Many New Horses Tried Out.

The fine weather yesterday brought out a number of the Speedway brigade, who furnished some interesting brushes on the Speedway Drive for a big crowd of spectators. The roadway was in splendid condition, and, while nearly all the regulars were out, many preferred to jog their horses until the season is more advanced. The number of horses, however, was in excess of that of any Sunday this year, and, according to indications, the quality of the sport, which really begins after the annual Speedway parade and horse show of the Road Drivers, May 2, will be better than that of many seasons past. As a parade the morning's sport was interesting, but from a speed standpoint there was much to be desired.

J. W. Cornish, with his "cream puff" Grand Circuit horse Tempus Fugit, 2:07¼, was one of the first to arrive. For a time the crack was only jogged, but when Tom McGuire with John Axworthy threw down the gauntlet Cornish sent Tempus Fugit along at a lively gait. Half way down the stretch they were joined by George H. Huber with Nigger Pandit. John Axworthy finished first by a short half length, with Tempus Fugit second. The latter, however, showed superior class, and had Mr. Cornish desired to push his horse the result would have been different.

Edward J. La Place drove his new pacer, Kate Nelson, 2:10¼, but declined to speed her, as he feared she was not quite far enough advanced for brushing. Joseph F. Gibbons was behind his new green trotter Clara. She showed good speed, but Mr. Gibbons failed to find anybody willing to try conclusions with him. Fannie Q., driven by M. C. Reynolds, defeated Fancy Prince with J. Thompson. The latter is a new Speedway addition, and will show to better advantage later in the season. A closely contested heat resulted from the meeting of Harry C. Toplitz's veteran Speedway performer and Ada Jig, driven by Andrew Crawford, in which the former was returned the winner. In a second brush between Fancy Prince and Fannie Q., the former turned tables on his former vanquisher. In a three-cornered brush between John Axworthy, Ada Jig, and Nigger Pandit the horses finished in the order named.

Louis Berger drove the old Grand Circuit performer, John M., (2:02¼,) but could finish second only, John Axworthy, with Fancy Prince, filling third position. In the next brush Mr. Huber, with Gracie Pandit, took the measure of John M. Fancy Prince won the third and deciding heat from Fannie Q. In the other brushes Gracie Pandit finished first from Ogden Smith, which has been sold by J. W. Smith, and Red B.; Jack M., with L. Berger driving, won from Ogden Smith, but the latter scored a victory over Red B. in the last heat of the day.

There were several teams out. Claus Bohling drove Kingmond and A. J. D. Leo Ottinger speeded Nashville and Charley W., the latter being a show-ring winner, and S. Greenbaum handled the reins behind Bugle Call and Peter H. Ackley C. Schuyler showed his new purchase, P. E. O., a stylish, free-going black mare; Hugh C. Riley jogged his bay mare, Lucy; Christopher Hackett drove Sallie A.; W. J. Scott showed his old favorite, Kitty Wilkes, which was in good shape; Marcus Bruckheimer was behind Larabie Rose; Charles Rothschild drove his good-going mare, Fannie K.; F. R. Bain's Zealous was driven by his trainer; W. J. Clark drove Ready Boy, and Josephine Harold was jogged by Dr. C. H. Story.

NOVEL TESTS FOR TROTTERS.

Big Prizes for Odd Harness Races Interest Horsemen.

The two greatest prizes ever offered for harness-bred horses and the two most distinct novelties devised in recent years for trotting racing have taken form within the past few days as rivals for the entry of the best and fastest horses in America, though the prospects are that the same horses may compete in both events. These are the $25,000 international race, offered by the Imperial Society of St. Petersburg, Russia, and the $50,000 race offered by the New England Breeders' Association of Boston for the Readville track's Grand Circuit meeting.

A committee of American patrons of the light-harness turf, composed of W. E. D. Stokes and Russell B. Allen of New York, Harry K. Devereux of Cleveland, and Frank Gorton of Chicago, appointed before the announcement of the great race at Readville, was expected to secure the best American representation for the St. Petersburg race, but up to the present the committee has made no statement of progress or of any promise of American entries for the Russian international contest.

The two races are framed under absolutely different conditions, though in both events speed as indicated by records is put in the first place. The St. Petersburg race, which was planned first, is to be a test of speed, decided on the matter of time alone, and without actual direct contest between horses. The proposition is that on the same course the entries shall start one at a time, for a trial of speed against time, and that the horse which makes the fastest time shall be the winner. The Readville race is to be a handicap, at a mile and a quarter, arranged on the merits of the horses engaged as indicated by the time records that they hold at the date of the race.

The Readville race is to be trotted at the Summer Grand Circuit meeting of this season, on July 4, and the horses that are expected to figure among the most noted of the entries are Major Delmar, Sweet Marie, Mainsheet, George G., Sonoma Girl, Axcyell, and High Ball. The St. Petersburg race is to be decided in 1909, in the late part of the Summer.

BERMUDA YACHT RACE.

Entry of Sloop Little Hope Makes Seven Aspirants for Contest.

Seven entries have now been received for the Bermuda yacht race, which is to be held this season under the auspices of the Corinthian Yacht Club of Marblehead, Mass. Six entries were received some time ago, but the receipt of a seventh entry last week indicates that the race is beginning to attract the attention of yachtsmen willing to enter upon a long-distance contest. T. K. Lothrop, Jr., has entered this latest boat, the sloop Little Hope, in Class D.

Little Hope is a fine cruising sloop, designed and built by Burgess & Packard at Marblehead in 1906, and has a fine record of ocean cruising. In 1906 and 1907 she went across the Bay of Fundy, down the coast of Nova Scotia, and along the coast of Newfoundland.

Last year, when the American yachtsmen arrived at Bermuda, they found that, although according to the regular rules pilotage for foreign vessels was compulsory, the Government had passed a special act the previous Winter permitting yachts in the race to enter without any pilot at all, or to take any individual pilot whom they preferred. It is understood that the Government has passed a similar act for the coming race.

The other six entries for the race are Fleur de Lys, in Class A; Esperanza, Zuhrah, and Dervish, in Class B, and Lila and Chaos, in Class D.

TURF MACHINERY READY FOR START

BETTORS TO 'WALK AROUND'

Twenty Horses Likely to Start for the $10,000 Carter Handicap, the Opening Feature.

All the machinery of the turf is in readiness for the opening of a new racing season on Wednesday at the Aqueduct track, and horses and horsemen already have assembled on the Long Island training courses in such numbers as to practically fill all the available quarters in the full expectation that for them racing will go on under the conditions that prevailed last season. Preparations by the racing associations have been made under similar expectations, and the guarantee from the race track managers has gone out that whatever else may come the racing will be conducted on the same plane that racing existed in 1907. The final assurance of this for the Aqueduct meeting was given in the announcement of the programme of the Queens County Jockey Club's Spring meeting, when in addition to the list of stakes already closed the purse programme was offered, with values exactly duplicating the values of last Spring.

The chief doubt which now exists as to the conditions that will govern the racing of the year on the New York tracks concerns the betting patrons and the bookmakers chiefly, for while the assumption is general that the anti-betting legislation which occupied the Assembly's attention through much of the Winter has failed, it is regarded as a certainty that there will be a decided change in the methods that may be employed. No statement of what is intended has been authorized yet, but it is stated as having been definitely determined that what formerly was the betting ring will be so changed that it will demand some new name.

The most important change urged by the Stewards and members of The Jockey Club is the removal of the high stools on which the bookmakers perched last season. The betting ring will be available for its old uses, it is said, but the men who lay the odds and the men who take them will be on terms of equality in the one thing that they will transact their betting standing, in what has been termed the Washington "walk-around" system. This will eliminate the most conspicuous and objectionable part of the crowding and confusion which attended the arrangement of the ring in former years, and is regarded as a big concession to the opponents of race track betting.

One Steward of The Jockey Club who consistently has opposed the field stands has suggested that they be closed altogether, or that the fences between the grand and field stands be removed, and a single fee of admission be charged to any of the stands. In the same line the suggestion has been made that the charge for admission be made the same for all patrons, regardless of sex, but that, too, awaits action.

Next to the actual opening of racing in New York for the new year, the next feature in public interest is the $10,000 Carter Handicap, which for years has been the big event of the Aqueduct first day. Horses from every training course in the United States have gathered for the race, and from the present indications the field that starts will be made up of the pick of the entry list, with about twenty horses standing out as ready for the race, and of quality high enough to make them winning possibilities. Of the highweights that have been trained this Spring for the event, Dr. Gardner, owned by T. D. Sullivan, has been eliminated within the past few days by an ailing leg. This leaves the topweight in Jack Atkin, the champion sprinter of the New Orleans meetings, which arrived last week, seasoned and fit for his best effort. The next in prominence are H. P. Whitney's Brookdale Nymph and Baby Wolf, both of which are likely to start. Others of the notables are Chapultepec and Angelus, both of which raced at New Orleans; Meelick, the triple Derby winner from California; J. R. Keene's Restigouche, R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Red River and Aletheuo, the Newcastle Stable's Spooner, and Welbourne, Rifleman, Bat Masterson, Berkeley, and Berry Maid.

Penn Leads College Swimmers.

By defeating the Princeton swimming team in their dual meet last Saturday night the University of Pennsylvania won the intercollegiate dual swimming championship. Up to Saturday night both teams were tied for first honors, with four victories and one defeat each. The Tigers had beaten Yale, Columbia, C. C. N. Y., and Harvard, but lost to Pennsylvania. The Pennsylvania swimmers were forced to forfeit their meet with Harvard on account of disagreement between the managements. Yale takes third honors in the league, having been trounced by both Princton and Pennsylvania. The score of the meets and standing of the colleges follow:

YANKEES DOWN NEWARK.

Local American League Team Secured Ninth Inning Victory, 3 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWARK, April 12.—The Yankees defeated the Newark Eastern League team here to-day 3 to 1, winning out in the ninth inning. With the score a tie, Chase opened the ninth with a double. He went to third when Kritchell muffed Hemphill's fly, the batter taking second on the error. Conroy was passed, and Sweeney sent Chase and Hemphill home with a two-bagger to right. The score:

WASHINGTON PARK CHANGES.

Brooklyn Baseball Enthusiasts See Improvements at Club's Grounds.

Quite a number of loyal Brooklyn baseball enthusiasts spent a part of yesterday looking over the grounds at Washington Park at the invitation of President Charles Ebbetts. During the course of the day it was estimated that three thousand people passed in the gates of the big inclosure, went across the field, and walked through the stands.

Those visitors were greeted with freshly painted stands, bleachers, and fences. The clubhouses have been all renovated, and that especially for the home team has been made more of a club than ever before. In addition to the regular locker rooms and bath rooms there has been a place set aside where the players can sit around and play cards or billiards. The house for the visiting team has been fixed up, too, with practically the same rooms for the players, with the exception of the lounging and game room.

A new field stand in deep centrefield has been built, and the other stands have been made into one. The diamond is in good shape, but the outfield is slightly lumpy on account of the water that covered it during the Winter. The Boston team, with whom the Brooklyn's will open the season to-morrow, will practice at the park to-day in anticipation of their game.

CATCHERS OF TO-DAY BEST.

Manager Chance Scoffs at Tricks Credited to Ewing and Kelly.

Manager Frank Chance of the world's champion Chicago team scoffs at the stories told of the tricks of old catchers in purposely dropping the ball so as to coax a runner to advance a base and be caught in the attempt. He also declares that the present-day catchers are better than those in the days of "Buck" Ewing and Mike Kelly. While in Nashville with his team on the way home from the champions' Southern training camp Chance had this to say:

"It's strange what a bunch of topnotch third basemen there has been in the two big leagues during the past ten years, while there has been a remarkable dearth of star catchers. Just cast your eyes over the third-sackers and note how many really classy men have been in the game. There were Jimmy Collins, Bill Bradley, Harry Steinfeldt, Arthur Devlin, Tommy Leach, Bill Coughlin, Lave Cross, Lee Tannehill, and a few more. Some of these were better than others, more versatile, better batsmen or base runners, but for covering third station they were all stars of the first magnitude.

"Now look at the array of catchers. There are just two in each league—Kling and Bresnahan in the National and Sullivan and Criger in the American. Criger's day has passed, but he was one of the greatest catchers in the game. Right here I wish to say that the catchers of to-day are far ahead of the famous oldtimers, such as Mike Kelly and "Buck" Ewing. I never saw either of these men work, but from what I have heard and what I know of the style of play I have no hesitation in making the above assertion.

"There are some great stories told of the headwork of Ewing and Kelly. For instance, it is said that with a man on first base Kelly often purposely dropped the ball to get the runner to go down, and then Mike would throw him out. It is also said that Ewing would deliberately bounce the ball off the plate and then peg the runner out at second. A catcher that did such hair-brained tricks would not last a season to-day."

Association Football Games.

One of the best drawing cards of the season for followers of association football proved to be the match for the championship of Brooklyn, played between the Arcadia Thistles and the Chritchleys. The verdict was in favor of the Arcadia Thistles by 2 goals to 0, the play occurring at the Visitation ball grounds. W. Chalmers for the Arcadia Thistles scored for the home team from a pass by W. O'Neill about ten minutes after the start. Ten minutes later, H. Monteith met the ball as it was knocked out by the custodian and sent it unerringly into the net. This ended the scoring, but the remainder of the play was none the less exciting.

At Prospect Park in Brooklyn a finely contested game took place between the Astoria Independents and the Brooklyn Hibernians. After a tie in the first half at two goals apiece, the game ended in a tie at 3 goals to 3. T. Turner and A. Ayres scored the goals for the Astoria Independents in the first half, and Turner kicked the third goal from a penalty in the second half. For the Brooklyn Hibernians, R. O'Halloran, A. Burnside, and J. Skinneder tallied the three goals in the order named.

After their opponents had obtained a lead of one goal in the first half, the team of the Columbia Oval Football Club succeeded in playing the eleven of the St. George United Club of Newark to a standstill at Williamsbridge yesterday afternoon, the final score being one goal for each side. The play was very fast throughout, and in the first half the Jerseymen were favored by the wind.

Metropolitan R. C. Oarsmen Out.

Capt. Callahan of the Metropolitan yesterday announced some of his comers that will be entered in the coming regattas. Fuessel will compete in the senior singles, and will team with Dunn in the senior doubles. Von Bartheld will do his best to carry the club's colors to the front in the intermediate singles, while Emerson and Corbett will very likely be entered in the intermediate doubles. The competitors in the junior singles and doubles, as well as the personnel of the junior centipede crew, have not as yet been decided upon.

SEYMOUR SMASHES CAR AT BRIARCLIFF

4 MEN HURLED INTO ROAD

All Escape Injury, However, Except for Severe Shaking Up—Was Violating Practice Conditions.

Joseph Seymour, one of the drivers of the Simplex cars in the Briarcliff race, narrowly escaped a serious accident in speeding over the course yesterday morning. Driving a testing car, accompanied by Phil Fehr, his mechanician; R. C. Watson, the second Simplex driver, and Thomas Cotter, Watson's mechanician, he ran into a stone wall at a sharp turn in the road near Mount Kisco and badly damaged the car, throwing all four occupants into the field beyond. Fortunately, though the car was going at a stiff clip, none of the four men was injured. After making such repairs to the car as were possible, the four returned to Briarcliff none the worse for their experience except a severe shaking up.

The accident occurred in a peculiar way. The car started out on the circuit of the course just after daybreak, and had covered about ten miles when the road turns directly east. The sun was just rising above the horizon, and, Seymour says, was shining directly in his eyes. Without his noticing it, the rays confused his vision, and when he came to an abrupt turn just above Mount Kisco, he maintained his straight course and ran directly into the stone wall that bordered the road.

The machine struck a glancing blow and skidded along the wall, but hit with sufficient force to throw all four men out. The front wheels were badly bent and the guard torn off, but the car was not so badly hurt that after temporary repairs it could not be driven back.

Seymour reported the accident to the race officials, and was reprimanded for violating the rules of the race. Secretary Thomas F. Moore said last night that in driving on Sunday in violation of the practice conditions Seymour had laid himself open to a severe fine. He declared, further, that the accident would be investigated by the committee and suitable action taken in due course.

The place where the accident occurred is one of many abrupt turns, and illustrates well the danger to the public of standing along any part of the course on either the day of the race or during the preliminary practice time. The course abounds in high places, which afford vantage points from which to view the race without danger, and to risk accident by standing upon the road itself is to court serious consequences.

In such a race as the Briarcliff event, where so much better facilities for watching the contest are offered by the elevated points along the road, there is no reason whatever to run unnecessary risks. The Briarcliff committee is emphasizing this phase of the course in the hope of minimizing the natural risks of road racing as much as possible.

TRACY'S FUEL TESTS.

Tend to Substantiate English Claim of Superiority of Benzol.

The experiments which Joseph Tracy has been conducting to test the relative efficiency of gasoline and benzol seem to bear out the findings of the committee of the Royal Automobile Club of Great Britain that benzol is not only a satisfactory substitute for gasoline, but that it is actually more efficient in automobile use. At the Automobile Club of America during the past week Tracy made several additional trials of the two mixtures, and all confirmed the previous experiments he had made. This Summer he proposes to make road trials to ascertain the relative economy of the two fuels, and at the end of that time expects to compile definite statistics that will be of great value to the automobile industry.

Tracy drove a Simplex runabout at the Automobile Club on the drums of the club's dynamometer. Running it first on gasoline and then on benzol, he had the record of the relative efficiency. The benzol produced a slightly greater horse power and a greater draw-bar pull. The car was geared high and special attention was given to tests on the gradometer. The gasoline proved powerful enough to climb a 11.9 per cent. hill, while the benzol showed sufficient power for a grade of 12.1 per cent. By special adjustment of the carbureter the gradometer showed 12.2 per cent. for benzol and a draw-bar pull of 398 pounds as against 383 pounds.

The tests of the fuel in England by S. F. Edge showed that benzol produced a more powerful explosion, and therefore consumed less per horse power. A forty-horse-power touring car containing four people ran 3,000 miles, 150 miles a day, and consumed seven and a half gallons a day, averaging twenty-two miles per gallon.

Rambler

Why the Offset Crank Shaft

One of the greatest improvements in motor construction is the offset crank shaft. Its advantages are positive and direct.

First—By practically eliminating the dead center the efficiency of the motor is greatly increased through the greater leverage and more direct thrust from piston to crank shaft.

Second—Increased life of the motor through reduction of side thrust on cylinder walls and consequent saving in wear.

Third—Reduction in vibration and increased steadiness of running through more direct application of power generated in the cylinders.

Like many other fundamentally good features this must be done right and in the Rambler it is right both theoretically and practically and the result is a motor that combines the highest degree of efficiency with long life and economy of operation. It is this and other features of equal value that make it

ROBINS WINS THREE EVENTS.

Larchmont Y. C. Marksman Makes Best Scores in Weekly Shoot.

The week-end shoot of the Larchmont Yacht Club began with hard winds and ended with delightful Spring weather. The best scores were made toward the end of the shoot. A large number of members and friends of the marksmen was present and witnessed the well-contested events.

Stuart Scott won the best trophy—the Accumulative Cup, which has been shot for during the past twelve weeks. Two of his competitors had two legs each on this cup, but Mr. Scott was the first to win the third leg, and took the prize. E. L. C. Robins won the leg on the Baudouine Cup, and also won the leg on the Sauer Gun and the Weekly Cup, with the highest score of the day, 88. The scores:

Fishing along the coast of Southern California has been poor for the past three months, with the exception of an occasional run of jack smelt and pompano.

The trout season in Connecticut has opened fine. The anglers have had no snow water to contend with, and there has been plenty of rain to keep the brooks and ponds filled and but little ice to cover the water. At Hunt Brook, a few miles from Uncasville, the best catch of the season was eight speckled trout, three tipping the beam at over three-quarters of a pound apiece. Striped bass have not commenced to run yet, and the weather has been too cold for flatfish and most of the pan fish tribe.

Valentine's Point, east of the trestle work in Jamaica Bay and within a short row from Goose Creek, Raunt, and Broad Channel, is a favorite spot for flounders. The fish generally bite early here, and thus far they have been plentiful.

Off Whitestone on Friday two members of the Eagle Fishing Club of the North Side caught ten good-sized flounders, ranging from two to three pounds in weight.

Among seven trout caught on the opening day of the season in Connecticut by Charles Dossin of Meriden one weighed a pound and a half, which was the largest brook trout caught in that vicinity in years.

When the trout season opened at Verona, N. J., a number of Bloomfield fishermen wended their way over the Orange Mountains to the brook which supplies Verona Lake, known as the home of the speckled beauties. They returned, however, with empty creels. The fishermen ascribe their ill-luck to the fact that a land improvement company has cut the timber from a large section of land near the head waters of the stream, which takes its rise on the western slope of the mountain near Eagle Rock reservation.

HAS LIVED 25 YEARS ON ROCKS IN RIVER

A DIVER AND LIFESAVER

Has Many Medals for Rescues—His Cabin Fitted Up Like a Ship—Celebrates His Tenancy.

Capt. John J. Coakley, diver and life saver, celebrated yesterday the twenty-fifth anniversary of his tenancy of a little cabin which is built out on the rocks at the foot of Jackson Street.

The shanty is as taut and trim as the cabin of a well-kept schooner, and the gear inside is "shipshape and Bristol fashion." The clock strikes the bells at the proper time, and Capt. Coakley hails the passing boats with a bo'sun's pipe. In the daytime everything is stowed away in lockers at the side that form the bunks for the skipper and his mate to sleep on at night.

Capt. Coakley said yesterday that he had never missed sleeping there for twenty-five years. On the night of the great blizzard in March, 1888, he was imprisoned in the shack with his mate by the heavy fall of snow, and for three days they remained prisoners, until some of the neighbors came to the rescue and dug them out.

In the Summer time, when the thousands of children come down to play in the park at the foot of Jackson Street, many of them get to the edge of the river and fall in, and fifteen or twenty children are rescued every season by the volunteer life-saving station, of which Capt. Coakley is the chief. He personally has four medals from the Life Saving Association, and another one coming from Congress for rescuing men from the river.

At that portion of the East River which is called the Hook, the tide is very strong, and rowboats not properly handled are liable to be swept against the rocks.

While a TIMES reporter was talking to the skipper yesterday afternoon a little duck boat with two boys in it, who had put out from the Battery, was caught by the powerful eddy, and would have swamped if it had not been for the prompt assistance given by one of Capt. Coakley's men, who ran his boat out and towed the boys into the little landing.

From 1894 to 1900 all the life-saving men in the port of New York received a monthly salary from the city, which in Skipper Coakley's case amounted to $80 per month, but when it stopped he did not worry, as his diving business, in connection with wrecks in the harbor, had grown to such proportions that it had made him independent of his salary.

A tall, husky, ruddy-faced man about 40 years old, with the tan of the sun and winds that blow freely round the cabin, Capt. Coakley, who is a bachelor and disclaims any intention of marrying, looked the picture of health and contentment yesterday when he received the calls of his old friends along the river front. They congratulated him on his quarter of a century tenancy in the cabin, and toasted him in something that foamed and sparkled from a barrel mounted on a messkid near the door.

The skipper said that he had no intention of retiring and hoped to have his friends down again in 1933 to celebrate his fiftieth anniversary there. The cabin was sound as a bell, he said, and although anchored firmly to the rocks belonging to the city, he did not think the spot would be needed for building purposes for many years to come.

His predecessor on the river, who lived in the cabin before him, William Benson, had lived on the banks of that same East River for sixty-five years without a day's illness.

During all the twenty-five years, Capt. Coakley said, he had only been really uncomfortable on two occasions, once on the night of the blizzard and the second time last Wednesday and Thursday nights, when the winds blew so hard and played such a tune around his shack that he thought it would be blown across the other side of the river every minute. The wooden hut shook so that the clock omitted to strike eight bells at midnight, and the old oil lanterns that had sailed salt water a century ago burned dimly and defied all the efforts of Skipper Coakley and his mate to snuff the wicks and brighten up.

LOGS OF BRITISH WARSHIPS.

Relics of Revolutionary Battles to be Sold at Auction Here.

It seems strange that the log books of British warships should turn up in a New York auction sale, but an unusual series of the records of British war vessels that took part in the American Revolution and the war of 1812 will be sold at Anderson's this evening. Each log is accompanied by the Captain's certificate, and in the collection are thus included the autograph signatures of many notable British seamen.

The most interesting of the log books is that of the Serapis, William Lloyd, commander, which was captured by John Paul Jones, in command of the Bonhomme Richard, in one of the most famous naval fights in history. The log book runs from Jan. 16, 1808, to June 30, 1809, and tells of the cruise of the Serapis from Europe to South America and back.

Then there is the log book of the Plantagenet, William Bradley, Captain, 1809-13, in European and American waters. On Sept. 26, 1814, the Plantagenet was engaged in a notable battle, when the little United States brig Gen. Armstrong, Capt. S. C. Reid, engaged a whole British squadron off Fayal and withstood it, although Reid was obliged to scuttle his vessel the next morning because he found it was impossible to defend himself longer. It was then that men from the Plantagenet boarded the Gen. Armstrong and set fire to it.

The log book of the San Domingo, Capt. Gill, the flagship of Sir John Borlose Warren, tells how, on Sept. 20, 1812, the Diane was boarded, and on March 1, 1814, the American privateer Argus was captured with thirteen guns and crew of sixty-five men.

There are the following interesting entries in the log book of the Victorious, Capt. Talbot: Jan. 5, 1812, captured the Resolution. Hampton Roads, March 13, saw enemy erecting a battery. March 16, boats went up James River and brought down three schooners and a brig. April 2, sent flag of truce with prisoners to Norfolk. April 11, saw strange frigate; guard boats commenced action with her."

ROAD WARS ON TRESPASSERS.

Death of 809 on the Pennsylvania in 1907 Accentuates Movement.

Records just compiled show that 809 men were killed or died of injuries received while trespassing on the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad system in 1907. Because of the heavy expense of trying to prevent trespassing and the loss of life caused by it, the New York and Chicago General Managers' Associations have taken steps to remedy this violation of a strict railroad rule. These associations estimate that more than half the 10,000 people killed last year on American railroads were trespassers.

In an effort to stop trespassing, the railroads are seeking to enlist the support of all State and county authorities, and a heavy fine or the enforcement of the maximum term of imprisonment for trespassing is suggested as one of the measures by which the practice may be stopped.

RARE WORK AT AUCTION.

Nuremberg Chronicle, Issued in Fifteenth Century, to be Sold Next Week.

The Chronicarum Liber, or, as it is commonly known, the Nuremberg Chronicle, one of the most remarkable works issued in the fifteenth century, is among a lot of rare and valuable incunabula and early printed books that will be sold at auction in this city next week. It was compiled by Hartman Schedel, and printed by Antony Koberger, in Nuremberg, in 1492.

It is a folio in old calf binding, and contains more than 2,000 wood cuts, which are so well done that they have been reprinted and copied over and over again. It was a very popular book with the people of the sixteenth century. Among the wood cuts is one of "Pope Joan," and it is in good condition. Usually this picture is found mutilated.

There is also a rare specimen from the first printing press of Venice, the folio Lactantius, which was issued in 1472 by Wendelin, a printer from Speier, who in 1469 with his brother John had established the first printing press in Venice. That same year John died.

Then there is a copy of Pliny's "Natural History" from the famous press of Nicolas Jenson of Venice. It was published in 1472. It was on the Roman type used by Jenson that William Morris founded his golden type for the celebrated Kelmscott Press.

A tall copy of the "Turre Cremata," printed by Peter Schoeffer, the associate of Gutenberg, at Mainz in 1476, is another of the valuable incunabula.

Antonius Zarotus, the first printer in Milan, is represented by a tall copy of "Simoneta, Rerum Gestarum Francisci Sphortiae," published about 1480.

Another rarity is a copy of the first edition of Dante, with Botticelli's designs, published by Nicolas Laurentis in Florence in 1481.

There is also a copy of the Lyons edition of Sebastian Brandt's "Stultifera Navis," small quarto, half vellum, 1498, which was first published in Basel in 1497. In its English translation by Alexander Barclay it is known as "The Ship of Fools," the first edition of which was printed by Richard Pynson in 1509.

A copy of the commentaries of John Duns Scotus is dated Venice, 1503. From the Gibson-Carmichael Library is a fine copy of the beautifully found Bagli edition of Boccaccio's works, Venice, 1506.

Some rare Aldines are in the collection, one is a Plato, Venice, 1497; another is the "Gliasolani Di Messer Pietro Bembo," Venice, 1515, one of the rarest productions of the Aldus Press; a 1528 edition of commentaries on Homer's Odyssey, and Cicero's Letters to Atticus, Venice, 1547.

KNIFE IN HIS LUNG 20 YEARS.

Broken Blade Found After Man's Death—Treated for Tuberculosis.

For twenty years or more Jacob L. Hyland of Brooklyn lived with a piece of knife blade imbedded in his right lung. And all that time Hyland thought he was suffering from tuberculosis. He died on Feb. 4 in St. Luke's Hospital, ignorant of the fact that it was a broken blade of a knife that had slowly killed him.

Physicians at St. Luke's found the knife blade when they performed an autopsy on Hyland's body. How it got there is a mystery which may never be solved, but the physicians say it is likely that the knife blade entered Hyland's lung when he was a boy. This assumption is strengthened by the fact that no wound was visible on the man's body. They believe that he in some way when a youth stuck the blade in between his ribs, breaking it off, and that it gradually worked into his lung and stayed there, or that it was the result of a boyhood fight in which Hyland was stabbed and his antagonist feared to tell him that his knife blade had broken off.

From the scanty information Hyland gave the St. Luke's authorities of the history of his case, his lung first bothered him two years ago. He thought then that he had tuberculosis, and physicians at Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, and at all the leading hospitals in this city treated him for this disease.

WHITE HOUSE PUP'S LAST NIP.

"Bryan" Failed to Respect Navy Legs Above the Petty Rank.

Because of the low-down behavior of a supposedly high-bred Irish terrier from the White House kennels in Washington, which violated a naval regulation by biting Naval Constructor William J. Baxter in the leg, Rear Admiral Goodrich has declared war on dogs which forage for bones, including the human shin variety, in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

There were those in the yard who felt yesterday that when President Roosevelt heard about the conduct of the terrier he would indignantly stamp it as a nature fake, asserting as one who had made an exhaustive study of the habits and peculiarities of White House bred canines that while one might tackle the calves of a newspaper correspondent or those of a mere European Ambassador, none had ever been known to bite a naval officer above the rank of gunner's mate.

But whether a protest comes from the White House or not, the navy yard is prepared to prove that a terrier from the Executive Mansion kennels bearing the illustrious name of Bryan was tried by court-martial and shot in the yard for the good of the service. The jackies gave him his name because of his running qualities.

Bryan came into the possession of Boatswain McCarthy of the tug Nina some time ago, and was greatly prized by him. While Naval Constructor Baxter was crossing the yard the unregenerate White House terrier ran up to him wagging his tail in what seemed to be friendliness, but which proved to be base deceit. When the officer wasn't looking Bryan bit him on the leg, then fled.

After his wound had been cauterized Constructor Baxter reported to Commandant Goodrich that Bryan had become an "undesirable." Admiral Goodrich immediately ordered war to be waged on all canines, whether of White House breed or the common or back alley variety of cur, found running loose about the yard.

Following this order marine sentries and others in the yard proceeded to give exhibitions of marksmanship which reminded those who saw it of that of the jackies out in Magdalena Bay—it was so different. After several marines had drawn beads on the hunted Bryan without disturbing him so that it was noticed, a sentry near the sawmill planted a bullet in his shoulder. Bryan, however, was still able to navigate, and ran around on three legs for some time. He was finally killed by a bullet from the piece of a sentry at the office of the commandant.

Later another dog, not enlisted, but a low-bred prowler from Wallabout Market, was shot and killed in the yard. The other dogs which make a foraging ground of Uncle Sam's shipyard have apparently come to know that they are marked, for they are keeping under cover.

Officers who own pet dogs are careful not to let them out of their quarters while the war of extermination is on.

(Fourth Avenue and Ashland Place—Fulton Street to Sackett Street.)

The City of New York, acting by the Public Service Commission for the First District, by this advertisement invites proposals to construct that part of the proposed Fourth Avenue Subway in the Borough of Brooklyn which begins at a point under Ashland Place about forty (40) feet south of the south line of Fulton Street and runs through and under Ashland Place and private property on the West side of Ashland Place, under the present Subway structure in Flatbush Avenue, and along and under Fourth Avenue and private property on the Easterly side thereof to Pacific Street; thence continuing Southerly along and under Fourth Avenue to a point about sixty (60) feet North of the North line of Sackett Street.

The general plan of construction calls for a four-track sub-surface Railroad, but the contractor will not be required under the contract proposed to provide or lay tracks, ties or ballast. A station on Fourth Avenue between Pacific Street and Dean Street, will be constructed; and suitable cross-overs, turn-outs and sidings are also to be provided, all as indicated on the detailed plans of construction. The tunnels are to have a height of not less than thirteen (13) feet in the clear, and a maximum width of fifteen (15) feet for each track, except at curves, etc., where the width may be increased. The roof of the tunnels is generally to be as near the surface of the street as street conditions and grades will permit. The roof and sides of the tunnels will be of iron or steel and masonry. Entrances to the station are intended to be placed within private property, rights in which will be acquired for the purpose, or on the streets, or on the sidewalks adjacent to private property, as indicated on the plans.

The manner of construction shall be by excavation under cover, unless otherwise provided in the contract or permitted by the Commission.

In the detailed plans for construction, provisions for pipe galleries along the line of the railroad are included. Bids for the construction of the railroad must be accompanied by a separate bid for the construction of the pipe galleries above referred to, as it is essential for the City to separate the cost of the railroad from the cost of the pipe galleries. The Commission reserves the right to accept a bid for construction of the railroad and at the same time to reject the accompanying bid for pipe galleries.

Bidders must visit the location of the railroad and station to be built under this contract and note the present conditions along the line of the proposed railroad.

A fuller description of the work to be done is set forth, and other requirements, provisions, details, and specifications are stated in the printed form of contract now on file in the office of the Commission, No. 154 Nassau Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, and in the detailed drawings therein referred to, at which office copies of the contract and of the form of bond and contractor's proposal may be had on application. The contract drawings may be inspected at the same office. The printed form of contract and the detailed drawings are to be deemed a part of this Invitation.

Partial payments to the contractor will be made monthly as the work proceeds, as provided in the form of contract.

The work of construction (including pipe galleries) is to be completed as soon as practicable and within twenty-four months from the date of the delivery of the contract.

Sealed bids or proposals will be received at the said office of the Commission, at No. 154 Nassau Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, The City of New York, until Friday, the 8th day of May, 1908, at twelve o'clock noon, at which time or at a later date to be fixed by the Commission the proposals will be publicly opened.

The proposal must contain a statement, in the form prescribed, of the quantities and unit values upon which the bid is based. Such statement shall be merely for the information of the Commission to enable it to determine upon what basis the proposal is made and for no other purpose whatsoever and the Commission shall not be bound in any way to make payments or value work done, upon the basis of such quantities and unit values contained in such statement.

No proposal will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever after it shall have been deposited with the Commission.

The award of the contract or contracts (if awarded) will be made by the Commission within twenty days after the opening of the proposals. The bidder whose proposal shall be accepted shall in person or by duly authorized representative attend at the said office of the Commission within ten days after the delivery of a notice by the Commission that his proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment; and such bidder shall then deliver a contract in the form referred to, duly executed and with its execution duly proved.

At the time of the delivery of the contract, the contractor will be required to furnish security to the City by giving a bond in the penalty of two hundred thousand dollars. At the option of the successful bidder, cash or approved securities may be deposited instead of giving a bond. If securities are deposited in place of a bond under this contract, they must be of the character of securities in which Savings Banks may invest their funds and must be approved by the Commission. The Contractor's bond must be in the form annexed to the form of contract.

In addition and as further security to the City, ten per cent. of each amount certified from time to time to be due to the contractor will be retained until the work is fully completed.

Bidders whose proposals are otherwise satisfactory to the Commission may, in case the sureties or securities named by them are not approved by the Commission, substitute in their proposals the names of new sureties or a different schedule of securities approved by the Commission; but such substitution must be made within five days after notice of disapproval by the Commission, unless this period is extended by the Commission.

In case of failure or neglect to execute and deliver the contract or to make the required deposit or to execute and deliver the required bond, such bidder will, at the option of the Commission, be deemed either to have made the contract or to have abandoned the contract. In the latter case the Commission will give notice thereof to the defaulting bidder. And the Commission may thereupon proceed to make another contract with such, if any, of the original bidders as, in the opinion of the Commission, it will be to the best interest of the City to contract with, or may by new advertisement invite further proposals. The defaulting bidder shall thereupon be liable to the City for all loss and damage by it sustained, including the excess, if any, of the amount it shall pay any other contractor over the amount of the bid of such defaulting bidder.

Every proposal must, when submitted, be enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed "PROPOSAL FOR CONSTRUCTING RAPID TRANSIT RAILROAD—FOURTH AVENUE AND ASHLAND PLACE FROM FULTON STREET TO SACKETT STREET," and must be delivered to the Commission or to its Secretary; and in the presence of the person offering the proposal it will be deposited in a sealed box in which all proposals will be deposited. No proposal will be received or deposited unless accompanied by a certified check drawn upon a National or State Bank or Trust Company within The City of New York and satisfactory to the Commission, payable to the order of the Comptroller of The City of New York, for the sum of fifteen thousand dollars.

If the Commission shall give notice to any bidder that his or its proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and if the bidder shall fail within ten days thereafter or within such further period, if any, as may be prescribed by the Commission, to execute and deliver the contract and to execute and deliver the bond with sureties, or make a deposit in cash or securities, then this Invitation to Contractors and proposal accepted as aforesaid shall be a contract binding the bidder to pay to the City the damages by it sustained by reason of such failure; and in such case the bidder shall, by the terms of the proposal, absolutely assign to the City the ownership of the check accompanying his or its proposal as a payment on account of such damages.

All such deposits made by bidders whose proposals shall not be accepted by the Commission will be returned to the person or persons making the same within five days after the contract shall be executed and delivered. The deposit of the successful bidder will be returned when the contract is executed and its provisions as to security are complied with.

(Fourth Avenue from Twenty-seventh Street to Forty-third Street.)

The City of New York, acting by the Public Service Commission for the First District by this advertisement invites proposals to construct that part of the proposed Fourth Avenue Subway in the Borough of Brooklyn between points in Fourth Avenue 15 feet south of the south line of Twenty-seventh Street and 150 feet south of the south line of Forty-second Street.

The general plan of construction calls for a four-track sub-surface Railroad, but the Contractor will not be required under the contract proposed to provide or lay tracks, ties or ballast. A station at Thirty-sixth Street will be constructed; and suitable cross-overs, turnouts and sidings are also to be provided, all as indicated on the detailed plans of construction. The tunnels are to have a height of not less than thirteen (13) feet in the clear, and a maximum width of fifteen (15) feet for each track, except at curves, etc., where the width may be increased. The roof of the tunnels is generally to be as near the surface of the street as street conditions and grades will permit. The roof and sides of the tunnels will be of iron or steel and masonry. Entrances to the station are intended to be placed within private property, rights in which will be acquired for the purpose, or on the streets or on the sidewalks adjacent to private property, as indicated on the plans.

The manner of construction shall be by excavation in open trench, unless otherwise provided in the contract or directed by the Commission.

In the detailed plans for construction, provisions for pipe galleries along the line of the railroad are included. Bids for the construction of the railroad must be accompanied by a separate bid for the construction of the pipe galleries above referred to, as it is essential for the City to separate the cost of the railroad from the cost of the pipe galleries. The Commission reserves the right to accept a bid for construction of the railroad and at the same time to reject the accompanying bid for pipe galleries.

Bidders must visit the location of the railroad and stations to be built under this contract and note the present conditions along the line of the proposed railroad.

A fuller description of the work to be done is set forth, and other requirements, provisions, details and specifications are stated in the printed form of contract now on file in the office of the Commission, No. 154 Nassau Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, and in the detailed drawings therein referred to, at which office copies of the contract and of the form of bond and contractor's proposal may be had on application. The contract drawings may be inspected at the same office. The printed form of contract and the detailed drawings are to be deemed a part of this Invitation.

Partial payments to the contractor will be made monthly as the work proceeds, as provided in the form of contract.

The work of construction (including pipe galleries) is to be completed as soon as practicable, and within twenty-four months from the date of delivery of the contract.

Sealed bids or proposals will be received at the said office of the Commission, at No. 154 Nassau Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, The City of New York, until Friday, the 8th day of May, 1908, at twelve o'clock noon, at which time or at a later date to be fixed by the Commission the proposals will be publicly opened.

Proposals must be in the form prescribed by the Commission, copies of which may be obtained at the office of the Commission.

The proposal must contain a statement, in the form prescribed, of the quantities and unit values upon which the bid is based. Such statement shall be merely for the information of the Commission, to enable it to determine upon what basis the proposal is made and for no other purpose whatsoever, and the Commission shall not be bound in any way to make payments or value work done, upon the basis of such quantities and unit values contained in such statement.

No proposal will be allowed to be withdrawn for any reason whatever after it shall have been deposited with the Commission.

The award of the contract or contracts (if awarded) will be made by the Commission within twenty days after the opening of the proposals. The bidder whose proposal shall be accepted shall in person or by duly authorized representative attend at the said office of the Commission within ten days after the delivery of a notice by the Commission that his proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment; and such bidder shall then deliver a contract in the form referred to, duly executed and with its execution duly proved.

At the time of the delivery of the contract, the contractor will be required to furnish security to the City by giving a bond in the penalty of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. At the option of the successful bidder cash or approved securities may be deposited instead of giving a bond. If securities are deposited in place of a bond under this contract they must be of the character of securities in which Savings Banks may invest their funds and must be approved by the Commission. The Contractor's bond must be in the form annexed to the form of contract.

In addition and as further security to the City, ten per cent. of each amount certified from time to time to be due to the contractor will be retained until the work is fully completed.

Bidders whose proposals are otherwise satisfactory to the Commission may, in case the sureties or securities named by them are not approved by the Commission, substitute in their proposals the names of new sureties or a different schedule of securities approved by the Commission, but such substitution must be made within five days after notice of disapproval by the Commission, unless this period is extended by the Commission.

In case of failure or neglect to execute and deliver the contract or to make the required deposit or to execute and deliver the required bond, such bidder will, at the option of the Commission, be deemed either to have made the contract or to have abandoned the contract. In the latter case the Commission will give notice thereof to the defaulting bidder. And the Commission may thereupon proceed to make another contract with such, if any, of the original bidders as, in the opinion of the Commission, it will be to the best interest of the City to contract with, or may by new advertisement invite further proposals. The defaulting bidder shall thereupon be liable to the City for all loss and damage by it sustained, including the excess, if any, of the amount it shall pay any other contractor over the amount of the bid of such defaulting bidder.

Every proposal must, when submitted, be enclosed in a sealed envelope endorsed "PROPOSAL FOR CONSTRUCTING RAPID TRANSIT RAILROAD—(FOURTH AVENUE, TWENTY-SEVENTH STREET TO FORTY-THIRD STREET)" and must be delivered to the Commission or to its Secretary; and in the presence of the person offering the proposal it will be deposited in a sealed box in which all proposals will be deposited. No proposal will be received or deposited unless accompanied by a certified check drawn upon a National or State bank or Trust Company within The City of New York and satisfactory to the Commission, payable to the order of the Comptroller of The City of New York, for the sum of twelve thousand five hundred dollars.

If the Commission shall give notice to any bidder that his or its proposal is accepted and that the contract is approved by the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and if the bidder shall fail within ten days thereafter or within such further period, if any, as may be prescribed by the Commission, to execute and deliver the contract and to execute and deliver the bond with sureties, or make a deposit in cash or securities, then this Invitation to Contractors and proposal accepted as aforesaid shall be a contract binding the bidder to pay to the City the damages by it sustained by reason of such failure; and in such case the bidder shall, by the terms of the proposal, absolutely assign to the City the ownership of the check accompanying his or its proposal as a payment on account of such damages.

All such deposits made by bidders whose proposals shall not be accepted by the Commission will be returned to the person or persons making the same within five days after the contract shall be executed and delivered. The deposit of the successful bidder will be returned when the contract is executed and its provisions as to security are complied with.

Selecting Investments

It is the consensus of opinion that the bonds of conservatively managed corporations now offer investment opportunities which, to many persons, are not likely to occur again in a lifetime.

Under the circumstances, it should not be a difficult matter for the average individual to select sound investments, especially if the precaution is exercised of communicating with experienced Investment Bankers having the facilities for determining the intrinsic value of any particular issue of bonds.

The organization which we have built up, and which is at the command of all classes of investors, will be found to be most efficient by persons seeking reliable information upon securities listed upon the New York Stock Exchange or unlisted. Furthermore, we shall be glad to submit to investors a carefully selected list of securities yielding about 5 to 6½ per cent. and suitable for the most discriminating buyers.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION — THE MARKETS OF EUROPE.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Erie's Affairs Settled—Foreign Exchange and Gold.

So much importance had come to be attached to the Erie's fate, thanks to the delay in the making of an announcement regarding the policy of the Board of Directors with respect to the $5,500,000 of notes which matured on Wednesday of last week, that the prevention of a receivership for the property removed from the stock market a very decided obstacle. The influence of this action was, however, not confined within the walls of the Stock Exchange, nor within the bounds of the financial district itself. The reason is not far to seek. In the case of the Erie the unpleasant sentiment which attaches to receiverships of all kinds would have been very greatly increased by the fact that the road is one of the most prominent in the country; that its securities are very widely held abroad, and that its Board of Directors comprises men who hold unusually conspicuous places in the banking, commercial, and railroad worlds. To those watching the news from the frequent conferences of this group of men over the Erie's affairs, a decision to allow the road to pass into a receiver's hands would undoubtedly have brought a severe shock. Rightly or wrongly it would have been reasoned that if these experts in their lines saw nothing on the horizon to justify them in temporarily financing the present needs of their road the outlook must indeed be dark. Conclusions would have been reached, doubtless, that other roads, both strong and weak, known to require money might also be allowed to pass into the care of the courts, and in this fashion the difficulties already attending efforts on the part of such properties to sell notes or bonds would have been made much more difficult, if not practically impossible. Politically, too, such an out-turn held the promise of serious consequences. Consideration of the bearing of all these matters led to a general belief that a receivership would be avoided. The original plan devised by the Directors by which, with their friends, they agreed to contribute $5,000,000 in cash, taking for this new notes, provided all old noteholders exchanged their holdings for new notes, seemed to open the way to saving the property, but the plan was promulgated only two full business days before the maturing notes had to be met, obviously too brief a period. Demands for cash by an unexpectedly large number of noteholders led to the abandonment of this. It was replaced in part by Mr. Harriman's offer to take up for cash all notes not presented for exchange, while the original agreement by the Directors to provide $5,000,000 cash was very properly allowed to stand, although the exact conditions of this offer had been overturned by the failure of all noteholders to accept an exchange. So the Erie has money sufficient to meet its requirements for the present year and to carry on the strategic improvements, upon the completion of which its operating executives assert the road's ability to handle $60,000,000 of business with very little additional expense. It has thus come through a period of trouble with its machinists, of business depression and of financial stress, and now has the opportunity to make good the promises of better things held out by its management.

A rather smart rise in prices on the Stock Exchange before the close of the week was due largely, of course, to the outcome of the Erie tangle, but another factor underlying it, and one which was little less important, although overshadowed by Erie affairs, was found in the excellent showing made by Winter wheat in the Government's first crop report of the year. According to this compilation the condition of Winter wheat on April 1 stood at 91.3 per cent., as against 89.9 per cent. a year ago, and a ten-year average of 86.2. Conditions in the surplus States, where the great bulk of merchantable Winter wheat is growing, were particularly satisfactory, ranging in percentage well above the general average. From the condition figures and the acreage there is worked out a mathematical crop of practically 494,000,000 bushels, which is a trifle above the indicated crop at this time a year ago, and which leaves a leeway of 85,000,000 bushels for deterioration before the actual yield drops below that of last year. Seldom, indeed, has Winter wheat come through so finely, and it is only to be added that the outlook is almost as promising, so far as it can be made so by early conditions, for other crops. On grain markets the response to this situation came in the shape of losses of several cents a bushel in wheat prices for the week, and the grain trade is quite obviously coming to the opinion that, barring unforeseen accidents, the harvest this year will be good.

Confusing reports from the business world continued to hold in check excessive optimism, but upon the whole there were evident again unmistakable signs of slow improvement in many directions. The recovery is bringing business back very gradually to the levels established just before the final impetus came for the prosperous period extending from the close of 1905 to last Autumn, a fact testified to by the comparative positions of bank clearings, railroad earnings, and other trade indices. Figures covering the output of iron in the month of March were published during the week, and the actual product of 1,228,000 tons compared with 1,077,000 tons in the month of February, which was shorter by two days. On the 1st of April, however, the weekly capacity of the furnaces had fallen 2,000 tons under the corresponding capacity figures for March 1, indicating, apparently, a temporary check. From the railroad world came conflicting earning statements. The Union Pacific's February report, with its loss of $413,000 gross and $213,000 net, testifies to the control which most roads are rapidly acquiring over expenses in the face of falling business. The Southern Pacific's statements for the same period were not so good in this respect, since a gross loss of $1,657,000 produced a net loss of $1,446,000, while for the fiscal year thus far net revenues are off $7,197,000, and gross only $3,852,000. Wage adjustments, staff reductions, and other economies are, in the main, however, making themselves felt on the expenses of all roads.

Again last week the Bank of England released gold for shipment to Paris, and this fact, together with a steady decline in the Paris check on London, and an equally persistent advance in demand sterling here, provoked further discussion of the possibility of gold exports from this city. The financing of the German loan is affecting money markets abroad seriously, but this influence should be only temporary, and upon its passing the strong position of the great European Government banks should come into play. The discount rate of the German Bank would presumably have been reduced again before this time but for the reason mentioned. The Bank of England, in spite of the gold shipments last week, returned on Thursday a percentage of reserve to liabilities which has been surpassed only once at this season in the past decade. In our own market rates for day to day money continue to fall, and the accumulation of funds here is now so great as to make it highly politic for the Treasury to withdraw additional amounts of United States deposits. Its own working balance is some $56,000,000. This might easily be increased to $100,000,000 without affecting money markets or business. These withdrawals would bear upon the gold export question, and would also put the Treasury in possession of funds for use next Fall, although there is no prospect this year of the usual stringent Fall money market due to the conflicting demands of active trade and large crops.

THE STEEL TRADE POSITION.

New Work for Carnegie Armor-Plate Plant—Some Cuts in Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, Penn., March 12.—The Carnegie Steel Company is finding use for its armor-plate plant, which for a time seemed to be useless on its hands. When the Midvale Steel Company caused the price of armor plate to be reduced the Bethlehem Steel Company practically withdrew from the business, leaving the Midvale and the Carnegie Company competitors. Not being able to maintain its plant in operation on armor plate for warships, the latter company has turned its attention to manufacturing armor plate for bank vaults. This business has proved lucrative and more plentiful. One contract closed during the week was for a vault ordered by the Dollar Savings and Trust Company, Youngstown, Ohio, which is the fortieth armor-plate vault to be built. Seven other banks are figuring on similar vaults, and the armor-plate business is becoming brisk. Besides these orders, the Carnegie Company is working on plates for the battleships North Dakota and Delaware.

Chairman E. H. Gary at the dinner at New York last week assured his guests there had not been nor would there be any cutting in the price of structural shapes, plates, or rails. Directly on the head of this announcement the concerns combined to maintain prices lost several smart orders for structural shapes, showing that every manufacturer of these products is not in accord with Judge Gary's views. Construction concerns in the Pittsburg district are disturbed because they lost sundry contracts within the last month, as New York concerns are getting steel cheaper than they can buy it in Pittsburg.

The price of cotton ties was fixed this week, being out 10 cents a bundle under last year's prices. The cotton shippers will get their ties for 85 cents per bundle, whereas last year they paid 95 cents. The output of cotton ties is about 2,000,000 bundles per year, which consumes about 40,000 tons of steel. The ties are mostly rolled in Winter, and the price fixed at this time of the year. The early buyers get the benefit of the quotation made, but those delaying to place orders within thirty days or so will have to pay one-half cent per pound for each thirty days they delay in ordering. The principal makers of cotton ties are the Carnegie Steel Company, Pittsburg Steel Company, Sharon Hoop Company, and the Atlanta Steel Hoop Company.

A few more mills started this week, but buying was wretchedly poor. Several good orders for line pipe were let during the week, one for fifty miles of oil line for the Southwest. During the week several steelmakers placed large orders for ingot molds. This is a good sign, and denotes early activity. Almost 1,000 tons of iron will be consumed in the orders for ingot molds placed during the week, which will make a large number, and no steel mill company would be investing in these to-day unless it intended using them at an early date.

CLEARING HOUSE FINANCES.

Has No Stock, but Building Company Has Certificates of Debt.

The announcement of the sale last week by the receiver of the National Bank of North America of that bank's $15,100 interest in the New York Clearing House revived interest in the relations existing between the association and the member banks in the matter of their investments in that institution. The association itself is an unincorporated body and has, of course, no capital stock. The Clearing House building, however, which represents an investment of $1,030,000, is owned by the Clearing House Building Company, whose stock is held in trust by the Clearing House Committee. This building company has outstanding certificates of indebtedness to a total of about $630,000. It was some of these certificates which were sold last week by the receiver of the National Bank of North America.

When the Clearing House moved from its former quarters to its present building on the north side of Cedar Street, between Broadway and Nassau Street, the difference between the cost of the new building and the amount realized on the old was assessed on the member banks in proportion to their capital and surplus.

For these assessments certificates were issued bearing 5 per cent. interest. They are carried by the banks as real estate holdings. The terms of the certificates provide that an option for the purchase of the certificates at par is retained by the association. Any bank, therefore, which comes to dispose of its certificates must first offer them to the association, and the latter in such cases always exercises its option of purchase. The other three banks which were recently dropped from the association because of their suspension have not yet presented their certificates to the association, but without doubt they will all be purchased, as were the certificates for $15,100 held by the Bank of North America.

The amount of these certificates originally outstanding was about $800,000, but they have since been reduced to about $630,000.

Cheerfulness Is Distinctly Manifest and Volume of Business Grows.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 12.—A decidedly better feeling was shown on the Stock Exchange last week, and the volume of business showed an increase. The gratifying reception of the £2,750,000 3½ per cent. London County Council loan, which was announced after hours Tuesday, is taken as a reliable indication of the pronounced change for the better that has come over both the financial district and the investing public.

On Wednesday applications poured in for the issue till more than £100,000,000 had been offered. Only a short time back the City looked with extreme disfavor on new issues, as it was considered they operated to keep down the prices of existing stocks; but now trustworthy opinion, taking the eager rush to snap up the County Council loan as its foundation, predicts that new stocks soon will be generally welcomed.

The favorable crop reports from the United States are now fostering optimism as to the part the United States will take in the recovery of the world's markets, though it is being pointed out that we still are a long way from harvest.

The Statist, on this subject, remarks: "If in addition to its extremely favorable trade balance with the external world the United States is favored with crops at home, there may be a much earlier and more decided recovery than most of us are prepared to expect."

PARIS BOURSE CALM.

Uncertainty Attending Big German Issues Causes Lack of Business.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 12.—Calm has continued to reign on the Paris Bourse this past week. Apart from the rather heavy selling orders in French rentes there has been an almost complete lack of business.

Controlling this feature was the uncertainty attending the big German issues. These are bound to relieve Paris of some of its superabundant money, but to what extent is unknown.

BERLIN MARKET BUOYANT.

Something Like a Boom in Stocks in the Early Days of Last Week.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 12.—Continued buoyancy was manifest on the Boerse last week. The transactions were so lively for two or three days that the upward movement was strongly suggestive of a boom. The end of the week brought a decline, but the net result was a substantial advance over the quotations of a week ago. The chief cause was the passage of the Boerse law by the Reichstag.

Irons and other industrials benefited most conspicuously. Electric issues went up at a skyrocket gait on rumors that the State railways were preparing for electrification on a big scale. Shipping stocks declined in consequence of diminished emigration. The peaceful settlement of the Erie troubles had a favorable effect on Americans, Baltimore & Ohio and Canadian stocks all advancing a couple of points.

It is stated the new Imperial and State loans, aggregating $162,500,000, have been oversubscribed, although not heavily, neither having features attractive to speculators in these times.

New Russian Loan Under Way.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 12.—I am informed by a reliable authority that a new Russian loan is under way. My informant says the loan probably will be floated in Paris.

LOOKING TO FUTURE OF ERIE RAILROAD

Economies Which May Make Permanent the Relief Afforded the Railroad Last Week.

HARRIMAN'S PLACE IN ROAD

Regarded as the Controlling Factor Now—Possible Readjustment of Erie Securities.

The dramatic rescue of the Erie Railroad from a receivership last week by E. H. Harriman, when the road's own Directors as a body confessed that they saw no way to prevent the company's defaulting on the $5,500,000 of notes which fell due last Wednesday, aroused Wall Street's interest to a greater degree than anything which has happened since the stirring days of last Fall. The Erie episode contains interest from so many points of view that it is likely the Street will not have exhausted Erie affairs as a source of discussion for some time to come, even though the interesting events of last week are not soon followed up by other important developments in the affairs of that road.

The personal part played by E. H. Harriman in saving the Erie from receivership, for which many expressions of appreciation have already come to him from many quarters, is almost certain, as Wall Street sees the matter, to lead to the passing of control of the road into Mr. Harriman's hands, whether, indeed, he wishes it or not. The view taken of the matter is that Mr. Harriman is now so far committed to the upholding of the Erie's credit that he will be looked to to guide the road through such further difficulties as may arise from existing business depression. And, eventually, many in the Street believe, Mr. Harriman will have to undertake a readjustment of the Erie's finances in order to place the road permanently beyond the likelihood of financial embarrassment such as has so often confronted this, the least developed of the trunk lines.

If a readjustment of Erie securities is possible without a receivership, it is believed Mr. Harriman will undertake it without hesitation. If a readjustment could be accomplished only through placing the roads in the hands of receivers, there are those who believe that Mr. Harriman will do the best possible under the circumstances, and, while foregoing the thorough overhauling which the road's finances need, do as much as he can do to strengthen its financial position.

Through the issuance of the $5,500,000 of three-year 6 per cent. notes underwritten by Mr. Harriman, and the sale of $5,000,000 more of the same issue underwritten by Mr. Harriman and other Directors of the Erie Railroad, and by J. P. Morgan & Co., all the pressing requirements of the system have been provided for. It now remains to be seen how far operating economies can be effected to make permanent the relief which has been afforded through the financing of obligations which were pressing and which threatened the destruction of the road's credit. For admittedly the road must be able to meet from its own resources the conditions arising from loss in business else the advantage gained last week would prove only temporary.

It is believed that much progress has already been made in this direction. The operating cost in March, it is understood, will be found to have shown considerable improvement over the earlier months of the year, and there is room probably for still further economies which will increase net earnings even though gross shows no increase. The poor showing made by the road during a large part of last year was due in no small part to temporary conditions, such as the losses incident to the strike of the road's machinists, which was settled only after months of conflict.

When business declined so suddenly last Fall the Erie found itself in the same position in which most roads were placed. Gross earnings were suddenly greatly reduced, while operating expenses were still running at a high level. The necessary result was an enormous loss in net earnings. Economies have gradually been put into effect, however, and from now on the road's reports will probably show a larger proportion of gross saved for net.

Looking further to the future, moreover, the Erie has in prospect very important economies in operation as a result of the improvements which it has under way, and which will be completed in the course of some months. It was through the intervention of Mr. Harriman last Spring that the most important of this work was allowed to go on after the Directors had taken fright and abandoned the work.

These improvements, conspicuous among them being the so-called Guymard cut-off, were undertaken for the purpose of reducing grades and generally supplying a better line for the road's heavy freight traffic. When they are completed, on some sections of the road twenty locomotives will be able to do the work which it is now taking close to fifty locomotives to perform. Economies such as these will quickly tell in the road's statement of earnings. When this and other important work is finished the Erie will be in much better position to weather storms than it has been in the past.

The fight which E. H. Harriman made against a receivership for the Erie Railroad contains many points of dramatic interest upon which Wall Street has not been slow to seize. A comment often heard last week was that Erie had lost none of its power "to make history," and no road in its day has made more history than the Erie.

BOSTON COPPER GOSSIP.

Amalgamated's Production Still Restricted—Output at Other Mines.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 12.—It is said at the Lake that there is very little copper in marketable form in sight there; that shipments have been active and have cleaned up about all the accumulations. The Calumet & Hecla Company has, however, a big supply of mineral on hand awaiting smelting. Export demand is said to have absorbed a large quantity, but American consumers have taken freely.

Calumet & Hecla has increased its stamping of amygdaloid rock, so that twenty-six loads are in operation.

The Baltic lode has not been found on the Copper Range globe shaft, even at 800 feet.

At the Quincy mill last week the twenty-four-inch head stamped an average of 850 tons each twenty-four hours, which is a new record. The Lake Company's shaft continues in rich ground, and the company and its friends have acquired control of all the territory traversed by the outcrop. Adventure's diamond drill in the southeast corner of Section 36 has reached a depth of 1,600 feet. Directly south of the Adventure mine and on the probable line of extension of the Lake lode a diamond drill owned by the Toltec is being started.

The Michigan mine is sending between 450 and 500 tons of rock daily from the new C shaft to the mill. Approximately 30 per cent. of the mineral output is copper. Water has caused a temporary suspension of work in sinking the Ojibway's No. 1 shaft. The shaft on Section 16 of the Atlantic is now bottomed at 1,275 feet.

A three-foot seam well mineralized has been encountered in North Butte Extension at the 500-foot level.

It is said at Butte that Amalgamated is not increasing its output and is employing only half as many men as before last Fall's retrenchment. The Rarus mine of Butte Coalition is employing 450 men and turning out 1,000 tons of ore daily.

Old Dominion produced 2,000,000 pounds in March, against 3,428,000 last year. A fourth furnace was blown in last Saturday.

The production of copper in Utah during March was approximately 6,800,000 pounds, comparing with 5,500,000 in February. It is estimated that the 1908 production of the Cerro de Pasco Copper Company (Pierce) will be 30,000,000 pounds, compared with 20,000,000 in 1907.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Cattle Straying Over the Border Are Not Dutiable—Other Decisions.

It has been decided by the Treasury Department that cattle straying over the American border from Mexico are not properly dutiable. It appears that recently twenty-five head of cattle roamed across the border in the Nogales, Arizona, District while pasturing.

The Collector of Customs regarded the presence of the cattle as an importation, and duty was accordingly demanded under the appropriate provision of the Dingley tariff. F. B. Woson, the owner, objected to the action of the Collector, and a protest was filed with the Board of United States General Appraisers. While the protest was pending before the board, however, the Collector learned to his satisfaction that the cattle were not brought into the country as an importation, and, acting in harmony with a regulation of the Treasury Department, a refund of the duties has been directed for the benefit of the owner of the animals.

General Appraiser Hay has denied free entry of certain instruments imported for the San Francisco Polyclinic and Post Graduate College on the ground that there was no compliance with the regulations of the Treasury Department.

CLEARING HOUSE REPORTS ON LOANS

Committee in Charge of Certificate Issues Tells of the Work.

IT HANDLED $453,000,000

This Was Value of All Collaterals—Much of It Commercial Paper—Figures of Past.

Publication by the Clearing House last week of the figures submitted by its Loan Committee covering the issue of loan certificates during the disturbances of last year has revealed a series of banking transactions unapproached in interest in this city since the panic days of 1893, when similar action was taken by the Clearing House.

The following table, which is compiled from Mr. A. B. Hepburn's book, "Sound Money," with the addition of the corresponding 1907 figures, gives a comprehensive picture of all the occasions upon which the New York Clearing House has resorted to the use of loan certificates:

LOAN CERTIFICATES OF THE NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE.

Oct. 26, 1907	Jan. 30, 1908	Mar. 30, 1908	101,060,000	88,420,000	Dec. 16, 1907	6

Up to 1864 United States and New York State securities only were accepted as collaterals. From that time on stocks, bonds, and bills receivable have also been taken.

The Loan Committee, which is composed for all practical purposes by the regular Clearing House Committee, and an associate committee formed for the purpose of scrutinizing collateral and approving subsequent loans, reported that the total amount of certificates authorized was $101,060,000, and the greatest amount outstanding at any one time was $88,420,000, this being the amount in use on Dec. 16.

The first point suggested by the 1907 figures is that of their extent compared with similar figures of 1893, for the purpose of trying to discover in a rough way which of the two great financial disturbances was the more important in its effect on banking affairs. The corresponding figures of 1893 were, "Maximum amount outstanding at any one time," $38,280,000, and "aggregate issue," $41,490,000. In 1893 the time elapsing between the issue of the first certificate and the retirement of the last was nineteen weeks, while in the present instance the period was twenty-two weeks.

The greater bulk of certificates in the 1907 panic and their longer service does not, however, make correct the inference that, from the banking point of view, the recent disturbance was the more important. The only safe way to make a comparison of these two periods is to take into account the different positions of the banks as regards capital, surplus, and deposits and the volume of business transacted by banking institutions at the two dates. Such a comparison is afforded by the following table:

Clearings	95,315,421,000	34,421,380,000
Capital	129,400,000	60,422,700
Deposits	1,036,703,000	431,411,200

Comparison of these various items with the volume of certificates outstanding at the two periods will make it clear that in proportion to the size of the banks and the volume of business carried on by them, the issues of certificates in 1907 were not appreciably greater than in 1893.

Another interesting point brought out by the committee in charge of the issue of certificates concerns the classes of collateral pledged to secure the loan certificates. The Clearing House made it a rule to accept the same kind of collateral that had been accepted in 1893, and in every previous era of trouble back to 1863, although before that Government bonds and New York State bonds had been required. The committee reported that in the course of the 1907 disturbances there passed through its hands as collateral securities and commercial paper having a total value of $453,000,000. Of this amount, $330,000,000, or 72.92 per cent. represented commercial paper, and the balance stocks and bonds.

The preponderance of commercial paper as the basis for loan certificates throws an interesting light on the provisions of the Aldrich bill now before the House of Representatives, which provides, as a basis for the emergency currency it recommends, State, county, and city bonds. It is plain from the Clearing House report that the bulk of collateral available in times of stress is commercial paper. If this is true of New York City it must be even more so in the case of the banks of inland cities.

It is an interesting fact that in connection with the issue of certificates by the Clearing House that in no case has there ever been a loss of a single cent involved in this procedure. In spite of the vast amount of securities handled the last time upon which interest amounting to $1,116,245 was collected there were no losses of any sort. The men who had charge of the handling of these great transactions included the regular Clearing House Committee—James T. Woodward, Chairman; William A. Nash, Dumont Clarke, Edward Townsend, Alexander Gilbert, and A. B. Hepburn, and an associate committee, which examined collateral and approved loans, consisting of Henry B. Davison, Gates W. McGarrah, Albert H. Wiggin, Walter E. Frew, and James G. Cannon.

Under the supervision of this committee thirty of the fifty-two banks in the Clearing House took out certificates. The last when the surplus of the Clearing House institutions stood at $37,000,000, and the final cancellation took place on March 30, when the receiver of the National Bank certificate was issued as late as Jan. 30, of North America retired the $250,000 which was the last issue outstanding.

PREPARING EASTER EGGS.

Various Colors for Dyeing Them—How the Dyeing Is Done.

Most of the youngsters are likely to put in a good part of this week in dyeing eggs for Easter. The best preparations for staining the white shells of the eggs are logwood and Pernambuco wood steeped in boiling water. These give very pretty shades separately, and mixed together give a very pretty shade of violet. Spinach water gives to the eggs a delicate shade of green, while onion juice water gives a golden yellow color. After the eggs are dipped in these preparations and rubbed hard with some lard and butter and then rubbed with a soft cloth they will develop a highly polished surface.

Variegated hues may be obtained by laying young and tender grasses and leaves on the surface of the eggs and holding them in place by winding strips of cotton around them and then boiling them in water in which logwood and Pernambuco wood have been steeped.

It is very easy to apply initials and monograms by using a hard pen dipped in aqua fortis just before they are treated to their color bath. There are any number of preparations to be bought at the drug stores which make very pretty effects.

Books and post cards are coming more and more into favor as Easter gifts, and there is also the usual profusion of rabbits made up of all kinds of things, including candy.

Further Declines in British Trade.

The March statement of the London Board of Trade shows decreases of £5,625,600 in imports and £1,825,000 in exports. Principal decreases in imports were £1,500,000 in wool and £5,500,000 in cotton, including £2,500,000 American. The main falling off in exports was £1,000,000 in manufactured goods. Exports of cotton and wool fabrics also decreased.

We Seek Russian Bridge Contracts.

Americans have been invited by the City of St. Petersburg to submit bids for several bridges to be constructed across the Neva. An appropriation of $2,500,000 has been made to cover the cost. The United States Steel Products Export Company, which takes care of the foreign business of the United States Steel Corporation, is now preparing data on the work.

NEW YORK MAY SOON LOSE GOLD TO PARIS

NOT DUE TO TRADE BALANCE

But to Business Recession Here, Resulting in Abnormally Low Interest Rates.

Although this country's credit balance abroad, growing out of our recent heavy exports with greatly diminished imports, has reached unprecedented proportions, this market is now confronted by the possibility of gold exports to Europe. The significance of the situation lies not in any change in our favorable position in relation to other financial centres, but in the fact that money is becoming so easy here that the demand for gold on the Continent may be more cheaply satisfied here than in other markets. Though only slightly above mint parity, sterling exchange rates at the close of last week were within a fifth of a cent to the pound sterling of the point at which gold could be taken from this market to Paris, there to be converted into sterling exchange.

Credits created in London and Paris during the disturbed period of last Fall have recently been drawn on by Paris with the result that Paris has been able to obtain a substantial share of the gold laid down in London. This has not been burdensome to London so far because of the rapid recovery in the bank reserves at that centre since the close of last year, and until gold withdrawals become onerous to London the demand is not likely to be shifted from that centre to this. But the further decline in our own interest rates at a time when special settlements are going on between London and Paris may well result in our sending gold to Paris despite our foreign commerce having recently established for us such large credit balances.

At the close of last week sterling exchange in Paris stood at 25f. 12½c., while demand sterling here was quoted at 4.8685. A decline in Paris, say to 25f. 12c., and an advance here, say to 4.8710, would bring the rates to the point at which triangular operations could be undertaken on the basis of gold shipments from New York to Paris, the gold to be used there for the purchase of bills on London.

Gold shipments from New York to Paris at this time could probably, to a larger extent than usual, be properly described as nothing more than loans by this market to Europe. When we drew from Europe last Fall a full $100,000,000 of gold, when we were sorely in need of fresh supplies of cash, it was predicted in many quarters that so soon as acute conditions in the New York money market had passed most of this gold would find its way back to Europe. But for at least two months past normal conditions have prevailed in the New York money market and we have not yet lost an ounce of gold. What happened was that during the months following the panic we exported our products in unprecedented quantities and at the same time curtailed our purchases of foreign goods. Moreover, it later became better understood than it was last Fall that our usual Fall debit balance abroad was much smaller than usual last year because of the refusal of foreign bankers last Spring and Summer to make their usual advances to the New York market.

And even now we would not be confronted with possible gold exports were it not that money rates, which some time since got back to a normal basis, are now declining to an abnormally low level. Sixty-day money is not usually obtainable in this market at 2½ per cent., as it was last week. Such a rate may be regarded as below the normal level at this centre. If it reflects a well-defined tendency in our money market, and the continuity of the recent downward movement in interest rates here suggests that it does reflect such a tendency and not some purely temporary superabundance of short time money, it can be explained only on the ground that the demand for money has so decreased as to make it unloanable here at normal rates. It is this tendency to a condition of superabundance of floating capital that makes possible gold exports at a time when our credit balance on our foreign commerce has increased at a remarkably rapid rate. Gold exports from New York now would reflect, it may be said, not the payment of debts to Europe, but the employment abroad of funds for which our own markets do not now supply profitable employment. A necessary corollary to this is that gold that goes abroad now will again be at our command so soon as our own needs prompt the withdrawal of credits which may now be placed abroad because they are not needed here. From this point of view loss of gold by this market under existing conditions can in no way impair this centre's monetary position. If the loss of gold should be taken as reflecting slack business in this country, which it doubtless would reflect, it would merely record in another way the business depression here, which is already amply evidenced by many other indicia of trade conditions.

ELECTRIC LIGHT CONCESSIONS

Edison Company, Under Service Board Pressure, Agrees to New Price Basis.

Commissioner Maltbie of the Public Service Commission has made a report to the Commission on breakdown or emergency service by companies furnishing electric power. It was announced not long ago that the New York Edison Company had modified its rates for such service, which for two years it had refused to supply.

Last January the company announced that it would give breakdown service, but fixed the rate according to the amount of installation. That is, for instance, if a hotel doing a transient business needed emergency service it would have to pay a rate based on the supposition that every light in the house was burning at once. Business men who owned private electrical plants declared that this rate was prohibitive. After prolonged negotiation the Edison Company agreed to fix the rate on the basis of maximum demand, or the greatest amount of current from outside that a concern will ever require at any one time. In his report Commissioner Maltbie says that this agreement is to last for one year, during which time the company agrees to place recording devices upon every breakdown connection and take the record of the current furnished under the supervision of the Commission for the purpose of determining a fair charge for the service.

RAILROAD ACCOUNTS.

Commission's Classifications Provide Many Items Seldom Used.

The present classification of railway operating expense accounts prescribed by the Inter-State Commerce Commission, which became effective on July 1, 1907, says The Railway Age, provides for 123 primary accounts, as compared with 53 in the older classification, and as the American Railway Association Committee on Accounting and Statistical Inquiry now has in hand a report on the official classification, and doubtless will have some changes to recommend, it will be of interest to examine into the practical working of the present system.

Analysis of the reports for three roads, which we shall designate as A, B, and C, shows that about 80 per cent. of the total operating expenses are comprised in about 20 per cent. of the primary accounts. The close agreement shown in the accompanying table, wherein the accounts are classified according to relative magnitude, is the more striking because Road A has gross earnings of about $8,000,000 per annum, Road B of about $28,000,000, and Road C of about $80,000,000 per annum. The several classes of accounts are as follows:

Number of items each—	Road— A.	B.	C.
Over 1 per cent. total	23	23	25
Between 1 per cent. and 0.1 per cent.	42	51	52
Between 0.1 per cent. and 0.01 per cent.	25	19	27
Between 0.01 per cent. and zero	6	6	10
Zero	27	24	9
Total	123	123	123

The proportions of total operating expenses included in the relatively few larger accounts are:

Road A (seven months ended Jan. 31, 1908)—23 accounts include 81.760 per cent. of total expenses.

Road B (seven months ended Jan. 31, 1908)—23 accounts include 81.117 per cent. of total expenses.

Road C (eight months ended Feb. 29, 1908)—25 accounts include 78.840 per cent. of total expenses.

It would appear that the classification is far from being as symmetrical as is desirable and, inasmuch as in all three cases shown—small, medium, and large roads—less than eighty accounts include over 97 per cent. of the total expenses, that the number of accounts could be reduced to about that figure with advantage.

FRAUD IN RAISIN SALE.

Grocer Callanan Finds Both Domestic and Foreign Packages Short Weight.

Tons of raisins, domestic and imported, are sold in packages under their supposed weight, says L. J. Callanan, the Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the New York Retail Grocers' Union. He will call the attention of the Federal authorities to the subject.

"The imported table raisins," said Mr. Callanan, "in packages or clusters, vary from 13 to 14½ ounces instead of 16 ounces in each package.

"Of 100 boxes of California seeded raisins I received from one company only two were of full weight."

Mr. Callanan will try to get the retail grocers everywhere to refuse to accept shipments of raisins that are below the indicated weight.

LUXEMBURG, N. J., DARK.

One Resident Keeps Lighting Company from Erecting Poles.

Special to The New York Times.

WHARTON, N. J., April 12.—Residents of the Luxemburg section of the borough are indignant over the refusal of one property owner to grant permission to the Dover Electric Light Company to erect poles in front of his property. Without his consent Luxemburg is kept in darkness.

Before the Council contracted with the company to light the streets, Luxemburg, like the rest of the borough, had oil lamps, but when the contract was entered into last December the services of the lamplighter were dispensed with and the old street lamps were removed.

Efforts on the part of the borough authorities to arrange a settlement with the stubborn citizen have failed. The Dover Electric Light Company has sent word to the council that the line will be extended to Luxemburg if the Council sends a written order to proceed.

GREAT WORK DONE BY FREE SYNAGOGUE

First Anniversary of Its Founding Celebrated and Its Mission Reviewed.

LEADERS TELL OF ITS NEEDS

Call Not Only for Contributions, but for Men and Women to Carry on Its Work.

The first anniversary of the founding of the Free Synagogue was celebrated at the place of worship of the congregation in Eighty-first Street between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues yesterday morning with appropriate exercises. Several hundred persons attended, and listened to addresses by Henry Morgenthau, Acting Chairman of the synagogue; Adolph Lewisohn, Dr. Stephen S. Wise, Rabbi of the synagogue; Rabbi Sidney E. Goldstein, Director of the social service work of the synagogue, and Eugene H. Lehman, Principal of the Religious School.

Mr. Morgenthau presided, and devoted his remarks chiefly to a retrospect of the growth and achievements of the synagogue during the year. Mr. Lewisohn also spoke of the work of the synagogue in its first year, laying particular emphasis on the social service department, and its rescue and probation work in the hospitals and police courts.

"To us who have been among the founders and earliest supporters of the Free Synagogue," said he, "it has been a pleasure to see that the movement has called forth the approval of Jew and Christian.

"I think we have the right to feel that the Free Synagogue has already begun to render a great service to the cause of Israel.

"Your judgment in establishing a Sunday morning service is being vindicated. The large number of people who come here regularly on Sunday morning to join in the simple and beautiful worship, and to hear the messages spoken from this pulpit, prove that there is a need for a religious service among Jews in addition to the regular Saturday morning service.

Work of the Synagogue.

"It is good to learn that as soon as your social service was organized you made a generous contribution to the United Hebrew Charities, and through the kindness of your chairman were enabled to endow a child-labor scholarship.

"When to all this is added that you have adhered to your aim of making and keeping the synagogue free to all, of having a pulpit in which your rabbi should speak what he believes to be true and right, of having the synagogue be true to the future as well as loyal to the past, then we may all feel that the beginnings have not only been praiseworthy, but that the outlook is indeed most promising."

Mr. Lehman touched upon the importance of the Sunday School work in the education of children.

"The Bible cannot be taught in the common schools," said he. "It is not their function. The public school trains the intellects of the children. The Sunday School appeals to their motives and wills. A child is taught to write. He may write a poem or he may forge a check. The knowledge he receives may thus be dangerous unless the motive and will for its proper use are trained at the same time. This is what we are doing. And we do believe that the Bible should simply be taught to the children."

Mr. Lehman also pointed out that the parents should assist in the religious study of their children, saying that religion should be carried into the homes and not simply studied two hours a day once a week.

Need of Employment.

Rabbi Goldstein cited several interesting examples of the work being done by his department and said that the chief need was for the establishment of an employment committee to enable the workers to find clean and profitable employment for their charges after they have aided them to convalesce from a sickness or escape a sentence in a police court. He announced that contributions to the work had been so liberal that it was possible to take up ninety new "cases" a month, giving opportunities for sixty additional volunteer workers.

"Thus, you see that our work needs something more than money," he continued. "It needs personal service. A check mailed to us once a month is not sufficient. We want live, sympathetic men and women to aid us personally. These poor unfortunates are to the hospitals and police courts simply 'cases.' But to us they are more. We also look to the symptoms, and treat the 'cases' like a disease."

Dr. Wise spoke of the objects and ideals of the Free Synagogue, touching particularly on the discarding of the payment of regular dues and the assignment of pews to the members.

"We have thrown aside this parceling out of the house of God as antiquated, un-Jewish, and undemocratic," said he. "We are dueless and pewless. There is need to-day for a free pulpit and a free press. And the question of the free pulpit is a greater one than you may think. We can confine ourselves no longer to simply teaching the history of bygone ages. We have created a synagogue of light and life, unlike so many churches and temples and synagogues in this city, which are only the solemn gateways to suburban cemeteries."

Before the anniversary exercises a meeting of the Governing Committee of the synagogue was held, and the members for the ensuing year selected. With a few additions they remain the same as last year—Mr. Morgenthau, Max Oberfelder, Charles E. Bloch, M. J. Stroock, S. C. Nessler, Nathan Straus, Louis Long, Max Rosett, E. B. Eising, Benno Levison, Jr., E. Yancey Cohen, J. B. Grunhut, J. M. Levine, Eli Bernays, and S. L. Bacharach.

Dr. Wise refused to accept more than half the salary voted to him. For the first time since its organization the exact principles and tenets of the Free Synagogue were drawn up in writing in the form of a constitution.

Tenets of the Organization.

The paper reads:

The organization shall be known by the name and style of the Free Synagogue.

Its membership shall consist of men and women who desire to practice and perpetuate the teachings of the religion of Israel.

Desirous of vitalizing and reasserting a fundamental ideal of Israel, the founders of the Free Synagogue resolve that it shall not at any time nor for any reason impose any pecuniary due, tax, or assessment upon its members, nor shall pews or sittings be owned by members, but it shall be supported wholly by voluntary contributions.

Believing that Judaism is a religion of perpetual growth and development, we hold that, while loyal to the fundamental teachings thereof, we are and by virtue of the genius of Israel, ought to be free to interpret and restate the teachings of Israel of the past in the light of the present, and that each succeeding generation in Israel is free to reformulate the truths first intrusted in the providence of God to our fathers.

Believing that the power of the synagogue for good depends in part upon the inherent right of the pulpit to freedom of thought and speech, the founders of the Free Synagogue resolve that its pulpit shall be free to preach on behalf of truth and righteousness in the spirit and after the pattern of the prophets of Israel.

The membership of the synagogue has increased to 300, principally the heads of families, during the year, and the attendance at the Religious School has been multiplied by five. The expenditures of the synagogue in charitable work during the year totaled $12,000.

PASSOVER FOOD FOR POOR.

Long Line of East Siders Supplied—2,500 Families Aided.

The East Side Business Men's Protective Association, under direction of its President, Isidore Richter, and a committee, continued the distribution to the poor of the east side Saturday night and last night an immense quantity of food to be used in the celebration of the Hebrew Feast of the Passover, which begins on Wednesday evening and lasts eight days. Altogether 2,500 poor families received a week's supply of potatoes, eggs, sugar, tea, apples, wine, and matzoths, or unleavened bread.

During the two evenings more than 52,000 pounds of matzoths, 2 carloads of potatoes, 8,000 pounds of sugar, 30 barrels of apples, 2,000 dozen eggs, 600 gallons of wine, and 500 pounds of tea were given out. The provisions were in a vacant store at 416 Grand Street.

TEMPLE CORNERSTONE LAID.

Jewish Ceremonies for the Ansche Chesed Congregation.

The cornerstone of Temple Ansche Chesed was laid yesterday afternoon by Isidor Straus on the site which the completed temple will occupy next September, at 114th Street and Seventh and St. Nicholas Avenues. The congregation is at present occupying a building in 112th Street, between Lexington and Third Avenues, which has proved too small for its present needs.

The site has a frontage of 50 feet on Seventh Avenue, 140 feet on 114th Street, and 60 feet on St. Nicholas Avenue. Every foot of the platform was occupied yesterday by members of the congregation and their friends. The exercises began with prayer by Dr. G. N. Hausmann, pastor of the church. Meyer Goodfriend, Chairman of the Building Fund Committee, presided. Herman Kroll, President of the congregation, and David Auerbach made the presentation of the silver trowel with which the mortar was placed under the stone.

Deputy Controller N. Taylor Phillips spoke at some length, congratulating the congregation on the fact that theirs was a conservative congregation.

"The Jew does best for himself and for the community in which he lives when he teaches the literature of his people," he said. "I think the Jew obtains the respect of the Christian when he is true to Jewish institutions, just as the Christian obtains the respect of the Jew when he is loyal to his institutions."

After he had laid the cornerstone, Isidor Straus said, in part:

"Religion, brethren, is not an end, but only a means to an end. Creed and ceremonials are only the accessories of religion. True religion is exemplified in deeds. To be content with creed without deed is to mistake the substance for the shadow." Mr. Straus concluded with the wish that the future temple should be the home of a religious community in the highest sense.

The benediction was said by Dr. Maurice H. Harris of Temple Israel of Harlem. A band of little boys from the Hebrew Orphan Asylum furnished music.

POLICE GRIEVE FOR MASCOT.

Harbor Squad Will Give Snyder a Sailor's Funeral.

Snyder, one of the volunteer dog retainers of the Harlem River police squad, went away last night at 10 o'clock to the place where good and honest dogs go. And the dock rats of the Harlem River, who steal coal from barges, extract bushels of grain from grain boats at night, who confiscate and sell rowboats, who ransack boathouses, and rob yachts at anchor, these will be glad that Snyder is dead.

The big brindle dog, a cross between a St. Bernard and a Newfoundland, had made himself feared by the dock rats during his seven years' service with the harbor police. He disappeared two or three times, but always he was found again. Once before he was poisoned. That time his life was saved.

The police of the Harbor Squad Station at the foot of East 122d Street believe that Snyder was poisoned. Three days ago he refused to eat, began to sleep and drowse through long periods, and groan. A veterinary was called in. He gave medicine, but the dog did not rally.

Acting Capt. Fred Mott came to the conclusion yesterday afternoon that it would be kinder to Snyder to end his misery. It required some time, however, to drag his will to the point where he could lay a pistol barrel to the faithful dog's head and pull the trigger.

But it was done at 10 last night. Snyder whimpered just a little, raised his right paw feebly to wipe the blood out of his ear, and went away. And now the dock rats have got something more coming to them, and it is said at the foot of East 122d Street that it will come quick and hard.

The body of Snyder will be buried to-day in the Harlem River. He was a sailor when the police found him, and he had been a little of a landlubber in the years he has been with the police. His body will be weighted with a thirty-pound shot and sunk.

Seven years ago the harbor police went to the aid of a schooner that was sinking in the Sound. They rescued two men and Snyder, then a puppy. Since then he had been a volunteer on the Harbor Squad, not a regular police dog.

MISSIONARY BADLY BURNED.

Oil Stove Explodes, Setting Woman's Clothing Afire.

Mrs. Clarissa L. Wood, a Presbyterian missionary, who lives in the boarding house of Miss Kate Kerr, at 345 West Forty-fifth Street, was making a cup of tea in her room about 11 o'clock last night when the oil stove on which she was brewing the tea exploded, setting fire to her clothes. Mrs. Wood jumped on the bed and began rolling over and over in an effort to smother the flames. Instead she set fire to the bed, and then ran blazing down four flights of stairs to the room of Miss Kerr, on the first floor.

Miss Kerr heard the screams of Mrs. Wood and grabbed a pitcher of water and threw it on her. Other boarders came to her aid and the fire was extinguished. Mrs. Wood was burned so badly that it was said at the Roosevelt Hospital that she might die.

The fire was confined to the room.

JERSEY FUMAROLE ACTIVE.

Smoke from a Gravel Bank Puzzles Long Branch Railroad Wayfarers.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., April 12.—Trackwalkers and others who come on foot down the line of the Long Branch Railroad report that smoke wreaths from a gravel bank twelve miles above here, which have been a mystery for many years, have greatly increased in density in the last few days.

The gravel bank is the east wall of a deep cut, the last before New York bound trains, rushing down the grade from Matawan run out upon the broad meadows which skirt the south shore of Cheesequakes Creek, famous in the history of river and harbor appropriation scandals. The spot is about the most desolate on the whole long road, far from any public road or human habitation, so the curiosity has attracted little attention. Accommodation trains here are few, while the New York fliers make their best time over this stretch of straight and solid roadbed, tearing through at anything from sixty to ninety miles an hour.

Passengers never noticed the strange smolder until the recent Raritan Bridge hoodoo bagan to bother the trains. Few of the commuters, in fact, ever knew about the smoke until last Thursday morning when the bridge failed during a heavy wind and the rush of morning travel was tied up over miles. Then the Jersey Central's Wall Street express halted for a short time in the cut and the smoke coming up through the stones, sand, and pebbles was viewed from the vestibules with interest.

"The new bridge was blown up last week, the old bridge is blown down today, and now we're planted over a live, baby volcano," was the comment of one grouchy commuter.

"'T'ought to be a tin train in a hole for him," muttered a trainman in the hearing of a casual traveler, who was enjoying the novel sight and the sweet Spring odors of the westerly gale.

Old men in the service of the road recall seeing the smoke twenty-three years ago, and say that it ceased for a period of about five years ending fifteen years ago. Those who have graduated from the Jersey Central coal trains and are familiar with the coal regions say that the phenomenon arises from some small, isolated burning coal vein which may extend far out under the ocean.

Held for Stealing Diamond Necklace.

Lizzie Hitt, 19 years old, of 187 Bruce Street, Newark, N. J., who was employed as a domestic in the family of Philip Bornstein, at 671 High Street, that city, was locked up in Police Headquarters there yesterday, charged with having attempted to steal a diamond necklace and pin belonging to Mrs. Bornstein just before she was about to leave without asking pay for the time she had been there.

AERO CLUB TAKES WING ON A "GLIDER"

Members Secretly Test Simple Flying Device on Long Island Estate.

THEY TRY SHORT FLIGHTS

Other Tests to be Made After Their Machine Has Been Equipped with a Motor.

Members of an "Aviation Committee" from the Aero Club spent the week-end on an estate on the North Shore of Long Island experimenting with a "glider" of the Herring model. Members of the party were reticent about the precise location of the experiments, but it is learned that on Saturday members of the party succeeded in "aviating" for short flights of from thirty to forty feet with the "glider" at a distance of from ten to fifteen feet from the ground.

The delegation from the Aero Club consisted of Augustus Post and B. L. Braine, members of the "Aviation Committee," and George H. Guy and Mr. Ward of the club. The committee was appointed at a recent meeting of the Aero Club, when Courtlandt Bishop, the President, observed that the balloon had no further worlds to conquer and that henceforth the mission of the club would lie in the development of aerial flight.

The investigators arrived at the Long Island estate early on Saturday. They carried with them material for their machine. In a few hours Mr. Braine had put together the first "glider" of the club. This consisted of a framework 18 feet long 5½ feet high as it lay on the ground, with a width of 5 feet.

At the top of the machine and at the bottom were muslin covers stretched to the upper and lower planes of the framework. In the centre was a space for a man to hang suspended by his arms. The top cover was over his head, while the bottom one would be on a level with his arms as the machine was in the air. The whole weighed 45 pounds.

The machine was carried to the top of a hill near the place of its birth. There was a stiff breeze blowing at the time. A member of the party was placed in the central position, while one lifted the machine at the head and one at the foot. The passenger stood on his own legs with the machine partially supported in the air by the two others. At the word all three began to run.

Within a few moments the machine would glide through the air and the two assistants would let go at the shout of the passenger.

According to members of the party many flights were made whose greatest distance from place of starting to place of alighting was forty feet. The machine would rise in a curve which gradually came to earth again. Forward of the suspended position of the passenger was a bar which the passenger used to aid him in altering the inclination of his body, and hence the centre of gravity of the whole, so that the angle of the muslin surfaces to air currents was altered.

All of the members of the "aviation" expedition took turns in riding in the machine. Further experiments will be made to lay the ground for work with machines which employ a motor. Those interested regarded the success of their experiment as an example of the ease with which such machines can be made and operated.

The club at the present time is searching for a place where experiments may be carried on regularly without too great publicity.

Even Chill Winds Could Not Keep Holiday Crowds Away.

The largest crowd of the year visited Coney Island yesterday. It was conservatively estimated that 50,000 persons called to renew their acquaintance with the merry isle during the day. The weather was mild and the visitors had a happy day of it, in spite of the fact that most of the amusement places are still closed.

Coney Islanders are busy preparing for the season. On every hand during weekdays the sound of hammering and sawing is heard. Steeplechase Park, which was destroyed by fire last year, has been in course of reconstruction for two months, and is nearing completion. The race course will be opened to the public next Sunday, and on May 9 the entire park will be ready for business.

One feature of the new Steeplechase Park will be the ballroom. A fifty-foot yacht will be suspended from the ceiling, and in this yacht the musicians will sit dressed as sailormen.

Luna Park and Dreamland will open on May 16.

Coney Islanders are happy at the prospect of the Jenkins Trust Company and its branches reopening next Wednesday. A large amount of their money has been tied up in the island branch of the Jenkins Trust since last October, when the institution suspended. The releasing of part, at least, of this money will allow the proprietors of amusement places to add new features to their properties.

NEW ROCHELLE, April 12.—The police of this city and Larchmont are investigating a fire which late last night destroyed the pavilion and grand stand at Dillon Park, Mamaroneck, just across the line from this city. The property is owned by ex-Mayor Michael J. Dillon of this city. There had been great opposition to the existence of the park, and it had been said that some night Dillon Park would go up in a blaze. The authorities say the fire was incendiary. The loss is $5,000.

Incendiary Fire in Newark.

An attempt was made late last night to burn a double furnished room house at 35 and 37 Halsey Street, Newark. There were several couples with their children asleep on the ground floor when the fire was discovered. Harry Dunbar, who rooms on the third floor, was the only one upstairs. Four beds saturated with oil were found burning on the second floor, which had no roomers. Dunbar was arrested on suspicion. Mrs. Emma Dodge conducted the house. Firemen quickly subdued the fire.

Colonial Relics Burned.

WATERBURY, Conn., April 12.—Fire caused by a defective flue destroyed the home of Judge Charles Brown, in Southbury, to-day. Valuable Colonial furniture and Continental uniforms handed down for generations were lost. The home of Judge Steele of New York, also suffered from the flames.

ARREST JANITOR AND OWNER.

Tenant of Apartment House Charges Disorderly Conduct.

William Huneke, janitor of the apartment house at 250 Riverside Drive, had trouble with John M. Williams, one of his tenants, the other day, and Mr. Williams promptly went to the West Side Court and swore out a warrant for Huneke's arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct. Sergt. Brady of the West Side Court took the warrant last night to the apartment house and arrested Huneke and locked him up in the West 100th Street police station.

The cell door had hardly closed on the janitor when in walked Robert Lyons, the owner of the house, who lost no time in informing the desk Lieutenant that he wanted to bail Huneke out. The reply that Mr. Lyons got was a big surprise. Instead of having a chance to affix his signature to the paper that would have released the janitor, he was himself arrested on a similar charge also preferred by Mr. Williams.

Some time after he was locked up Mr. Lyons was bailed out by his wife, who gave as security a lot on 182d Street, between Ryder and Valentine Avenues, the Bronx. It was said that the cause of the arrest was an allegation by Mr. Williams that the owner and janitor had entered his apartment and acted in a disorderly manner. Magistrate Wahle issued the warrants.

Boy Says He Was Taught to Steal.

Four boys, the oldest 16 years and the youngest 11, are held by the Newark police on the charge of being pickpockets. John McDonald, 15, one of them, has confessed that he was trained for thievery since he had been able to walk. He and Louis Jaffe, 11 years old, live in Manhattan. The names of the other two are not known to the police. They were arrested on Broad Street, Newark, after Mrs. Augusta Zaething had lost her handbag.

Fractured Skull in Chasing His Hat.

Henry Doak, 42 years old, of 5 Spring Street, Newark, is in the city hospital in that city suffering from a bad scalp wound and perhaps a fractured skull. Doak was on his way home yesterday morning when his hat was blown off by the high wind. While pursuing it he tripped and fell heavily to the pavement. He was picked up in a semi-conscious condition and removed to the hospital.
